ODD UNIFORMITY SHOWN IN PRIMARY JUDGESHIP VOTE IN RIVER WARDS

Ability of Democratic Machine to Deliver in Accord With Bosses' Slates Demonstrated by Returns.

NO BALLOTS FOR SOME CANDIDATES

Analysis of Voting in Kinney's, Miller's, Brogan's and Mestres' Districts — No Contests Because of Prohibitive Cost.

Remarkable ability of river ward Democratic machines to deliver votes in accordance with the slates supported by the ward bosses was demonstrated in the official returns on the six Democratic nominations for Circuit Judgeships in the primary Aug. 4, as disclosed by analysis by the Post-Dispatch yesterday.

The district chiefs and Democratic committeemen whose bailiwicks were included in the study are: State Senator Mike Kinney, Fifth Ward; Justice of the Peace Jimmy Miller, Fourth Ward; State Senator Joe Brogan, Third Ward, and Park Commissioner Joe Mestres, Seventh Ward. Another study, published yesterday, covered the North Side Twentieth Ward, where John J. Dwyer succeeded J. J. Gallagher as committeeman.

Kinney, Brogan, Mestres and Dwyer are among Mayor Dickmann's political supporters; Miller and Gallagher among his opponents.

Attention was called to the unusual returns in the party's judicial contest in numerous precincts scattered about the city by some of the defeated candidates for Democratic nominations for the Circuit bench. Some of them considered filing contests in Circuit Court against the six nominees, but abandoned the idea because of the prohibitive expense, estimated as at least several thousand dollars. The time for filing a contest expired yesterday.

The unsuccessful candidates were of the opinion that judicial scrutiny of the ballots might bring about a change of the result, and that a contest was desirable in the public interest to obviate any question about the personnel of the Court.

Winners and Their Vote.

Democratic nominees for Circuit Judges, as the result of the city-wide vote, were: Joseph F. Dickmann, brother of the Mayor and now a Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction; Assistant Circuit Attorney William B. Flynn; Thomas J. Rowe Jr., long a figure in the criminal courts as attorney for persons charged with crimes; Joseph J. Ward, a member of the Board of Education; Assistant Circuit Attorney David J. Murphy and Alderman Michael J. Scott of the Twenty-first Ward.

These nominees carried the Fifth Ward, while all but Murphy carried the Third and Seventh, where the powers evidently had different ideas about the personnel of the bench. Only Rowe, Ward and Flynn carried the Fourth Ward, where Jimmy Miller's slate—or slates—was the order of the day.

Kinney's Fifth Ward gave the nominees these votes: Dickmann, [illegible]; Flynn, 3651; Murphy, 3524; Scott, 3324; Ward, 3178; Rowe, 2321. Runners-up were Richard T. Brownrigg, 2227, and Frank B. Coleman, 1946, having been left on Kinney's slate as acceptable to him. The other 17 candidates received from 32 to 161 votes each.

Coleman, Brownrigg and Chilton Atkinson were the three Democrats indorsed for the Circuit bench by the Bar Association of St. Louis.

No Votes for Some Candidates.

Fifth Ward returns covered the 25 candidates in the 13 precincts—[illegible] places on the Election Board's tabulation sheet, out of which 109 carried the old familiar "goose egg" or 0. The eleventh and twelfth precincts stood out in behalf of the six nominees, each of whom polled 170 votes in the former unit and 146 in the latter, while no other candidate got a vote in either. The fifth precinct showed a little variation by giving 79 votes each to all the nominees except Flynn, and to Brownrigg; Flynn and the other 18 aspirants were left voteless.

Mathematical artistry was displayed in the sixth precinct, where Brownrigg, Coleman, Dickmann, Flynn and Ward each was credited with the support of 397 electors. Murphy drew 137, and Rowe and Scott 130 each. It will be observed that the votes of Murphy, Rowe and Scott totaled 397—six jobs, six times 397. it was as simple as that. Nobody else had a lookin; it was

DOCTOR KILLED IN PLANE AFTER DROPPING NOTE TO SON

Craft Fails to Respond When He Tries to Regain Altitude; Passenger Also Victim.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BEACH HAVEN, N. J., Aug. 15.—Dr. John S. Eynon, chief of staff of the Chester, Pa., hospital, and Duane Van Horn, executive of the E. G. Budd Co., auto body makers, of Philadelphia, were killed late today when the physician's plane crashed on the beach at Brant Beach, four miles from here.

A few moments before, Dr. Eynon had flown over a boys' camp nearby, where his son, David, is spending the summer, and dropped a note to the son. The note also contained a small amount of spending money for the boy.

After circling the camp, the physician tried to gain altitude but the plane failed to respond. It nosed over and dived to the beach. Dr. Eynon, a pilot of two years' experience, was well known in medical and surgical circles. He was a fellow of the American College of Surgeons.

TWO KILLED IN POLISH POLITICAL DEMONSTRATION

Police Station Burned by Mob Demanding Amnesty for Exiled Former Premier.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Aug. 15.—Two persons were killed tonight in disorders in the town of Wierzchoslawice as Poland observed the sixteenth anniversary of the battle of Warsaw, in which a Russian Bolshevist invasion was checked.

Peasants demonstrated in a demand for amnesty for former Premier Wincenty Witos, exiled because of alleged complicity in a plot to overthrow the Government. Witos once was Burgomaster of the town.

The peasants beat a constable who escaped to a police station, which the mob set on fire. One of the crowd was shot and killed. As the injured constable was being taken to a hospital the mob dragged him from the car and beat him to death. Six persons were injured and 20 were arrested.

$40,000 FOUND IN FARM HOME OF WOMAN WHO DIED AT 79

Cash and Bonds in Old Boxes and Purses at Royal, Neb.—Apparently No Will.

By the Associated Press.

ROYAL, Neb., Aug. 15.—County authorities said today more than $40,000 in cash and bonds had been found in the nearby farm home of Mrs. Josie Hackett, 79 years old, since her death three weeks ago.

While searching for a will which would dispose of the woman's property, relatives discovered the money, hidden in old boxes, purses and pocketbooks.

County authorities took possession of the money. No will was found.

Officials feared the strikes might become general throughout the country.

CONVICT ADMITS KILLING FOR WHICH DOCTOR GOT LIFE

Missouri Prisoner Says He Shot Kansas Woman Whose Husband Was Twice Found Guilty.

CONFESSES TO CLEAR INNOCENT MAN

Statement Solves Murder of Mrs. S. O. Netherton in Her Home at Olathe, Kan., in 1928.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 15.—Warden J. M. Sanders announced tonight that Charles Bunch, a convict in the Missouri Penitentiary, had confessed to the murder of Mrs. S. O. Netherton of Olathe, Kan., in 1928—a crime for which her husband is serving a life term at the Kansas prison.

Sanders said a written confession had been obtained from Bunch by him and Tom Scott, deputy warden, after they had questioned him yesterday.

A pistol which Sanders said had been smuggled to the convict at the prison here and later taken from him, was turned over to Merle Gill, Kansas City ballistics expert, to check bullets removed from the woman's body, in the belief it was the weapon used in the killing.

"I am doing this," Sanders quoted Bunch as saying, "in order that Dr. Netherton, an innocent man, might be vindicated and sent home to his family, as I feel he should be."

Serving 25 Years as Robber.

Bunch was received at the Missouri prison March 3, 1929, under a 25-year sentence for a Bates County farm house robbery.

His confession said he shot Mrs. Netherton three or four times after she had discovered him and an accomplice in her home.

Sanders announced the confession after he and Scott had made a trip to Olathe to check the convict's story. They said the only discrepancy discovered was the date he fixed for the shooting, but that he later told them he "could not be sure of the time." Bunch in his confession said the crime was committed April 24, 1928, whereas Sanders pointed out, it had occured in February of that year.

Convicts Story of Killing.

The convict related how he and his accomplice, whom he did not name drove from Kansas City to Olathe with the intention of robbing Netherton but, failing to find him, decided to rob his home instead.

Bunch said he heard a noise in the basement of the house, and went to investigate.

"I found a lady coming up the basement steps," he said, "I told her it was a stick-up. She screamed and grabbed me, and we fell to the bottom of the steps. She was shot three of four times—once in the body during the scuffle and then she stooped over and was shot twice more, once in the head, falling in front of the furnace."

Bunch said he asked a friend of Netherton's to come and see him at the penitentiary after he had learned the husband was serving a life term at Lansing for the murder, but that instead of coming himself he had sent a Kansas City newspaper reporter, to whom he had refused to talk.

The convict admitted the smuggled pistol taken from him by prison authorities was the one used in the killing.

Bunch told of escaping from the Hutchinson, (Kan.) reformatory in 1921 after serving seven days of a five to 15-year sentence for a motor car theft. He said he had engaged in crime since he was 13 years old. He is now 36.

Captured and Paroled.

Captured in California, he said he was returned to Kansas and transferred to the Kansas Penitentiary, from which he fled two years later, only to be caught at Spavinaw, Ok., a few months later He was returned to the Kansas Prison, he said, and served time until June 28, 1927, when he was paroled.

After the Olathe shooting, the convict said he and his accomplice drove to a small town in Kansas where they stayed all night with his mother. He said he had used a 25 caliber automatic in the shooting. After the night at his mother's he traced the flight of the two to St. Louis, Chicago and Detroit, where they separated. Bunch said his accomplice had since been killed by officers in a Kansas robbery.

Leaving Detroit, the convict recalled that he met two friends in Indianapolis and in December, 1928, they decided to go west.

"The night after Christmas," he related, "we robbed the Smith Cafe

WOMAN KISSES HITLER AFTER HE GIVES AUTOGRAPH

Olympics Crowd Delighted, Chancellor Embarrassed, by Spectator's Exploit.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—The "Olympic kiss," which a woman spectator planted on Adolf Hitler's cheek during the swimming finals, after obtaining Der Fuehrer's autograph, was the talk of Berlin tonight.

The woman disappeared into the crowd, but later was reliably identified as having lived in Los Angeles. Unconfirmed reports gave her name as Carola De Vries.

She twice attempted unsuccessfully to approach Hitler, who was seated in the front row at the edge of the Olympic pool, before slipping past his Blackshirt Guards the third time. Hitler readily gave his autograph, then was startled as she leaned over the low railing and kissed him.

At first embarrassed, the bachelor Chancellor took the incident good naturedly. The aged Field Marshal von Mackensen, sitting beside Hitler, appeared to enjoy the situation.

The guards gently but firmly escorted the woman away while she waved triumphantly to the delighted crowd.

RUSSIAN FLYERS IN SIBERIA AFTER HOP FROM ALASKA

Arrival at East Cape on Flight From Teller Reported by Radio to Nome.

By the Associated Press.

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 15.—Sigismund Levanevsky and Victor Levchenko, Russian flyers, hopped from Teller, Alaska, on a short lap of their San Pedro, Cal.,-Moscow flight and landed safely at East Cape, Siberia, at 9:25 a. m. today, a radio message received here said.

In their one-hour flight across Bering Strait the Russians jumped ahead into Sunday, crossing the international dateline which bisects the strait and curves around the Aleutian Islands. The trans-Bering hop today was about 100 miles from the new world to the old.

TWO SHIPS DRIVEN ASHORE IN PHILIPPINE TYPHOON

Second in Week Strikes Northern Luzon; Seven Lost Lives in Previous Storm.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 16 (Sunday)—The weather bureau announced today a severe typhoon swept over Northern Luzon Island late last night severing communications with the stricken region.

Calls for help were received early in the storm from two ships driven aground. The storm was reported to be moving at high speed into the China Sea.

The vessels driven ashore are the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey ship Fathomer, carrying 43 officers and men and the Tewated.

This is the second typhoon in the area within a week. Seven persons were drowned in the Cayagan River valley in the first storm.

FRANCE FAVORS GREATER POWERS FOR THE LEAGUE

Thinks It Should Be Strengthened to Institute Preventive Action Against War.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Aug. 15.—France tonight expressed the belief the League of Nations should be endowed with greater powers to institute preventive action against war. There should be no sacrifice of any of the central principles of the league, Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos asserted in an official communication of France's view. The basic principle of "responsibility and collective action" should be adhered to vigorously, he said.

Amendment of the league's covenant to achieve this would not be necessary, Deblos held.

STAMP MIX-UP IN RUSSIA

Detested Poet of Same Name Honored Instead of Revolutionary.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Aug. 15.—A mix-up in postage stamps, regarded as little short of a scandal, was disclosed today.

A stamp commemorating the 100th anniversary of the birth of Nicolai Dobroliuboff, famed in Russia as a revolutionary journalist and critic, was issued bearing the name of Alexander Dobroliuboff, a mystical religious poet detested by Communists.

TWO KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Pilot and 14-Year-Old Boy Victims at Birmingham, Ala.

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 15.—A 10-minute pleasure trip in a friend's airplane ended fatally today for a 14-year-old boy and the plane's owner when it crashed at Central Park airport.

Frank Hamlin, the boy, died in a hospital two hours after the plane piloted by Fred McQueen fell as McQueen was preparing to land. McQueen was dead on arrival at the hospital.

COUGHLIN'S UNION BACKS LEMKE; ONE DISSENTER JEERED

He Stands Ground, Tells Convention It Has Been Tricked by Hearst and Liberty League.

PRIEST DENIES IT, PRAISES AL SMITH

Pastor Maintains Complete Control of Organization, Promises 'I Will Never Sell You Out.'

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 15.—The National Union for Social Justice formally named the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin of Detroit its first president late today and indorsed Representative William Lemke of North Dakota and Thomas C. O'Brien, candidates for the new Union party for President and Vice-President. The election of the Detroit priest was made quietly by acclamation.

Father Coughlin maintained complete control of the organization under a constitution adopted today. He appoints the nominating committee whose choices for other officers are final. Father Coughlin, immediately after his election, appointed a nominating committee of 23 members to name candidates for secretary, treasurer and the board of trustees.

In an election address, Father Coughlin said, "I realize the responsibility which is mine—primarily, the responsibility of a teacher because I disagree with many practices of the present civilization."

"Never Will Sell You Out."

"I will never turn my back on you and I will never sell you out," he said. "We will succeed, not necessarily in driving the money changers from the temple, but in driving the money changers' servants from the temple."

Father Coughlin then introduced Dr. Francis E. Townsend, founder of the old age pension plan, and the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, lieutenant of the late Senator Huey P. Long, to address the convention.

Father Coughlin composed protests against the appearance of the speakers by ruling they would not speak at a regular session but at a recess meeting; the recess meeting followed immediately.

Dr. Townsend said: "I heartily concur in all the points of the platform enunciated by you people. I also approve of the governmental changes advocated by William Lemke and those advocated by the late Huey Long. As an American citizen I'm going to announced until the polls close in November that I protest against the form of government we have in this administration."

Smith, former Louisiana pastor, advised the crowd, "You sit and take it, and I'll pour it to you."

He then declared, "The go-to-meeting, sod-busting and God-fearing people are about to take over the Government of the United States."

Loud "No" Mars Harmony.

A loud "no" above the roaring indorsement for Lemke, plunged the convention into a turbulent session. John H. O'Donnell of the Twenty-third Pennsylvania District shouted the only dissent when the convention went on record, amid cheering and shouting, for Lemke and Thomas C. O'Brien.

O'Donnell's action brought jeers and heckling. Police formed an escort for him as he left the convention.

Chairman Sylvester V. McMahon, questioning whether the "no" came from a delegate, called for a second vote on the resolution to indorse the Lemke-O'Brien ticket. Again O'Donnell cried "no."

To an accompaniment of jeers, he was escorted to the platform for examination of his credentials. They were found to be satisfactory and Chairman McMahon sought to permit O'Donnell to address the delegates, saying "this is a Democratic convention. We will hear Mr. O'Donnell."

Booing drowned out McMahon's voice. He finally restored order and gave the floor to O'Donnell.

"We have witnessed a remarkable demonstration of mob psychology here today," O'Donnell started.

Heckling interrupted him. Finally the audience quieted and he said: "This convention could have been a success except for the trickery of Hearst and the American Liberty League, which this convention is humbly and ignorantly following."

1200 REBELS REPORTED HELD ON SHIP READY TO BE BLASTED

Refugees From Santander Say Loyalists Await Shelling of San Sebastian as Signal.

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, France, Aug. 15.—Loyalists at Santander have imprisoned 1200 Fascists in two ships laden with dynamite, ready to be blown up at any moment, refugees asserted here tonight.

The explosives were planted in vital points throughout the ship, the ship, the refugees said, with electric wires by which they could be set off running to shore.

Seven hundred hostages have been held for some time on one of the prison ships, and it was asserted here that new arrests had increased the number.

The signal for blowing up the prison ships, it was asserted, would be the first shell from the rebel cruiser Almirante Cervera, stationed off San Sebastian.

PLANES, SAID TO BE FOR REBELS IN SPAIN, DOWN IN FRANCE

One Crashes and Burns; Two Others Held by Police; Fourth Flies On.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 15.—Three of four British-owned Fokker planes which aviation authorities said they thought were on their way to Burgos, Spain, for delivery to the Fascist rebels were reported forced down tonight in France.

One crashed in flames at Biarritz, in southern France near the Spanish border. Airport authorities extracted two charred bodies from the wreckage of the 15-passenger plane. A second plane, with only a pilot aboard, was forced down by fog at La Rochelle, on the west coast. The pilot, who said he was a Polish subject, on his way to Portugal was held for questioning. A third plane was reported to have landed in bad weather near Bordeaux.

The fourth was thought to have attempted to cross the Pyrenees mountains, on the Spanish border, in fog and a storm.

FORMER ST. LOUISAN AND 37 BRITONS ESCAPE IN SPAIN

Group Held as Hostages in Huelva Province Now Believed to Be Safe.

By the Associated Press.

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 15. — An American, J. O. Ambler, a former St. Louisan, and 37 British subjects held as hostages were believed safe tonight after escape from Loyalists in Huelva Province, Southern Spain.

Rescue of the group, held at the Rio Tinto mines, was reported today, but the information did not relate by what means the escape was effected.

The British Government earlier had made tentative plans to send British sailors to the mine, threatened by approach of rebel troops.

Ambler of Montana and San Antonio, Tex., is consultant in the smelting department of the mine.

3,547,000 IN A. F. OF L.

1,421,000 More Than Three Years Ago, Secretary Announces.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Frank Morrison secretary of the American Federation of Labor, reported today that the Federation's membership last month was 3,547,858.

Morrison said this was a gain of 1,421,062 over the average membership for the year ended Aug. 31, 1933.

SHOWERS, HIGH WIND IN CITY AND COUNTY

15-Minute Downpour Downtown — Scattered Damage to Trees Reported.

Sheets of water, driven by gusts of wind, swept over downtown streets for 15 minutes last night when a thunder-shower nightcapped the hottest day of the season's third heat wave, reducing the temperature by 5 degrees. The temperature had reached 104 at 4:30 p. m.

The rain, moving from the west, briefly refreshed most parts of St. Louis County before it got to the city. Most of the county towns reported that the rainfall began about 9 o'clock, while in central St. Louis the time of starting was 9:25. A milder rain, following the first torrential one, lasted nearly a half hour.

Ferguson, University City, Clayton, Richmond Heights and Overland had heavy to violent storms, Webster Groves and Maplewood had less spectacular showers and Kirkwood, Valley Park and Allenton reported no rain. At Des Peres, west of Kirkwood, rain came just in time to put out grass fires which were threatening dwellings.

Neighborhoods of North and South St. Louis and one West End region made reports to police of trees blown down. Poles and wires were down in a few localities, one being the switching tract on Destrehan street, east of North Broadway.

The performance of "Bitter Sweet" at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park was delayed for half an hour by the rain, which began falling at 9:20 p. m. There were 8100 persons in the audience. No performance has been canceled on acconut of rain so far this season. The third act last night, however, was played during a light but steady drizzle.

At Lambert-St. Louis Field Airport the rainfall was .1 of an inch. The rain was not so heavy there as it was downtown. The Weather Bureau heard of showers chiefly in Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas. Kansas City had .12 inch and Jefferson City .53.

The rain fulfilled yesterday's official prediction of "scattered thunder-showers." Today's prediction makes no mention of any further precipitation, "generally fair" being its theme.

HOPE GIVEN UP FOR 31 ON SHIP

Oranaise Smashed by Waterspout Off Coast of Algeria.

By the Associated Press.

ALGIERS, Algeria, Aug. 15.—Hope for the rescue of 10 passengers and 21 seamen who were aboard the steamship, Oranaise, when it sank last night off Algeria, was abandoned tonight.

Two survivors of the crew said the vessel, which once was called the Westmoreland, was smashed by "an enormous waterspout" and sank rapidly.

LEFTIST REFUGEES CROSS INTO FRANCE

Madrid Government Confiscates Major Industries for Labor—Seeks to Halt Flight of Capital by Barring Deals.

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, France, Aug. 15.—Advancing Spanish rebels tonight occupied Endarlaza, gateway to the Northern Spanish city of Irun, after long, furious fighting.

They stopped, however, before the town of Behobia, which is on the outskirts of Irun. First reports coming across the border had said they seized Behobia, but it was learned they had halted between Endarlaza and Behobia.

Government forces battling desperately in the Northern mountains sent an armored train to cut off the stream of Leftist refugees going toward France. Hundreds already had crossed the international bridge into this French border city.

The long rebel campaign to smash Government resistance around Irun was culminated in a drive by 1500 rebels who won a day-long battle. At least 50 were killed and 100 were reported wounded on both sides.

Attack in Rainstorm.

The rebels launched their second attack during the evening under cover of a heavy thunderstorm. The Leftists were routed from the gorge at Endarlaza Pass.

They retreated from the positions gained earlier in a disorderly route with rebel infantry pursuing them down the highway along the Bidasoa river.

Government leaders attempted a vain counter-attack on the outskirts of Behobia. They were driven back.

About midnight Government leaders admitted rebels were encamped near the city's outskirts. While men and women members of the Popular Front militia prepared to man street barricades constructed weeks ago against the apparent long siege which awaited the city, other inhabitants gathered their possessions and fled.

Some Flee to France.

Some hurried westward toward San Sebastian where the Leftists were fighting off a rebel attack on Renteria. Others sought safety by crossing the international bridge into France.

Frontier police, aided by mobile guardsmen who had been posted on the border in anticipation of just such a rout, permitted only a few hundred to cross.

French police said the fleeing Spaniards would be granted temporary refuge in France provided they remained south of Bordeaux.

Some of a group of 42 refugees who reached here aboard the Italian freighter Giorgio Ohlsen said many casualties were suffered in the loyalist-held city of Gijon which rebels bombarded. They related reports that Leftists at Gijon had shot many suspected Rightists whom they held prisoner.

The onslaught was the second of major proportions which rebels launched during the week in their determination to break the Loyalist grip of the Biscay seacoast.

San Sebastian streets were damaged by heavy aerial bombardment in the previous encounter. A rebel cruiser hove to and threatened to shell the city. Loyalists replied by threatening execution of 700 Fascist hostages. Whether today's battle led to the threatened execution was not ascertained.

EARLY SPEECHES INDICATE DODGING OF REAL ISSUES IN THE CAMPAIGN

Roosevelt's Pledge of No New Taxes, Ickes' Magazine Story and Knox' Juggling of Figures Point the Way.

VOTER'S TASK IS TO LEARN TRUTH

Stage Being Set by Party Workers for Real Shows, Which Will Not Start, as Usual, Until After Labor Day.

By RAYMOND BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 15.—Almost two months have passed since the national conventions and the real presidential campaign has not yet started. Despite President Roosevelt's trips to the flood and drouth regions and Gov. Alf M. Landon's forthcoming speeches in Pennsylvania and New York, it will not start, as usual, until after Labor day.

Behind the scenes, however, the party workers, an increasing number of them professionals, are writing the script, dressing the stage, coaching the actors and preparing the publicity barrage for the two rival shows that will appeal to the voters for support at the ballot box applause machine on Nov. 3.

Before Landon was nominated by the Republicans, Democratic Chairman James A. Farley declared that the 1936 campaign would be one of the "dirtiest" on record, which caused considerable alarm to those who remembered 1928. The preliminary political sketches by Col. Frank Knox, Chairman John Hamilton, Farley and the lesser political fry of speakers and writers have been sufficient to indicate that the real quadrennial shows this year, more than usual, will include the toying with truth, distorting and ignoring facts, dodging of real issues and the surreptitious slinging of campaign mud. With so many complicated and easily debatable measures to be attacked and defended this year, it will be extremely difficult for the voter to discern what is and is not true.

The Tax Amendment.

Three events this week illustrate this. Seemingly the most transparent was Roosevelt's hurried conference with Chairmen Harrison and Doughton of the Senate and House Tax Committees together with Treasury officials, after which it was announced that no increases in taxes were contemplated at the coming session of Congress. At first glance, this meeting was sheer political buncombe designed to reassure business five months before the drafting of the budget that business had nothing to fear from the New Deal.

After studying the statements of officials attending the conference, several tax experts in Washington now insist that it was a confession that many phases of last year's tax bill have proved unworkable and must be revised. Party leaders, however, can be counted on to take the first view—that Roosevelt intends to make no more assaults on business profits.

Ickes' Magazine Story.

A second example of political evasion was Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes' article in the Saturday Evening Post defending Roosevelt and the New Deal. The biggest flop of the administration, the unconstitutional National Industrial Recovery Act, was not mentioned once by name, nor was any specific defense attempted.

The third example of political distortion was Knox's speech in West Virginia in which he juggled 1929, 1932 and 1935 statistics so adroitly that it would take several columns of type to give the true picture. Typical of this political hokum was his statement that food prices have increased about 20 per cent since 1932. He did not tell about 30-cent wheat and the burning of corn for fuel. Likewise he said there were 12,000,000 owners of corporate shares in this country. Unless there is trick figuring some place in this calculation there has been a great increase since 1929, when official and independent investigations put the number between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000.

Interest in Primaries.

Other interesting developments of the week were the Republican and Democratic primaries, which incidentally disclosed that the Townsend-Coughlin bugaboo has been greatly deflated since spring, although a Townsendite, C. O. Andrews, won the Democratic Senatorial nomination in Florida over former Gov. Doyle E. Carlton, who was supposed to be a vote-getter. Florida, like California, has become a haven of retired folk who saw their incomes greatly decreased or wiped out by the depression.

The Idaho primary indicated that Senator William E. Borah will have the fight of his life this year, so intense, in fact, that he may be virtually lost to the Landon campaign, if he had any intention of helping it along. The Democrats may come to his rescue on personal grounds and because they think he should continue in the Senate. Farley has a warm spot in his heart for the venerable Senator because he, with Johnson of California and Shipstead of Minnesota, voted against a resolution for an investigation of Farley's dual activities as Postmaster-General and Democratic chairman. Ben Ross, his Democratic opponent, has been elected Governor three times and is appealing for votes on the platform that the Senator from Idaho should look after the interests of Idaho and not become a world figure.

Stories of G. O. P. Friction.

Old-time politicians returning to Washington from visits to the Republican campaign headquarters in Chicago have heartened the Democrats by their tales of disorganization in the Landon camp. Hamilton and the advertising experts come in for the greatest criticism from these old-line politicians, who want the campaign conducted on the old Mark Hanna tactics. The latest word from Chicago is to the effect that the personal jealousies and grand strategies have at last been worked out and that harmony now prevails.

The latest reports indicate that newer elements in the party have prevailed on Landon that victory will come to the Republicans if they can make those who have jobs tax-conscious and fearful that they will lose their economic security. To this end, they have planned radio features—with entertainment, which will dramatize—with poetic license—the cost of a pound of pork chops, including taxes, and other necessaries of life. Meanwhile, the Old Guard will be permitted to carry on in the orthodox way, with red fire, stump speeches and the usual speakers' bureau and publicity campaigns.

The Democrats have the advantage of political personnel that worked in their successful campaign of 1932, aided of course, by the Governmental press agents who submit their ideas through the White House press secretary, Steve Early. If the Democrats lose, it won't be through lack of organization, and if the Republicans lose, they might well attribute it to lack of national and local co-operation.

PLAYWRIGHT IN MARY ASTOR CASE TURNS UP IN NEW YORK

George S. Kaufman Says She Is Still His Friend; Judge Repeats Jail Threat.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—George S. Kaufman, the playwright whose name was linked romantically with Mary Astor in the Astor-Thorpe child custody case, said tonight "the case doesn't change my attitude toward Miss Astor—she is still a friend."

He said he left Los Angeles Saturday night, arrived here Wednesday and stayed with friends until last night, when he returned to his home.

He declined to comment on his failure to answer a subpena in Miss Astor's suit against her former husband, Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, except to say he did not "run away or board anybody's yacht."

"I stayed in Hollywood at the home of my friend, Moss Hart."

Informed that the playwright had reappeared, Judge Knight in Los Angeles declared:

"Mr. George Kaufman had better have a very good excuse for leaving California." He repeated his threat of a jail sentence against Kaufman.

Kaufman told reporters he had been "miserably unhappy" about the case, and added: "I agree with Dr. Thorpe that the sooner it's forgotten the better."

CONVICT ADMITS KILLING FOR WHICH DOCTOR GOT LIFE

in Rich Hill, Mo. The next night we drove to a farmhouse west of Foster, where some people by the name of Smith lived, and robbed that, taking something over $200.

"We were caught the same evening and taken to the Bates County Jail in Butler." He said he and one other were sentenced to 25 years and the third man to 12.

Bunch said he was making the statement "because Mr. Scott has always been good to me. * * * Just how he knew about this I will probably never know, but he asked me about it and I couldn't tell him I didn't know after the kindness he showed me. I am making this statement with full knowledge that it means life in the Kansas Penitentiary for me if I am prosecuted."

Doctor Twice Convicted; Unusual Circumstances of Crime.

By the Associated Press.

OLATHE, Kan., Aug. 15.—Dr. S. Oliver Netherton, then in his early 60s, was twice convicted of the murder of his 32-year-old wife. The first trial was held here in May, 1928, a few months after Mrs. Netherton was shot. The State Supreme Court reversed this verdict and sent the case back for second trial, which was moved to Lawrence on a change of venue. Again a jury convicted Dr. Netherton, this time in 1930, and he was given a life sentence—the maximum in Kansas at that time for first-degree murder.

A telephone call to the office of Sheriff E. G. Carroll from the Netherton home, a mile from here on the morning of Feb. 14, 1928, gave the first word of the crime. Dr. Netherton, a retired physician and fruit farmer, told Carroll his home had been entered.

A few minutes later Dr. Netherton again called the Shreiff and said he had just found the body of his wife, soon to become a mother for the second time, on the basement floor.

Offered Alibi.

Dr. Netherton told the sheriff he had left for Olathe about 10:30 and returned at noon to find his wife, who had been making berry-boxes in the basement, dead on the floor, a bullet wound in her left temple. Previously, he said, she had told him of refusing to give breakfast to a tramp, and said that the tramp seemed surly.

Their child, Dorothy Netherton, then 8 years old, was at school when her mother was killed. A hired man was working on another farm.

Sheriff Carroll obtained bloodhounds. They left the body, circled the house, and returned to Netherton, the Sheriff testified.

Authorities discovered Mrs. Netherton had inherited a fortune estimated at $90,000 from her mother, Mrs. Awilda Strahl of Independence, Missouri.

Dorothy, the girl, told of a quarrel between her mother and father over cattle buying.

The Sheriff was unable to find the tramp who had visited the Netherton home, or any neighbors who had seen him.

Throughout his two trials he remained calm, insisting that a tramp had killed his wife.

Born near Gallatin, Mo., Dr. Netherton was educated at the University of Kansas—which his wife also attended—and the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia.

He practiced for a time at San Francisco, served as a ship's physician many years, then retired, married, and bought a fruit farm near Oleathe.

Doctor Informed of Confession; Not Allowed to Make Statement.

LANSING, Kan., Aug. 15.—Deputy Warden E. M. Stubblefield of the Kansas State Prison said tonight that Dr. S. Oliver Netherton seemed "elated" when told that Charles Bunch, convict in the Missouri Prison, had confessed the crime for which he was serving a life sentence.

Stubblefield said Dr. Netherton was not allowed to make a statement, "although he started to say something when I told him of the report." The warden said the prisoner was called in from the prison farm to hear of the confession. Stubblefield said he had expected Warden Sanders of the Missouri Prison to come to Lansing today, but that he had not arrived and that no statement would be made until they conferred.

BRITAIN, FRANCE ACCEPT EMBARGO ON ARMS TO SPAIN

England Delays Issuing Actual Order Pending Assent of Germany, Italy, Portugal and Russia.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Great Britain tonight announced complete accord with France on a Spanish arms embargo but delayed the actual order, saying it would be issued when the assent of Germany, Italy, Portugal and Russia to the agreement was received.

"Maintenance of a strict, impartial attitude of non-intervention is essential if the unhappy events in Spain are to be prevented from having serious repercussions elsewhere," the foreign office announced in a communique.

Notes agreeing to forbid the shipment of arms and munitions, were signed by French and British diplomats in Paris today.

The Foreign Office pointed out that final replies to the neutrality plan had not been received from Germany or Italy and asserted "we are today again urgently supporting the French Government's representations to Rome."

The statement said Russia's attitude was understood to be favorable and that Portugal had accepted the agreement in principle.

Portugal's reservations of the right to take any steps necessary to defend its independence and prevent border invasions were made known here almost simultaneously with word that Portugal was protesting to Madrid over frontier violations by Spanish Loyalists.

French Efforts for Neutrality Apparently Reach Stalemate.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 15.—French efforts to align the European Powers in an agreement to keep hands off the Spanish civil war appeared stalemated tonight by the attitude of several, notably Portugal. The Lisbon Government regarded a neutrality accord valueless without guarantees of its "strictest application by all Powers with a spirit of absolute impartiality," and demands that the rest of Europe condemn "mass assassinations."

Germany, Italy and Russia also have withheld agreement to a neutrality pact, although approving its purpose, demanding assurances it would be strictly observed.

Notes establishing an accord between France and Great Britain on the text of the neutrality agreement were exchanged today between Paris and London, the Quay D'Orsay announced. The agreement would become binding, however, only after Germany, Italy, Russia and Portugal abided by it.

(The agreement would prohibit exports of arms and munitions to the Spanish belligerents, the British Foreign Office said at London.)

Yvon Delbos, French Foreign Minister, and Hugh Lloyd Thomas, British Charge D'Affaires, discussed the shipment of British planes to Spain after six had left Le Bourget airport for that country.

The French Foreign Office was encouraged somewhat by replies from Ireland, Bulgaria and Greece adhering to the policy in principle.

Berlin advices represented the Reich as hesitant to commit itself because of "changing conditions" in Spain. Some quarters believed it was awaiting a satisfactory response from Madrid on the seizure of German planes and indemnities for four Germans reported killed by Government troops at Barcelona.

SPANISH REBELS NEAR IRUN GATES, ATTACK IN STORM

buying, selling or lending of securities and barred transfer of real estate. The decree was applied to Spaniards both within and without Spain.

The objective was to prevent members of the onetime nobility and rebles from liquidating their holdings for cash that might be used to purchase arms.

The new step toward socialization was part of the program of the liberal government that led to the rebellion. President Manuel Azana proclaimed a liberal government for worker and peasantry when he took office in April. Many leaders of the army, who favored a Fascist army; monarchists who sought the return of former King Alphonso; industrialists who wished a highly capitalistic state, formed the opposition.

The result was rebellion, now in its 29th day of bitter conflict and with neither side making any apparent gain that might point an end to the civil war.

Execution of seven officers charged with resisting Government advances in San Sebastian was recorded in a loyalist newspaper.

The Madrid War Ministry claimed slow advances against southern rebel sectors in Granada and on the north in Zaragoza Province. Government activity in these sectors was bent on crushing the two rebel armies marching against Madrid—that of southern leader Francisco Franco and the northern force of Emilio Mola.

Rebel headquarters at Burgos announced a Government advance on the Guadarrama front northwest of Madrid, was repulsed after a hard-fought engagement in which loyal troops suffered heavy losses.

Rebel leaders said the Government aimed to cut through the insurgent lines between Siguenza and the northern boundary of Estremadura province.

Madrid Outwardly Calm; Most of Normal Activities Resumed.

HENDAYE, France, Aug. 15.—Uncensored reports from Madrid today said the city was in fear of a new reign of terror should it be taken by the rebels.

Safe from attack for the time being, its inhabitants have resumed most of their normal activities.

Life is comparatively safe, even for the thousands of known aristocrats and others unsympathetic to the Socialist government. Class distinctions are concealed, at least superficially. Mingling with unshaven, shabbily dressed street crowds are occasional women in stylish dress.

Few shops remain closed. Butter, fish and some fruits are the only prime commodities which are scarce.

Broken street lamps have been removed, traffic light standards have been repaired, and the debris left by the outbreak of the revolt four weeks ago has been virtually cleaned up.

Armed militiamen, however, are everywhere.

Crowds of anxious relatives besiege the confiscated hotels serving as casualty hospitals. Long queues still wait outside food and tobacco stores.

Railway travel is almost impossible, except to the East coast and to a few points within easy reach of the capital.

Families with relatives in the provinces cannot communicate with them because private use of all telephone and telegraph facilities has been suspended indefinitely. Mail reaches only such points as are directly controlled by the Madrid government.

Newspapers, day after day, are permitted to publish only such reports of the revolution as that the cities of Cordova, Seville or Zaragoza are "on the point of surrendering to the Loyalist forces."

PORTUGUESE GUARDS FIRE ON LOYALISTS

LIBSON, Jortugal, Aug. 15.—Portuguese border guards fired on Spanish government troops today in the third encounter in 24 hours, and the Foreign Ministry expressed fear this nation might be drawn into the civil war.

The encounter resulted, the Portugal Government said, when Spanish loyalists crossed the frontier to recapture two bus-loads of bombs allegedly seized by customs guards.

The Spaniards fled when gunfire greeted their sally.

The incident, coupled with Portugal's protest on an asserted massacre and destruction of property by Spanish loyalists, added new problems to France's efforts to assure neutrality of European powers.

The government, in its note accepting the French neutrality proposal, added fear of entanglement because of the nearness of the civil war to its own borders.

Rescued American Tells Of Siege of Granada

Robert Neville and Companions Marooned Since July 18, Taken to Seville in Rebels' Plane

By ROBERT NEVILLE.
(Copyright, 1936.)

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 14.—The group of Americans, including this correspondent, who were stranded in besieged Granada, only at last to fly to less beleaguered territory in an armed German Junkers plane operated by the Spanish rebels, had the opportunity of watching the military coup d'etate in the city at close range and seeing the first measures taken by the Fascist Government there.

(Neville and his companions were marooned at Granada by the outbreak of the Spanish civil war on July 18. Two days ago, they were flown to Seville and yesterday the U. S. Oklahoma took them aboard at Cadiz. Neville is bridge editor of the New York Herald Tribune).

Most of us Americans lived in pensions and hotels on the hill of the Alhambra, overlooking Granada, and considered ourselves fairly safe, at least until the aerial bombardment of the city began. Neither the Government nor the rebels, neither the workers nor the military, we thought, would care to damage one stone of the precious Moorish palace of the Alhambra near us.

Loyalists Turn Rebels.

Some of us saw the taking over of the city by the local "Falange Espanola," a Fascist group, and a picked detail of soldiers. A few shots were fired, but mostly in the air. The armed forces, loyal up to that moment, went over to the rebels without hesitation, and when we went home to dinner that night we decided that the easiest thing in the world to accomplish was to capture a city.

At dinner, however, there was a loud explosion of shots in the Albayzin district, just under the Alhambra, and the shooting, sometimes extremely near, continued throughout the next three days.

We foreigners had the unique privilege of watching the conquest of a large part of the city while sitting in the famous Hall of the Ambassadors in the Alhambra. Cannon boomed only 100 feet from us and airplanes circled overhead, while truckloads of soldiers went through every house.

That night the district was calm again. For three days foreigners were forbidden to move off the small street up in the Alhambra, but after that we wandered over the city at will, the major inconvenience being that if we returned after 10 p. m. we might have to wake the armed guard watching at the Alhambra gates.

Hardships of Siege.

Everyone one thought the "war" would soon be over, and in the mean time we were interested in watching its progress. However, it soon began to appear as if Granada was a city under siege. The water supply was cut off for two days, and fire department trucks loaded up at springs to carry water to the houses.

No milk could be bought for two days, eggs suddenly disappeared, and fish was dropped from the menu. As time wore on we received less green vegetables and more green fruit. The bread often was sour and the usual meat diet became rabbit and chicken. When we left, the supply of tobacco was failing.

Rumors in Granada of near-by battles in the valley below were confirmed by the boom of distant cannon.

The number of executions mounted daily. The condemned men were taken in open trucks, surrounded by a firing squad, past the hotel. In a few minutes we would hear a fussilade, and soon the soldiers would return.

Bomb Kills Five at Hotel.

On Aug. 6 a bomb fell in the garden of the Washington Irving, where lived six Americans, all taking a siesta at that time. Three Spanish families of wealth and prominence had moved there when bombs landed near their houses in the city.

All three suffered casualties, but all the Americans miraculously escaped. The Americans helped remove the three wounded and five dead, one of the latter being an expectant mother, who died giving premature birth to twins which also were killed.

The city's siren warning of air raids usually blew after several bombs had dropped.

After the first two raids, the military announced that five former members of the People's Front would be shot in reprisal for each bomb dropped. After that casualties increased and the volume of the barrage grew louder.

Ten Women Killed to Every Man.

In the list of those killed by bombs it is a curious fact that there were 10 women to every man killed.

We began to feel more like prisoners and refugees as time passed. The military promised us everything, but delivered little. The authorities accepted our radio messages to the outside world, but never sent them. They took our mail, but apparently never dispatched it.

Only through the efforts of John H. Jordain, manager of the Socony Vacuum Oil Co. in Spain, were we able to communicate with the American consul at Seville. Jordain took a military airplane loaded with dynamite to Seville by permission of the latter. The plane was piloted by the French Vicomte Jacques de Sibour. The Vicomte took four of us refugees, four women, from Granada to Tangier, North Africa.

EMBASSIES IN MADRID DECIDE NOT TO CLOSE

Only German and Danish Envoys Preparing to Leave Spanish Capital.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Aug. 15.—The diplomatic corps of foreign nations conferred here today on the situation resulting from the Spanish civil war.

The American, British and French embassies indicated they had no immediate intentions of departing, but it was believed the German Embassy might be closed shortly.

The German diplomats were busy evacuating their nations as quickly as possible and indicated that when this was done they also would depart, leaving about 80 Germans in Madrid on their own responsibility.

It was explained that the Danish Minister and his staff were leaving because the Spanish Socialist Government no longer has a representative at Copenhagen.

New registrations at the American Embassy placed the number of its citizens still in Madrid at 180, with about 20 expected to leave tonight and more tomorrow.

The Italian Ambassador had authorization to close the embassy when he considered it necessary but had reached no decision.

LINDBERGHS BACK IN ENGLAND

They Fly From Copenhagen in Their Own Airplane.

LYMPNE, England, Aug. 15.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh returned to England today, flying in their own airplane from Copenhagen.

They landed here, passed through a perfunctory customs examination, and then took off for an undisclosed airport nearer London. A young mechanic in the royal air force auxiliary asked Lindbergh for his autograph. "Just one minute and I'll give you my autograph when I get back to the sihp," Lindbergh promised. He climbed in and started the engine. Then he beckoned to the mechanic, signed his book, and took off before others could approach.

HIRTH DECLARES FOR BARRETT FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Opposes Stark Because of Pendergast Backing, but Supports Rest of Democratic Ticket.

ROOSEVELT DEFEAT 'WOULD BE CALAMITY'

Beaten Primary Candidate Also Attacks O'Malley for 'Buzzard's Feast' of Fees.

William Hirth of Columbia, defeated candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, in a prepared statement issued yesterday, called on his supporters in the primary election to vote for former Attorney-General Jesse W. Barrett, Republican nominee for Governor, at the November election.

Hirth, however, urged support of the rest of the Democratic ticket, stating he "would regard the defeat of President Roosevelt as a national calamity."

In his campaign for the nomination, Hirth denounced the organization of Boss Tom Pendergast of Kansas City and attacked his opponent, Maj. Lloyd C. Stark of Louisiana, because he received the Pendergast indorsement. Barrett, likewise, is making Pendergast control the outstanding issue of his campaign against Stark.

Town and Farm.

"The overshadowing issue in our State today," Hirth said, "is not whether the leadership of the Democratic party as now constituted shall survive, but whether free and representative government shall be restored to Missouri. There is no greater treason than that which tramples under foot the sanctity of the ballot.

"As to the suggestion that Maj. Stark can be his own man after what happened before and during the primary," Hirth continued, "is not this a phantom hope that only the most unsophisticated will indulge? Can a candidate be the beneficiary of fraud and then consistently wage war on fraud? Can the people expect more from Stark than from Park, who was an outstanding Circuit Judge when he assumed the Governorship in 1933?

"Even political bosses are worthy of their hire, and none so ruthless in demanding it."

"Since the great City of St. Louis has joined hands with the Kansas City machine and with little Pendergast machines in every county, has the prospect of fair treatment in State affairs ever looked so gloomy for our farmers and other rural folks, and should we not forget party lines in putting down this menace?

"Since, apparently, we cannot clean house within the Democratic party, we must turn to the only other means at hand. Confronted with a situation so profoundly grave, I hereby declare my intention to vote for Jesse W. Barrett, the Republican candidate for Governor, in the forthcoming November election, and I urge those who voted for me in the recent primary to do likewise.

Support for Roosevelt.

"Meanwhile, being a lifelong Democrat, I shall support the remainder of the Democratic ticket with whatever influence I possess. I would regard the defeat of President Roosevelt for re-election as a national calamity, for this would mean the return of the reactionary forces which are primarily responsible for our country's economic collapse. Therefore, I place my services at the disposal of the Democratic National Committee in this and other states as I have done in the past.

"The various Democratic candidates for State office are able and clean men, and if, through the election of Mr. Barrett, the machine can be destroyed, they will render efficient and conscientious service. Therefore, I shall do what I can for their election and I hope my friends will pursue a similar course."

Hirth charged that "thousands of fraudulent votes were cast for Maj. Stark" and that "thousands of my votes were not counted." In Kansas City and Jackson County, it was pointed out, Maj. Stark received a vote of 29 to one, while in the adjoining county of Clay, in which Hirth said he did not set foot during the campaign, the Stark vote was slightly more than two to one.

"With reference to the shameful methods that were employed in Kansas City," Hirth continued, "I quote Congressman Shannon and other leading Democrats, whose verdict on the night of the primary was: 'It was so corrupt that it was a disgrace to our American civilization.'

"And, had it not been for the newspapers, nearly 50,000 ghost votes would have been counted for Maj. Stark in St. Louis.

"The simple truth is that the Democratic party, which in years gone by made Missouri one of the best governed states in the Union, has been appropriated by the most conscienceless gang of political spoilsmen and racketeers that ever obtained control of any state."

Attack on O'Malley.

Hirth's statement also attacked State Superintendent of Insurance R. Emmett O'Malley for the "buzzards' feast which the machine lawyers obtained" from fire insurance premiums impounded during settlement of rate litigation, and for his efforts to collect taxes which O'Malley claims should have been paid by fraternal insurance societies. At one point Hirth referred to the "recent capture of the State Highway Department by the machine."

Indorsement of Barrett, Hirth said, followed a pledge by the Republican candidate that he would name "outstanding citizens" as election commissioners for St. Louis and Kansas City and police commissioners for St. Louis and that Barrett would consult him "and other citizens interested in fair and honest elections" in connection with the appointments.

Barrett also agreed, Hirth said, to bring about reorganization of State and local governments to reduce taxes, to support changes in election laws to make punishment for frauds more certain and more severe, to name State Highway Commissioners "sympathetic with construction of all-weather farm roads," and to recommend to the Legislature a tax on chain stores.

Vote in the Primary.

Hirth, for many years president of the Missouri Farmers' Association, was defeated by Maj. Stark by about 350,000 votes, 248,288 of this majority coming from Jackson County (Kansas City) and St. Louis. Jackson County gave Maj. Stark a majority of 160,186, the largest ever received by any candidate there. The vote was 165,946 to 5760. In St. Louis Hirth received 24,380 and Maj. Stark, 112,482, a majority of 88,102. Hirth carried 19 counties.

More than 700,000 votes were cast in the Democratic primary, Maj. Stark receiving about 525,000 and Hirth about 175,000. The Republican primary vote was slightly in excess of 300,000, of which Barrett received about 230,000.

PROSECUTOR ANDERSON AT HIS OFFICE AGAIN

Out of Hospital, Where Recurrence of Leg Infection Kept Him for Two Weeks.

Prosecuting Attorney C. Arthur Anderson of St. Louis County returned to his office yesterday after an absence of nearly two weeks, during which he was at Missouri Baptist Hospital suffering from a recurrence of infection in an old leg injury. He left the hospital last Monday.

His left leg became infected as the result of a fracture when an assault was made on him in October, 1934, by persons driving a large automobile which forced his car into a ditch and wrecked it.

While in the hospital on primary election day, Aug. 4, Anderson won the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Twelfth St. Louis District, which includes all of St. Louis County, five South St. Louis wards and 19 precincts of the Twenty-eighth Ward in St. Louis. He said yesterday that he would begin his campaign for election next month. His Republican opponent is Harry P. Rosecan, former Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis.

WOMAN PLUNGES TO DEATH FROM THIRD-STORY WINDOW

Mrs. Ruth Craig, 36, Ill and Unable to Pay Rent, Lost Job Month Ago.

The body of Mrs. Ruth Craig, 36 years old, was found early yesterday in an areaway outside a rooming house at 2344 Park avenue, where she resided. She apparently had plunged from a third floor window.

The body was found after a dog belonging to Mrs. Louise Kastner, the rooming house proprietor, attracted attention by barking. Mrs. Craig had lived there three months. She was unable to pay her room rent when it was due last Thursday and had promised to pay it yesterday, Mrs. Kastner said.

A sister, Mrs. Marie Vogel, 1807A Arsenal, told police Mrs. Craig had been ill for some time and lost her job a month ago. She said her sister was separated from her husband, Louis Craig, who is in Colorado looking for work.

MRS. GLORIA VANDERBILT WINS CLAIM FOR $100,000

Court Directs Payment of Legacy She Says Sister-in-Law, Mrs. Whitney, Withholds.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt's application for immediate payment of a $100,000 legacy she charged was being withheld by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Gertrude Whitney, was granted today by Surrogate James A. Foley.

The legacy was left to Mrs. Vanderbilt by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Alice Gwynne Vanderbilt. Mrs. Whitney and her brother, Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt, children of Mrs. Alice Vanderbilt and executors of her estate, had contended Mrs. Vanderbilt had no right to sue for payment of the legacy because she had pledged it as collateral on loans totaling $50,000 from the Guaranty Trust Co.

Mrs. Whitney obtained principal custody of Mrs. Vanderbilt's 12-year-old daughter a year ago.

Mountain Fever Death in Illinois.

By the Associated Press.

CHESTER, Ill., Aug. 15.—Rocky mountain spotted fever caused the death today of James Ling, 46-year-old farmer of Ellis Grove, who became ill after working in a harvest field. According to Dr. W. H. Tucker of the state health department, only four persons in Illinois are known to have suffered from the disease, and Ling's death was the first.

BALLARD WILL SUIT WITNESS TELLS OF $250,000 RUG GIFT

Dr. Louis H. Behrens Testifies for Estate in Action of Testator's Grandson to Void Testament.

How James F. Ballard, medicine manufacturer, made an immediate gift of Oriental rugs having an estimated value of $250,000 to the City Art Museum instead of postponing the donataion until he died was told yesterday in a deposition filed in Circuit Court in the suit of his grandson, James Ballard III, 19 years old, to set aside his will. The deposition was by Dr. Louis H. Behrens, who said Ballard acted in the matter of the gift after he called it to his attention.

The doctor was a witness for the estate, giving testimony in opposition to allegations that the testator by reason of illness was not mentally capable of making a legal will.

The will was dated Jan. 24, 1929, with a codicil April 23 of the same year, when Ballard was a patient in Jewish Hospital undergoing treatment for a tropical ailment said to have been contracted in the Orient when he was in search of rare rugs, of which he was a collector. He died in April, 1931.

Dr. Behrens, one of Ballard's physicians, testified that the patient's mind was rational during the period when the will and codicil were made .and he was able to transact business. He spoke interestingly of various types of rugs. the physician said, and remarked he had given a large collection of rugs to the Metropolitan Art Museum in New York City.

Gift to Local Museum.

"I mentioned," said Dr. Behrens, "that we have a nice museum here. Mr. Ballard replied he intended to remember it with 70 or 80 rugs, some of much rarer type than those donated to the New York Museum. I asked when he intended to present them, to which he replied: 'Oh, I have arranged for that.' I told him he should have the glory while living of doing those things, and asked, 'Why not do it now?' The next day or so, the newspapers were full of Mr. Ballard's gift."

Dr. Behrens said the date of this conversation was about April 10, 1929. The original will provided that the collection of rugs was to be sold by the trustees, but the codicil set forth that the testator had made other disposition of it by gift.

By the terms of the will and codicil, there was an outright gift of $2500 to the plaintiff, in addition to a $25,000 trust fund, which he is not to receive until he reaches the age of 33. The will made a few bequests to friends and left $5000 to the Missouri Historical Society. Two daughters, Miss Berenice Ballard and Mrs. David B. White, are the principal heirs, each to receive $600 a month from a trust estate created by their father. Miss Ballard and the St. Louis Union Trust Co. are the trustees. Another grandson, William J. Ballard, received $25,000 outright.

Values Holdings at $600,000.

The suit alleges that Ballard was influenced by his daughter, Miss Ballard. The value of Ballard's holdings, including property embraced in a separate trust apart from the estate, is estimated at $600,000. The grandson also is suing to void the trust so that all of the property can be administered in one estate, to which he claims a one-sixth interest.

Dr. Behrens testified he listened to a lecture at the Art Museum delivered by Ballard after he left the hospital and he made it so entertaining that the audience was reluctant to leave. The physician described him as mentally alert.

Jacob M. Lashly appeared at the deposition hearing for the defendants in the will contest,, while Harvey B. Cox and Benjamin Wolf represented the petitioner as counsel.

GRAND JURY, WITH POLL INQUIRY JUST BEGUN, RECESSES

Investigation Only 'Scratched Surface,' Says Assistant Circuit Attorney McLaughlin.

The June term grand jury, which spent 17 days investigating registration frauds exposed by the Post-Dispatch and indicted 30 persons, seven of them on felony charges punishable by five years in prison, recessed yesterday and will not meet again until Sept. 1.

The inquiry, in the words of Assistant Circuit Attorney James E. McLaughlin, "merely scratched the surface." McLaughlin said grand juries for months to come would be concerned with the fraud investigation.

The present grand jury, when it meets again, will be occupied with routine matters which must be disposed of before the jury is discharged Sept. 11, but a new grand jury will be impaneled Sept. 14 by Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood.

Circuit Attorney on Vacation.

In the final week before its recess, the grand jury was without the guidance of Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller, who departed last Monday for a three-week vacation in Michigan. It was while he was away that the felony indictments were returned, based on information which Miller had not intended to present to this grand jury.

The felony indictments named all six election officials who were in charge of the Fourteenth Precinct of the Twenty-third Ward on primary election day and also John W. (Pat) Dunlavy, chief examiner of the city's Drivers' License Bureau. Dunlavy was suspended after his indictment.

Dunlavy was charged, in three indictments, with voting fraudulently in that precinct. Prosecutor McLaughlin said the grand jury was informed he had cast 12 ballots. The precinct judges were charged with willfully omitting to challenge fraudulent voters and the precinct clerks with willfully keeping a false poll list.

Three business men whose office at 4431 Olive street was used as the precinct polling place identified Dunlavy as the man whom they had seen stuffing the ballot box.

How Evidence Developed.

Early in the afternoon of primary election day the Post-Dispatch informed Circuit Attorney Miller that C. H. Bayless and George Elliott, while at work in their office toward the rear of the store used as the polling place, had seen a man vote 11 times there, and that they were willing to appear before the grand jury and testify to that fact.

Miller, however, decided not to present the matter to the grand jury, which was in session that day. After he left on his vacation the grand jury learned of a memorandum setting out the statements of Bayless and Elliott which the Post-Dispatch had given to the Circuit Attorney's office as a matter of record. Of its own initiative, the grand jury summoned Bayless, Elliott and A. N. Kingsbury, president of the Domestic Gas Machine Co. at 4431 Olive street, it having developed that Kingsbury, too, had seen some of the fraudulent voting. The indictments followed quickly.

Elsewhere in this edition is a list of the 30 persons indicted. The grand jury's inquiry reached into 11 precincts in as many wards and indictments followed the inquiry in each of the 11 precincts.

The wards in which election officials were indicted are the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Sixteenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-third.

In every instance the precinct chosen for investigation was one in which the Post-Dispatch had exposed fraud. Post-Dispatch reporters were summoned almost daily before the grand jury to testify to facts they had gathered before the grand jury began its investigation

Thomas Kilcullen, one of the two election clerks in the Fourteenth Precinct of the Eighteenth Ward who were indicted Friday on a charge of willful neglect to canvass the precinct, was sentenced in 1927 to six months in the workhouse for automobile theft. He has been arrested frequently for investigation

List of 30 Persons Indicted In Registration Fraud Inquiry

FOLLOWING is a list of the 30 persons indicted by the grand jury which recessed yesterday with its investigation of registration frauds exposed by the Post-Dispatch not yet complete:

Felony Indictments.

John W. (Pat) Dunlavy, chief examiner of the city's Drivers' License Bureau; charged with fraudulent voting.

Richard Brownell and Sam Ketcher, Democratic election judges in the Fourteenth Precinct of the Twenty-third Ward, and Joseph Beringer Jr. and Harry Hunt, Republican judges in the same precinct; charged with willfully omitting to challenge fraudulent voters.

William Davenport, Democratic clerk, and James G. Lane, Republican clerk, in the Fourteenth Precinct of the Twenty-third Ward; charged with willfully keeping a false poll list. Davenport and Lane are charged also with willfully neglecting to canvass their precinct, a misdemeanor.

Misdemeanor Indictments.

These election clerks were indicted on charges of willfully neglecting to canvass the precinct to which they were assigned:

William Otten, Democrat, and Raymond Leslie, Republican, Tenth Precinct, Third Ward.

Harold Hancock, Democrat, and Nathan Sherman, Republican, First Precinct, Fifth Ward.

Earle Foley, Democrat, and Nathan Schnurr, Republican, First Precinct, Sixth Ward.

John Tocco, Democrat, and Raymond Shea, Republican, First Precinct, Fourth Ward.

Anton Giljum, Democrat, and Richard C. Sutton, Republican, Eighth Precinct, Seventh Ward.

James E. Murphy, Democrat, and Elmer Nesselhauf, Republican, Eighth Precinct, Twentieth Ward.

Arthur Lemmon, Democrat, and Frank Beman, Republican, Second Precinct, Second Ward.

Thomas Lyons, Democrat, and Miss Nellie Wallace, Republican, Thirteenth Precinct, Sixteenth Ward.

Edward Fisher, Democrat, and Walter Ligon, Republican, Fifteenth Precinct, Nineteenth Ward.

Thomas Kilcullen, Democrat, and Frank M. Jasinski, Fourteenth Precinct, Eighteenth Ward.

Other Misdemeanor Indictments.

Alderman Harry Israel of the Fifth Ward, operator of the Laclede Hotel, which has 338 registered voters and 200 rooms; charged with failure to file with the Board of Election Commissioners a sworn statement of the number of residents at his hotel.

Ben Greenberg, of the Laclede Hotel, saloonkeeper and boxing promoter; charged with making a false affidavit that he was Registered Voter Emil Smith, 1616 Franklin avenue.

Frank Caroncino, Democratic election judge, First Precinct, Fourth Ward, charged with willful neglect to instruct election clerks to canvass the precinct.

WARRANT FOR EX-BOOTLEGGER IN RIVER CLUBHOUSE SHOOTING

Michael Accardi Accused of Assault With Intent to Kill Woman; Still at Large.

A warrant charging assault with intent to kill was issued by Justice of the Peace Fred Barth at Clayton yesterday against Michael Accardi, former bootlegger, sought in connection with the shooting Thursday of Mrs. Mary Lee Pratt at a Meramec River clubhouse.

Accardi, 40 years old, was the central figure in an extortion case in 1934 in which Herman Tipton and other gangsters were charged with attempting to force him to pay them $2350. Tipton was acquitted and charges against the others were dismissed.

Mrs. Pratt, shot in the left thigh, was taken to St. Mary's Hospital where her condition was said to be not serious. She was quoted by authorities as saying that Accardi fired several shots through a door when she refused to leave the clubhouse with him.

MERAMEC RIVER POLLUTED; TYPHOID DANGER TO SWIMMERS

State and County Health Officers Say Stream Is Unsafe Due to Low Water.

Warning that there is danger of typhoid fever from water pollution in the Meramec River was issued yesterday by Dr. E. T. McGaugh, Missouri Health Commissioner, and Dr. Theodore R. Meyer, Health Commissioner of St. Louis County.

"At the present low stage the Meramec is not safe for swimming because of the danger from typhoid," Dr. McGaugh said.

Dr. Meyer said that while there had been no reports of the disease contracted at the stream, he thought the water was polluted and unsafe for bathing. Chemical tests are planned to determine its condition, he said.

$3200 IN FEES TO ATTORNEY IN LIQUIDATION OF BANKS

Award to R. J. Keefe on Recommendation of State Finance Commissioner.

Fees amounting to $3289.74 were awarded yesterday by Circuit Judge John W. Joynt in favor of Attorney Robert J. Keefe for special services in connection with liquidation of the Savings Trust Co. of St. Louis, the West St. Louis Trust Co and the Natural Bridge Trust Co., which were closed in January, 1933. The fees were granted on recommendation of State Finance Commissioner O. H. Moberly, who has charge of the liquidation.

In the case of the Savings Trust Co. the fee is $2791.22 for work in 20 contested suits, two appeal cases and six default hearings in court. For contested matters in the West St. Louis Trust liquidation the fee is $383.52, and in the Natural Bridge Trust Co. $115 for special services.

By agreement Keefe also receives a total monthly salary of $412.50 for acting as attorney for the three banks in routine matters.

PETITION FOR LADUE-DEER CREEK SANITARY DISTRICT

County Sewer System to Cost $435,000 to Be Obtained by PWA Grant and Bond Issue.

A petition asking for the incorporation of a Ladue-Deer Creek Sanitary Sewer District was filed yesterday in Circuit Court at Clayton. The application, which had 160 signatures, was assigned to Circuit Judge Fred E. Mueller.

Boundaries of the proposed district include the larger part of Ladue and four-fifths of the village of Deer Creek. It is said in the petition that present sewer facilities are inadequate and that new sewers must be constructed if public health is to be maintained.

Estimated cost of the improvement is $435,000, of which $195,000 will be met by a PWA grant which has been approved. It is expected that a bond issue will be submitted to meet the remainder.

SIR HENRY LYTTON, LIGHT OPERA STAR, DIES

Played 5000 Times in 'Mikado'—Noted in Gilbert and Sullivan Casts.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Sir Henry Lytton died at his home today after a long illness. He was the last member of the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company which produced the works of Gilbert and Sullivan. He was 69 years old.

He appeared in Gilbert and Sullivan productions more than 15,000 times and in 5000 performances of "The Mikado" alone.

He ran away from school when he was 17 years old to marry Louie Henri whom he saw playing in a Gilbert and Sullivan piece in a London theater. They were married while Lytton was still a student at St. Mark's College, Chelsea.

Sir Henry and Mrs. Lytton celebrated their golden wedding anniversary and his fiftieth year in the theater in 1934. Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, Henry Lytton Jr., who followed his father in the theater. Sir Henry was knighted by King George V in 1930.

Hardships of Early Career.

From a strolling, half-starved wanderer in a shabby company of countryside players, Henry Lytton became one of the most widely celebrated light opera actors. His most famous roles included Jack Point, Ko Ko, the Duke of Plaza Toro, King Gama and Sir Joseph Porter.

He appeared for the first time in the chorus of "Princess Ida" at the Royal Theater, Glasgow, Feb. 4, 1884. Later he toured with the D'Oyly Carte Company and, in 1887 was engaged at the Savoy as an understudy to the Robin Oakapple of "Ruddigore," occasionally playing the part.

He went to the United States in 1890, appearing as the Duke of Plaza Toro in "The Gondoliers" at Palmer's Theater, New York.

On his return to England he toured again with the D'Oyly Carte Players and then, until 1899, played most of the Gilbert and Sullivan Repertoire at the Savoy.

He left the Savoy briefly to become manager of the criterion but joined the Savoy company in 1907, playing with it in London and on tour. He revisited the United States in 1929.

Retired Two Years Ago.

He announced his intention to retire in June, 1932, but toured in Gilbert & Sullivan repertory until June 30, 1934, when he appeared for the last time, playing Jack Point in "The Yeoman of the Guard" at the Gaiety, London.

One of the legends about him which he admitted and relished, told how Lytton, the bridegroom of 17, took a handsome ride for a honeymoon, exhausting his capital of 40 cents. His truancy from school had been discovered and on his return the headmaster applied the birch rod to the lightweight boxing champion of St. Mark's.

"Stop it," cried Lytton. "Do you known what you're doing? You're thrashing a married man."

OVERWORKED, WOMEN CHARGE

Two informations, charging Maurice A. Steinbach with working women more than nine hours in his Salle Ann Shops, Inc., were issued yesterday by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Herman Willer.

Two former employes of Steinbach's 711 Olive street hosiery store complained that they worked longer than nine hours last March 26. They are Miss Cecile Russe, 4220 Easton avenue, and Miss Clara Kausler, 3146 Illinois avenue. An attorney, who arranged bond for Steinbach, said the women were disgruntled former employes, who made no complaint until after they had been discharged. According to the attorney, Steinbach was not in the Olive street store March 26.

SUIT CONTESTS ELECTION OF CITY COMMITTEEMAN

Filed by Nelson W. Tanner Who Was Defeated According to Official Figures by Fred W. Evers.

ALLEGES IMPROPER COUNTING OF VOTES

States 20 or More Ballots in Each of 21 Precincts Were Not Numbered in Order as Required.

A suit contesting the re-election in the Aug. 4 primary of Fred W. Evers as Republican City Committeeman of the Twenty-first Ward has been set for hearing next Thursday before Circuit Judge John W. Joynt.

The suit, the first contest in the primary, was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Nelson W. Tanner, a candidate for Evers' place on the committee, who received 1115 votes to 1264 for Evers, according to the official count. W. C. Lohmoeller, the third candidate, had 570 votes.

Tanner alleged that if the count had been made properly by judges and clerks of the election he would have been elected. He stated that in each of the 21 precincts of the ward 20 or more ballots not numbered in order, as required, were counted for Evers; that in each precinct five or more legally qualified voters were prevented from voting for Tanner by judges and clerks, who informed them they were too late, although they appeared at the polls prior to 7 p. m.; that in each precinct six or more ballots cast for Tanner were counted for Evers, and that in each precinct four or more ballots marked for Tanner were rejected as not properly marked for other candidates.

Tanner also alleged that Republican challengers and watchers in Evers' behalf were permitted to instruct illiterate and other voters to mark their ballots for Evers in the polling places; that in the Nineteenth precinct of the ward, the clerks neglected to count the ballots, but arbitrarily gave Evers 85 votes, Tanner 85 and Lohmoeller 19; that in the First precinct six persons cast their ballots for Lohmoeller, but only two were recorded for him, and that in some cases, judges and clerks delayed counting the ballots in certain precincts until they had received returns from other precincts.

New Boat Launches Its Skipper

Noyes, at Quincy, Mass., the other day, one of the supporting cradles gave way and the craft lurched suddenly, pitching SKIPPER JOHN RYAN overboard. The legs of another man, who was stood on his head by the sudden movement, are seen at left. The boat, undamaged, struck the water before the captain did. No one was hurt.*

22 KILLED, 12 HURT, AS TRAIN HITS TRUCK

Fatal Collision at Grade Crossing at Louiseville, Quebec.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISEVILLE, Que., Aug. 15.—Twenty-two persons were killed and 12 others injured, six of them seriously, when a freight train struck a truck carrying 43 passengers at a grade crossing here today. The truck caught fire.

The occupants of the truck, some of them boys 14 years old, were returning from a political meeting when the accident occurred.

Emile Ferron, a member of Parliament, said the truck was going about 40 or 50 miles an hour. He was one of the occupants of automobiles that had stopped waiting for the train to pass.

Two investigations were ordered, one by the Canadian Board of Railway Commissioners, the other by the Quebec Attorney-General's department.

Peculiarities of Primary Vote in the River Wards

a shutout for the Kinney League pitcher in that precinct.

Figuring was more complicated in the fourth precinct, where all the eight men on the slate had the nod of the boss and the other 17 candidates had the zero of the vanquished. The count: Dickmann, Flynn, Murphy and Scott, 452 each; Rowe, 235; Brownrigg, 230; Coleman, 222; Ward, 217. The votes of the last four added to twice 452.

Only a fraction kept a similar example from working out in the eighth precinct, where distribution of the will of the people was more general, viz: Ward 444; Scott, 443; Flynn, 442; Dickmann and Murphy, 441 each; Rowe, 276; Brownrigg and Coleman, 92 each; three candidates, 3 each; five candidate, 2 each; nine candidates, 1 each. The total vote was 2699; had it been 2700 it would have been six times 450.

Among the seven other precincts of the ward there were similar proportions of the vote in favor of the slated candidates, though not so marked.

Jimmy Miller's Slate.

Jimmy Miller's Fourth Ward followers received sample ballots in the primary marked for Rowe, Ward, Ernest F. Oakley, member of the State Athletic Commission and former Prosecutiing Attorney; Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Herman Willer, Clyde H. Snider and Arthur F. Spathe. All of them carried the ward, except Spathe, who ran 78 votes behind Flynn. Polticians familiar with Miller's power concluded that this did not represent an upset but a shifting of support by Miller, perhaps while the election was in progress.

The vote for the ward: Rowe, 4094; Ward, 4050; Oakley, 3991; Willer, 3806; Snider, 3623; Flynn, 1732; also Spathe, 1654, and Morris A. Shenker, who was given substantial backing in three precincts, 7571. The other aspirants got from 46 to 248 votes each.

Some of the outstanding precinct returns of the Fourth Ward were:

Fifteenth: Rowe and Ward, 242 each; Oakley, Shenker, Snider and Willer, 220 each; Dickmann, Flynn, Murphy and Scott, 22 each; the other 15 nothing.

Second: Oakley, Rowe, Snider, Ward and Willer, 290 each; Flynn, 152; Spathe, 144; the other candidates, six each. The total of these votes was six times 309.

Fifth: Rowe, 342; Flynn and Oakley, 341 each; Ward and Willer, 340 each; Snider, 337; five candidates, two each; 12 candidates, one each; two candidates, nothing. The total vote lacked one of being six times 344.

Thirteenth: Oakley, Rowe, Snider, Ward and Willer, 175 each; Spathe, 95; Shenker, 92; the other 18 contenders, 12 each. The total vote was six times 213.

Fourth: Oakley, Rowe, Snider, Ward and Willer, 220 each; Flynn, 158; Spathe, 62; everybody else, nothing. The vote of Flynn and Spathe, who figured in the apparent switch in the slate, totaled 220.

Fourteenth: Oakley, Frank J. Quinn, Rowe, Snider and Ward, 179 each; Spathe, 135; Dickmann, 22; four candidates, 10 each; four candidates, nine each; five candidates, seven each; four candidates, six each; one candidate, five. The total lacked two votes of being six times 199.

Other One-Sided Results.

There were somewhat similar one-sided results in the other nine precincts of Jimmy Miller's ward, but out of the 375 places on the judicial return sheet, there were zeros in only 54, while there were totals of only one or two in 230 places. With the exception of three precincts for Shenker, the three-digit counts were obtained only by those favored by Miller.

Brogan's Third Ward went in favor of five of the nominees, and, in place of Murphy, went for Frank Lee. The vote: Ward, 3963; Flynn, 3945; Scott, 3935; Dickmann, 3911; Lee, 2940; Rowe, 2701; also Murphy, 1982. Other candidates polled from 60 to 169 each, except Coleman, who got 370.

In the sixteenth precinct, Dickmann, Flynn, Lee, Murphy, Scott and Ward were credited with 292 each and the other 19 candidates with nothing. In many of the other 17 precincts there was corresponding heavy voting for a field of six candidates and negligible showing for all others, with much uniformity of the balloting, for both winning and losing candidates in the ward.

In Mestres' Ward.

Mestres' Seventh Ward gave large pluralities to the nominees, except that it backed Oakley instead of Murphy. The count: Dickmann, whose brother, the Mayor, recently promoted Mestres from superintendent of excavations in the Street Division to Park Commissioner, 3042; Flynn, 2680; Rowe, 2568; Ward 2520; Oakley 2402; Scott 2374, Murphy got 943, Brownrigg 547 and the other candidates from 70 to 281 each.

The tenth precinct was reported as casting 364 votes each for the six men who carried the ward and nothing for the other aspirants. Returns for some of the other precincts were:

Third: Dickmann and Scott, 196 each; Rowe 195; Brownrigg, Flynn and Ward 194 each; Coleman, Snider, Willer and Clyde W. Wagner 1 each; the other 15 candidates, nothing. The total was three votes short of being six times 196.

Seventh: Dickmann 200; Flynn 190; Oakley 180; Ward 150; Scott 102; Rowe 84; Thomas Bond 30; the other 18 candidates, nothing. The total was six times 156.

Twentieth: Flynn 153; Dickmann 151; Oakley and Scott 133 each; Murphy 130; Ward 125; Frank E. Doyle 25; Rowe 8; Quinn 7; Coleman 6; three candidates 3 each; Snider 2; eight candidates 1 each; two candidates nothing.

This ward, like the others, had many other precinct with preponderous results for machine candidates, and much evidence of near uniformity of the votes for those favored.

In the Twentieth Ward.

The Twentieth Ward, also included in the analysis, is a mixed white and Negro residential district, bounded by Grand boulevard, Taylor-Newstead avenues, Cook avenue-Page boulevard and St. Louis avenue.

Results of the judicial primary were phenomenal in some of its 23 precincts. In the second precinct the winning slate made a clean sweep. This precinct gave each nominee 219 votes, while none of the other candidates was credited with a single vote.

However, it was apparent that the precinct workers of organized Democracy had different views as to the makeup of the Circuit Court in different precincts. The combinations varied. For example, the Fourth Precinct gave 350 votes each to Dickmann, Rowe, Flynn and Scott and also to Coleman and Atkinson, while none of the other candidates got a single vote.

In the fourteenth precinct, Dickmann, Rowe, Scott, Ward, Coleman and Oakley each was shown with 293 votes, while each of the other 19 aspirants got zero.

Interesting variations of the vote also occurred, as in the Sixth Precinct, where the count was: Rowe and Ward, each 331; Flynn, Murphy and Scott, each 242; Dickmann, 241; Oakley, Coleman, Willer and Shenker, each 89; Doyle and Villiers Farasy, each nothing; the other candidates, one each. The difference between 331, the top vote, and 242, the next vote, is 89, the figure credited to four candidates. The total vote accounted for 333 ballots cast.

Topheavy Results.

Returns of other precincts where the result was topheavy, were:

Tenth Precinct: Rowe, 273; Murphy and Ward, 272 each; Willer and Shenker, 270 each; Dickmann, 267; Coleman, 7; Snider, 4; Oakley, 3; Atkinson, 2; the 15 remaining candidates, nothing.

Eleventh Precinct: Rowe, 359; Flynn, 350; Murphy, 348; Ward, 345; Scott, 344; Dickmann, 339; the others, from 31 to 42 each.

Twelfth Precinct: Oakley, 305; Ward, 301; Flynn, Murphy and Shenker, 290 each; Willer and Scott, 280 each; Dickmann and Coleman, 220 each; the others from 3 to 13 each.

Thirteenth Precinct: Ward, 271; Rowe, 269; Scott, 252; Dickmann, 248; Oakley, 237; Willer, 231; Flynn and Murphy, 60 each; the others, 3 to 16 each.

Fifteenth Precinct: The six nominees, 189 each; the others, 2 to 19 each, except for three, who got nothing.

Twenty-third Precinct: Dickmann and Doyle, 150 each; Atkinson and Coleman, 140 each; M. X. Morris, 104; Spathe, the sixth man carrying this precinct, 31; the others, 6 to 30 each.

Twentieth Precinct: Rowe and Ward, 165 each; Dickmann, Flynn and Scott, 123 each; Murphy, 120; Oakley, 64; Coleman and Willer, 42 each; Shenker, 3; the other 15 nothing.

In the Seventeenth Precinct five of the nominees ran ahead, but the sixth man carrying this precinct was Shenker, in place of Flynn. In the other 11 precincts of the ward there was more of a contest among all candidates, but without exception the six nominees carried these precincts.

For the whole ward, the vote of the nominees was: Rowe, 3956; Dickmann, 3584; Ward, 3539; Scott, 3190; Flynn, 2642; Murphy, 2622. Runners-up were: Coleman, 1766; Oakley, 1559; Willer, 1358; Shenker, 1140. Votes of all others were in three figures.

U. S. AGENTS SEIZE GANGSTER, ALCOHOL

Carl Fiorita and Second Man, Three Autos and Truck Taken in Raid.

Carl Fiorita, listed by police as a Cuckoo gangster, and a second man, who said he was Manuel Candella, 2517 St. Louis avenue, were arrested Friday night in a raid on a house at 9800 Joplin avenue, Luxemburg, by agents of the Federal Alcohol Tax Unit, who seized three automobiles, a truck and 130 gallons of moonshine alcohol.

Three coupes and the truck, with a man at the wheel of each, were in the vicinity of the house as the raiders approached. Two drivers jumped out and escaped in the darkness. Fiorita and the man booked as Candella surrendered. They made no statement and were booked at Police Headquarters for Federal authorities. Fiorita said he was 23 years old, residing at 1712 South Fourth street.

The raid was made on information that alcohol was being moved from the Joplin avenue house. The alcohol was in five-gallon cans.

Fiorita, once convicted of the murder of a bank cashier, on another occasion charged with extortion, and three times fined for carrying concealed weapons, was charged in a Federal warrant with illegal transportation and possession of alcohol following his arrest last May 29, when 12 five-gallon cans of alcohol were found in his machine. The arrest was made by Constable Joseph Doran and two deputies after a 10-mile chase from Luxemburg to Jefferson avenue and Adams street.

ELECTION BOARD CHECKS 1932 POLL AS PARK ASKED

Seeks to Learn How Many of 46,252 'Not Found' This Year Were Registered Previously.

The Board of Election Commissioners is making a check, at the request of Gov. Park, of the last general quadrennial registration of September, 1932, and of the last supplementary registration on June 18, to determine how many of the 46,252 persons "not found" in the Election Board's recanvass of the June 18 registration, registered in 1932 as compared with the number registered June 18.

The check was begun yesterday. Clerks worked last night and will work today to complete the check and submit a report to the Governor tomorrow.

The September, 1932, registration was under supervision of the previous Election Board, appointed by Gov. Caulfield, a Republican. Since then, however, there have been five supplementary registrations for bond issue, municipal and State elections, under direction of the present board, followed by canvasses at which names of persons "not found" could be struck off the lists.

Comparing Registrations.

Election Commissioner Stephan M. Wagner, a Republican, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that the Governor requested a comparison of the 1932 and 1936 registrations when he conferred with the board here Friday, while making a personal investigation of the registration frauds exposed by the Post-Dispatch.

In addition to determining the number of persons "not found" in the recanvass who were on the books in 1932, the comparison is also being made, Wagner said, to show how many names, registered in 1932, remained on the lists in 1936.

The judges and clerks of election, who supervised the September, 1932, registration, were appointed by the former board just prior to that registration, for four-year terms, which would, ordinarily, expire next month. However, there have been numerous replacements, 700 new judges and clerks being appointed for the primary election Aug. 4, so that fewer than half of the officials serving in 1932 are still in service.

The present board must appoint 4014 new judges and clerks by Sept. 4, to supervise the next quadrennial registration on Sept. 21-24 inclusive. The method of appointment has not been determined, but heretofore Gov. Park's board has accepted the recommendations of Democratic and Republican City Committee members in making the appointments.

Statement by Park Looked For.

The Governor is expected to make an announcement of the results of his investigation of the registration frauds early this week. He told a Post-Dispatch reporter at Jefferson City yesterday that he was continuing his investigation and would consult with St. Louisans who were in touch with the situation but were not actively aligned with either faction of the Democratic party here.

Under a law enacted early in his administration, which began in 1933, Gov. Park is empowered to remove any appointee without a hearing. Members of the Election Board are James A. Waechter, chairman, and Joseph W. Hannauer, Democrats, and Charles L. Moore, secretary, and Stephen M. Wagner, Republicans.

Election Board Spent $10,000 on Recanvass and Special Deputies.

Total cost of the Election Board's recanvass of the June 18 registration, and of stationing deputy commissioners at the polling places during the primary election Aug. 4 to challenge the 46,252 persons "not found" in the recanvass was $10,035.

Checks were mailed yesterday to the 669 deputies who served on primary day, each deputy receiving $5, and the total amounting to $3345. In addition, the 1338 judges who made the recanvass received a total of $6690 at the rate of $5 a day each. The judges were paid last Monday.

As has been told, the Election Board appointed special deputies, one to serve in each polling place on primary day, after deciding it had no power to strike from the registration lists the 46,252 persons "not found" in the recanvass. A check made by Post-Dispatch reporters of the reports of the special deputies showed that in 639 of 669 precincts, 2852 voters were challenged, 2533 permitted to vote after producing proof of their identity and residence, and 319 rejected.

ALL NYA STUDENTS TO WORK PART TIME UNDER NEW RULING

Some Had Been Receiving Aid By Simply Maintaining Good Marks in School.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Part-time work will be required henceforth of all beneficiaries of the National Youth Administration's $70,000,000 work relief allotment under regulations promulgated today by the agency.

Under previous practice, a $6 monthly payment had been made to several thousand high school students for good marks in their studies. About 12 per cent of the 125,164 students aided had not done any of the part-time work required of other NYA beneficiaries.

Reporting on two other Works Progress Administration activities, Aubrey Williams, deputy administrator, said a $40,690,290 airport program would be carried out and that 7,444 women WPA workers were nursing needy patients and carrying out disease-prevention campaigns.

SEEKS EXTRADITION IN BLACK LEGION CASE

Michigan Prosecutor Accuses Ohioan of Possession of Hand Grenades.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 15.—Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea said today he would ask Monday to have Virgil F. Effinger brought here from Lima, O., to answer a warrant charging him with possessing six hand grenades at a Black Legion meeting here a year ago.

Effinger surrendered to Lima police today, but they said he was not under arrest, and no further steps would be taken until the warrant arrived. McCrea asserted that Effinger was a Black Legion "major-general" in command of the hooded secret society in this part of the United States.

Effinger denied the charge of possession of grenades and said he would fight extradition. He went home tonight when the warrant failed to arrive, telling police he would be there if wanted.

The warrant was based on a statement by William H. Guthrie, a printer, member of the order, and corroborated by Dayton Dean, who confessed killing Charles A. Poole May 12.

Guthrie said Effinger produced the six grenades Aug. 24, 1935 at the home of Arthur F. Lupp Sr., State commander of the Black Legion.

Lupp is free on bond on charges of conspiring to kidnap and kill Arthur L. Kingsley, a Highland Park publisher. Dean has pleaded guilty to the murder of Poole, and Guthrie is held on a charge of conspiracy to incite a riot.

Found Dead; Pockets Inside Out.

Eugene Gardner, 63-year-old Negro, 926 Bell avenue, Webster Groves, was found dead early yesterday in a vacant lot near his home. Officers said he apparently had been struck on the head with a blunt instrument. Several pockets in his coat and trousers were turned inside out. There was a watch in a trouser pocket and $14 in one shoe.

CITY INSPECTOR WHO WAS FOR ANTI-MAYOR CANDIDATE, FIRED

Harry Hall of Weights and Measures Department Dismissed by Commissioner.

Harry Hall, 1935 Cherokee street, a deputy inspector in the City Department of Weights and Measures since June, 1933, has received a notice of dismissal, effective Aug. 31. The notice was signed by Louis G. Waldman, Commissioner of Weights and Measures. Hall's salary was $125 a month.

Hall said to a Post-Dipatch reporter that he had been discharged because he supported Edward W. Koebel for re-election as Democratic City Committeeman of the Tenth Ward in the primary election Aug. 4. Kobel, a deputy in the Recorder of Deeds office, aligned with the faction opposing Mayor Dickmann, was defeated by John Tiggard, Deputy City Marshal, who was supported by the Mayor.

Mayor Dickmann, in response to a question, said he did not know why Hall was dismissed, and declared there would be no dismissals of city employes who had opposed candidates for the City Committee backed by the administration.

HAMILTON SEES NEW DEAL MENACE TO CONSTITUTION

Republican Chairman Asserts Some Roosevelt Aids Would Replace It With Other Mechanism.

'DON'T BARTER IT FOR ILLUSORY PLANS

'Altogether Possible It Needs Revision, but President Has Made No Specific Suggestions.'

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 15.—Saying "it is altogether possible that our Constitution does need revision," Chairman John D. M. Hamilton of the Republican National Committee, in a speech here tonight declared:

"As Governor Landon said in his acceptance speech, if the people have not the right to change their form of government to fit their wishes, they would not be free, but I am not aware that Franklin Delano Roosevelt has at any time made specific suggestions as to how it should be revised.

"The men surrounding him in responsible positions and to whom he has apparently given full confidence have, in unmistakable terms, however, indicated that our Constitution needs not revision but replacement by some other mechanism."

He said "the hard-won security which is our birthright as citizens of the United States" is a "heritage not to be bartered without thought."

"To relinquish it," he declared, "for schemes of untried promise or for the illusory plans of a government whose schemes through three and a half years have proved illusory is neither progressive nor is it progress."

Assails Planning Theories.

Hamilton also assailed the national planning theories of Dr. Rexford Tugwell, Undersecretary of Agriculture, the Agricultural Adjustment Act and President Roosevelt's attitude toward it, and taxes and spending by the administration.

"It would seem to me," said Hamilton, "to be our plain duty—we who have never known tyranny—to ask, before accepting any idea that the Constitution is an outworn relic of 'horse and buggy' days, whether we may not be surrendering the backlog of all security for a mess of pottage.

"Today this charter of freedom is assailed as at no time in our history. We are told it is no longer the guarantee of the freedom and security which it was designed to preserve. We are told that it is a stumbling block to progress.

"In effect, we are presented with the argument that, since the administration of Mr. Roosevelt has come into power, and since certain of his heedless acts have been declared by the Supreme Court not in accord with the principles of the Constitution, it has become a straitjacket on our national lives. . . . We are told in short that the rules laid down by the people for their own protection can no longer serve and that they must accept the principles and aspirations of Franklin Roosevelt."

Hamilton enumerated some of Dr. Tugwell's national planning theories and sai dthese were designed to lead "our nation to what is supposed to be a new promised land—a land described by Dr. Tugwell as follows: 'The future is becoming visible in Russia'."

The chairman said he never had understood "that we at any time had become so bankrupt in ideas that he had to look to foreign nations for our future, and particlularly not to Soviet Russia."

An Emergency Measure.

The people, Hamilton said, accepted the AAA "in part because it was said to be an emergency measure," but the President, he declared, denied in October, 1935, that it was ever intended as an emergency measure.

"They also accepted it on Mr. Roosevelt's own assurance that it was an experiment that he would watch with an open mind," Hamilton continued. "Let me quote his words: 'If a fair administrative trial of it is made and it does not produce the hoped for results, I shall be the first to acknowledge it and advise you.'

"We have never had such acknowledgement nor advice from the President, although I think the record is clear and the American people consider it clear. . . .

"Why is the President so strangely silent? I can see but two conclusions. Either he is unable to see the true results of his excursion into planned scarcity, or, having seen and understood these results, he is unwilling to admit them in an electoin year."

SISTERS AT OKAWVILLE, ILL., KILLED IN STOVE EXPLOSION

Miss Carrie and Miss Millie Altmansberger Victims of Blazing Gasoline.

Miss Carrie Altmansberger, 62 years old, and her sister, Miss Millie, 60, were fatally burned Friday afternoon in the explosion of a pressure gasoline stove at their home in Okawville, Ill.

Flaming gasoline ignited their clothing and they ran screaming to the yard, where neighbors put out the fire. They were rushed to St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Belleville, where Miss Carrie died Friday night. Miss Millie died yesterday afternoon.

The explosion set fire to the kitchen of the home. Neighbors extinguished the flames.

Former Grocer Bankrupt.

FIRST TENANTS MOVE INTO PWA HOUSING DEVELOPMENT

Railway Clerk, Wife and Daughter One of 16 Families Occupying Atlanta Apartments.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 15.—C. T. Hooks, a railway clerk, became tenant No. 1 today in the Government's first low-cost housing project.

Hooks, his wife and 17-month-old daughter joined 16 other families in moving into the $3,000,000 Techwood PWA development here. Government officials will formally open it on Sept. 1.

Mrs. Hooks has in her new home an electric stove and refrigerator, a dish cabinet that "won't break your back leaning over to," and an incinerator garbage chute. "My work will be cut in half," she said, by the careful arrangement of the kitchen.

Hooks likes the ventilation and the soundproof walls.

Outside their window is a fenced expanse of white sand where their daughter can play.

Tenants will pay from $16.40 for a three-room apartment to $27.85 for six rooms—including heat, lights, water and current for refrigeration and cooking.

The shrub-dotted development, covering four blocks, replaced one of the city's most congested slum areas. It will accommodate 604 families and has supervised playgrounds, a community center, auditorium and stores.

Illinois Rail Assessment Lower.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 15.—Total assessments of railroad properties in Illinois declined only 4.18 per cent during the past year, one of the smallest drops since the effect of the depression was shown in figures for 1930, the State Tax Commission announced yesterday. The 80 railroad companies assessed were valued at $415,791,119 for 1936. The total a year ago was $433,950,367. The railroads have 10 days within which to protest the valuations and ask for public hearings.

Attention of Mr. Henry Ford

Gentlemen:

After driving one of your Model A cars for six years and getting exceptionally fine service from it, I purchased a V-8 which I have driven a small mileage and find it to be a very satisfactory car.

Both the Model A and the V-8 appeal greatly to what little I know about mechanical design. However, the greatest pleasure I get from driving my Ford is due to my respect for the general policies of your company, and the belief that the method of making and distributing the product is a beneficial one for the people of America.

Yours very truly,

Wm E Cookson

The Ford V·8 tells its own story

WE DEPEND on the Ford car to tell its own story of value and service. For if the people who use our cars every day are not praising them, it matters little what we may say.

The last word must be spoken by the car itself. The owner who tells his next-door neighbor how his car behaves in actual service is the most effective advertiser.

A great many Fords are being bought these days on the recommendation of present owners.

WOMAN'S ASSAILANTS FINED

Priest's Sister Said Men Kicked Her at New Athens Rectory.

Frank Schmittling, iron moulder, and Anthony Fietsam, carpenter, both of New Athens, Ill., pleaded guilty of assault and battery and were fined $25 each yesterday by Justice of the Peace A. J. Stoeckel of Belleville.

The charges grew out of a disturbance last Sunday after the Rev. Henry Funke had ordered his parishioners to cease visiting the parish convent. Schmittling and Fietsam went to the rectory after services to argue the matter with the priest, whose sister, Miss Elizabeth Funke, is his housekeeper. Miss Funke said that Schmittling and Fietsam pushed her around and kicked her. They were arrested on her complaint.

RELIEF FRAUD CHARGE AGAINST COAL FIRM

Helfrich Co., E. St. Louis, Accused of Failure to Deliver Fuel Orders.

An information charging the Helfrich Coal Co., of East St. Louis, with obtaining money from the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission by means of a confidence game was issued yesterday at Belleville by Justice of the Peace Louis E. Wangelin.

The complaint charged the coal company with failing to deliver coal to persons on relief, although the commission paid for the fuel.

Michael Milligan, investigator for the Relief Commission, who made the complaint, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that during the latter part of June the commission issued 5000 orders for coal, most of them on the Helfrich Co., and that an investigation showed that the frm failed to fill some orders as specified and had not filled others at all, although paid to do so.

Milligan said the Helfrich Co. had been paid about $2500 to date on orders totaling about $4000.

At the offices of the coal company it was stated that Carl W. Helfrich, president, was out of the city and that no one else there was authorized to speak for the firm.

Dead of Auto Injuries

MISS MINNIE DORIGATTI

WOMAN HIT BY AUTO DURING ROW DIES

Miss Minnie Dorigatti Struck as She Ran to Call Police in Altercation.

Miss Minnie Dorigatti, 36-year-old pantry maid, died yesterday at Barnes Hospital of a skull injury suffered at 1 a. m. Friday when struck by an automobile while she was running across Kingshighway to call police to stop a sidewalk altercation in front of Hotel Chase. She was employed at the hotel and resided there.

The automobile, southbound in Kingshighway, was driven by Harry Furman, musician, 1334 Ripple street, one of two brothers who early this year lost a suit to be declared heirs to the $1,000,000 estate of the late Hugh Campbell.

Police learned that Miss Dorigattie was standing with Walter Inabit, pastry cook, 4536 Enright avenue; Charles Resterre, 5508 Botanical avenue, and Miss Mary Shea, waiting for Resterre to board a motorbus. Officers said a former admirer of Miss Dorigatti came up, struck her in the face and abused her verbally. As Inabit intervened she started for the police.

The former admirer, Theodore Theodorow, 45-year-old waiter of Chicago, was arrested when he called at Barnes Hospital. He admitted the altercation, police said, but denied striking Miss Dorigatti.

Miss Dorigatti was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dorigatti, 419 South Clinton, Collinsville.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA LOOKING TO RUSSIA AS AN ALLY

Soviet Military Experts Touring Country, Which Is Virtually Surrounded by Fascists.

By the Associated Press.

PRAHA, Aug. 15.—Virtually surrounded by Fascist or dictatorship states, democratic Czechoslovakia is looking toward Soviet Russia for assistance.

The recent Austro-German agreement has served to stimulate this development.

Soviet military experts are touring the country giving advice and mapping sites for new airdromes, especially along the Czech-German frontier.

Throughout the country, jumping towers, after the Soviet fashion, have been constructed, to train military and civilian pilots and the public in general in the use of parachutes.

The latest development in the improvement of the country's defenses, which caused considerable comment abroad, is the construction of a strategic railway. This line, to be built with the consent of Rumania, will enable Czechoslovakia to establish a direct contact with Soviet Russia through a narrow strip of Rumanian territory.

NEW MAIL DELIVERY SERVICE IN COUNTY

Foot and Curb Distribution to Supplement Rural System in Parts of Area.

Beginning tomorrow residence mail delivery service will be extended to certain sections of St. Louis County, which heretofore have had rural delivery, Postmaster W. Rufus Jackson announced.

Foot delivery service will be given residents of the area bounded by Evans avenue, Eager road, North and South road and Sutton avenue. Persons residing in this district will be required to properly number their homes and provide mail receptacles at the front entrance.

Curb delivery will be made by carriers using light trucks in the following territories:

The communities of Olivette, Chevy Chase, La Hacienda, Willow Hill, Dromara, McKnight Village, Ridge Top, Fair Oaks, York Villake, St. Louis Country Club Grounds, Fordyce, Oakleigh, Briar Cliff and Clermont lane. The new service will supersede rural routes 1 and 3 out of Clayton Branch Postoffice.

Lackland to Link roads; Niblic and Driver streets, west of Lackland road; Fairview, Maple to Lake; Lake, Lackland to Oak, Maple, Fairview to Link road; Link, Page to Booth; Ashby, Lackland to Mart with intersecting streets west to Bellecote and all territory east of Ashby between Lackland and Baltimore. The service was formerly rural route 4 out of Overland.

Riverview Gardens section bounded by St. Cyr road, West avenue, Hillside, Glendale, West drive, Chambers road and Riverview drive. This delivery will supplement rural routes, formerly 14 and 15, which have been redesignated 3 and 4.

Persons receiving curb mail service must erect boxes in front of their homes bearing the name and address. Seven additional carriers will be required to carry out the new program.

Dentist Files Bankruptcy Action.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday by H. E. Howell, a dentist, of 224 North Seventh street, who declared he was unable to pay his debts and was willing to turn over his assets for the benefit of creditors. Schedules of liabilities and assets will be filed within 10 days.

4000 Glace Bay Miners End Tieup.
By the Associated Press.

GLACE BAY, N. S., Aug. 15.—Nearly 4000 miners of five Glace Bay collieries agreed tonight to return to work Monday, ending a one-week strike. Decision to call off what was described as an unsanctioned walkout was reached after a conference between strike leaders and the district executive of the United Mine Workers. Grievances of 200 Longwall miners caused the tie-up.

ROOSEVELT VIEWS FLOOD CONTROL WORKS

Cheering Throngs Greet Him in New York and Pennsylvania—Goes to Hyde Park.

By the Associated Press.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 15.—President Roosevelt arrived at his home here tonight at 10:45 p. m. from his tour of New York and Pennsylvania flod regions.

The President expects to remain here a week.

By the Associated Press.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 15.—Receiving tumultuous ovations along a 25-mile trip through Pennsylvania's hard coal fields, President Roosevelt terminated his first-hand inspection of eastern flood areas today.

After inspecting sites of proposed levees along the Susquehanna River in this city and Kingston, just across the river, the Chief Executive boarded the special train which had followed him from Scranton, 18 miles distant, and set out for the Roosevelt family home at Hyde Park, N. Y.

Cheering throngs which defied police efforts to keep them in line greeted the President in Scranton and a virtually unbroken line of humanity waved and cheered his passage through this populous mining region. A man apparently intent on grasping the President's hand, got almost within reach of him when Secret Service men firmly ushered him back.

In 10 days Mr. Roosevelt expects to begin a tour of drouth states.

Gets First-Hand View.

The President motored here from Scranton to see first-hand where waters of the Susquehanna and Lackawanna rivers poured last spring into anthracite coal mines and swept through homes and business houses.

Driving out upon a levee project close to Wilkes-Barre's business district, the President viewed 1000 Works Progress administration employes lined up in front of automobile trucks. After hearing progress reports from officials in charge, Mr. Roosevelt remarked: "A pretty good boondoggling sample."

Troops with fixed bayonets, State and local police proved inadequate in some instances to keep the crowd in check in Scranton and in Wilkes-Barre's public square. The automobiles in the President's party had difficulty in making their way through the press of people. Entering Wilkes-Barre, the President was given a 21-gun salute by the 109th Field Artillery, Pennsylvania National Guard, members of which figured prominently in flood rescue work last March.

New York Flood Districts.

Earlier in the day he had visited flood districts around Binghamton, N. Y.

Before leaving Binghamton, the President held his second flood control conference with Federal and State officials since he left Washington Thursday morning. From today's meeting came word that the Chief Executive had approved allotment of Federal funds totalling $2,568,000 for a program of development on 30 proposed retention dams for Western and Southern New York, together with channel improvements and other flood prevention measures.

Crowds Line Streets.

Cheering crowds lined flag-draped streets in Binghamton as the presidential car moved along the course of the Chenango River where the Chief Executive saw the reconstruction of bridges washed away by floods in 1935. Placards showing the maximum height reached by the flood waters, in many places several feet above the top of Mr. Roosevelt's head, wrere in evidence on telegraph poles and buildings.

Waving his hat to those on the streets, the President was taken 50 miles through the countryside to the location at Whitney Point where engineers were at work on surveys for a 66-foot earthen dam, construction costs of which were placed at $1,395,000. Out on the floor of the Otselic River valley, a few feet below an engineers' stake-line locating the site of the dam, army engineers and a small force of CCC workers were encamped.

Major-General Edward M. Markham, chief of Army engineers, and other officials explained to the Chief Executive the proposed dam would impound water only at flood times, when it would hold back 59,000 acre-feet of water from Binghamton, thus forming the key to that city's flood control program.

PERMANENT REGISTRATION URGED IN LETTER TO MAYOR

Walter J. Eggers, president of the Young Men's Division of the Chamber of Commerce, yesterday addressed a letter to Mayor Dickmann, stating reasons why the young men's organization favored enactment of a permanent registration law. John Ely Weatherford, chairman of the legislative committee of the organization, is one of the committee named by the Mayor to take action toward preparation of a measure for the next Legislature. The committee will hold its organizing meeting in the Mayor's office at 4 p. m. Tuesday.

Eggers said the three major advantages which would result to St. Louis from a permanent registration system were economy, "more nearly fraud-proof registration and voting," and accuracy of records, through constant revision up to election day. "We pledge support in your step to expedite the inevitable," Eggers wrote. "St. Louis must have permanent registration."

EX-POSTMASTER GETS 6 YEARS FOR KIDNAPING

Edmund C. Bartholmey Sentenced on Plea of Guilty of Conspiracy in Hamm Case.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 15.—Edmund C. Bartholmey, former Bensenville (Ill.) Postmaster who pleaded guilty July 14 of conspiracy in the $100,000 kidnaping of William Hamm Jr., St. Paul brewer, was sentenced today by Federal Judge M. M. Joyce to six years in a Federal prison.

Byron Bolton, who pleaded guilty to conspiracy charges in both the Hamm and Edward G. Bremer kidnapings, is the only member of the Barker-Karpis gang still awaiting sentence.

Seven persons were indicted for the Hamm kidnaping but two, Arthur (Doc) Barker and Elmer Farmer, already were serving terms in Alcatraz prison for the Bremer kidnaping and were not brought to trial. Of the others, Charles Fitzgerald of Los Angeles, Alvin Karpis, Bolton and Bartholmey admitted guilt. John P. Pfeifer was the only member of the Hamm kidnaping gang to stand trial. He killed himself in jail following his conviction.

Lengthy questioning by the court preceded sentencing of Bartholmey, at whose house Hamm was held prisoner four days until $100,000 ransom was paid in 1933.

"I think there is much good in you that still can be saved," observed Judge Joyce. He rejected pleas by Lloyd C. Moody, Chicago counsel, for probation. Moody submitted letters from clergyman, judges and prominent business men urging leniency for Bartholmey.

"I cannot find anything that suggests to me that you are of a vicious or inherently bad nature," said Judge Joyce, "your background is entirely different from that of any of these other defendants whom I have had contact with."

Edmund Bartholmey Jr., 16 year-old son, was in court with his mother when sentence was pronounced.

ROOSEVELT TALK ON PEACE PRAISED AND CRITICISED

His Pledge to 'Defend Our Neighborhood' Assailed by Leaders of Groups Against War.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—President Roosevelt's assertion in his Chautauqua speech that "we can and will defend ourselves and defend our neighborhood" drew varied comments today in diplomatic circles and in peace society quarters.

Spokesmen for the national council for prevention of war and the women's international league for peace and freedom mixed praise of his expressed hatred for war and his stand on neutrality with criticism of the pledge to defend "our neighborhood."

There was discussion in diplomatic circles as to how the President's statement compared with the warning given by President Monroe a little more than 100 years ago against further effort by European powers to expand in this hemisphere.

Pan-American Parley Near.

Interest in it was heightened by the approach of the Pan-American peace conference at Buenos Aires, summoned some time ago at Mr. Roosevelt's instigation to consider means of perfecting the peace machinery of the American continents.

Officials of the international league for peace and freedom addressed an open letter to the President, thanking him for "support on neutrality, the reciprocal trade agreements, and his own personal hatred for war," but adding: "It is our conviction also that many taxpayers will be shocked to learn that their money is being spent for a military establishment large enough to police all the Americas."

Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the national council for prevention of war, said Mr. Roosevelt's speech had "the great merit of being specific" and that it was "a powerful bid" for the peace vote. Libby contended, however, that the address extends the democratic plank on national defense dangerously to include the defense of our 'neighborhood' as well as our soil, thus justifying an unlimited navy."

Scope of "Our Neighborhood."

Many diplomatic sources interpreted the President's reference to "our neighborhood" as including the 21 American republics, which embrace virtually the entire Western hemisphere except Canada.

The Monroe Doctrine, with which the Roosevelt statement was compared by some, stated that "the American continents, by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintained, are henceforth not to be considered as subjects" for further expansionists aims of European powers.

Berlin Newspaper Disagrees With Roosevelt's Stand.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—The newspaper Der Tageblatt took exception today to President Franklin D. Roosevelt's Chautauqua, (N. Y.) address.

The United States, it said, editorially after the World War "participated in creating the injustices which burdened Germany unbearably." It is doubtful whether the President serves the cause of peace —which undoubtedly he has close to his heart—by attacking certain nations.

"His speech charged them with intolerence, dogmatism and with disregard of treaties not only in fact but also in letter—a very contestable statement.

"This is all aimed at us. We could retort by mentioning the interference and taking sides which is contrary to the policy of utmost reserve which America imposed on herself, and a ruffling of European public opinion at a moment when a breeze of better understanding has sprung up. But we do not wish to harp on this.

"Our sole interest is to stress the fact that such summary judgment is not warranted and that the United States after the World War participated in creating the injustices which burdened Germany unbearably. Consequently the United States should exercise greater moderation in judgment."

Buenos Aires Paper Says Roosevelt Rises Above Dictators.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 15. — President Roosevelt's peace address last night at Chautauqua, N. Y., the newspaper Noticias Graficas declared today, "raised his figure above the stature of all the dictators."

Buenos Aires newspapers applauded the speech, which Noticias Graficas said "finds a propitious echo in the anxious and desperate multitudes of the world."

"Without the intention of making a parallel between discourses recently heard from Rome or from Berlin and which proclaimed violence and expansion as the two sole aims of the modern states, we recommend reading this dignified and sincere Roosevelt speech, ennobled by the spontaneity of human content and with which Roosevelt raised his figure above the stature of all dictators," said the paper.

"The international policies of the New World," Noticias Graficas added, "never have been inspired by principles other than Democracy—all American nationas without exception can subscribe to the words of the great President of the North."

COUGHLIN'S UNION BACKS LEMKE; ONE DISSENTER JEERED

O'Donnell, answered O'Donnell, calling him a "stooge of Jim Farley."

Father Coughlin replied, saying: "There are 8153 delegates here. Of these, 8152 indorsed Lemke and O'Brien. One refused. The reason for that is, Mr. ODonnell says, that I am a follower of Mr. William Randolph Hearst and the Liberty League."

The radio priest denied any connection with Hearst and said of the American Liberty League, "I was the first to impugn it."

Praise for Al Smith.

Father Coughlin took occasion, however, to praise former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, one of the leaders of the American Liberty League, as the "most beautiful character of our public life" and the "greatest Governor who ever adorned a chair in any State."

The priest referred to Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, the Republican presidential nominee, as "an honest gentleman, a fine gentleman" but, continued Coughlin:

"I do deprecate the fact that he is dedicated to the gold standard which in 1914 was the blood standard."

With police protection O'Donnell left the platform and went to a committee room. Police kept the corridor cleared until the convention settled back to business and then O'Donnell left the building.

"We Want Lemke."

Introduction of the resolution proposing indorsement of Lemke and O'Brien was the signal for a prolonged demonstration.

Delegates leaped to their feet and surged toward the platform, cheering and shouting, waving banners and ringing bills, in a wild outburst of enthusiasm.

"We want Lemke, we want Lemke," became the convention cry.

Voting on the resolution was delayed until the din subsided.

The resolution adopted said:

"Inasmuch as President Roosevelt has notoriously broken his promises, and Mr. Landon appears imbued with the same philosophy which reduced us to want in the midst of plenty, it behooves this assembly to indorse Messrs. Lemke and O'Brien."

Child Labor and Pensions.

The convention adopted a resolution condemning the "economic slavery which witnesses 600,000 little children below the age of 15 working full time for their industrial masters," and "the economics system which compels 2,200,000 of our aged to slave in the ranks of the workers."

The resolution recommended support for all persons over 60.

All Coughlin's Acts Indorsed.

The delegates put on a demonstration for Father Coughlin early in today's session, parading through the aisles, shouting, whistling and ringing bells for nearly an hour.

The demonstration followed introduction of a resolution by Louis B. Ward, chairman of the Resolutions Committee, indorsing "with no exceptions whatsoever all the acts of our president and great leader, the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin."

Father Coughlin reported to the convention the first published balance sheet of the organization.

It showed expenditures of $718,237.82 since it was organized Nov. 11, 1934. Receipts of $684,444.30 from outside sources, and loans of $53,341.22. Largest of the expenditures was $366,614.58 for radio broadcasting. Salaries amounted to $118,844.70, he said, adding he had received no salary and intended to receive none.

Coughlin "Called" on Election Bet, New Arrangements Offered.

By the Associated Press.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 15.—Frederick L. Jenckes of this city today "called" Rev. Charles E. Coughlin on his offer to make an election wager on the comparative vote-getting abilities in Rhode Island of Gov. Alfred M. Landon, G. O. P. presidential candidate, and William Lemke, Union party candidate.

To meet Father Coughlin's reported objection that it is illegal to make an election bet in Rhode Island, Jenckes, by telegraph, offered to deposit his $16,666.66 with Father Coughlin's $25,000 with any reliable New York agency.

If that did not suit, he offered to meet the priest or his representative in Montreal or Quebec "or anywhere in the United States east of, the Mississippi" to deposit the cash in escrow so that wager might be made.

"You are now called," wired Jenckes, declaring that his purpose was two-fold; first, to make the bet; second, to determine whether the radio priest in his public addresses makes statements "you do not mean to stir and mislead the public."

GIRL, HIT WITH HAMMER MONTH AGO, REGAINS MEMORY

Gives Officers at Kansas City, Kan., Description of Assailant; Tells Story First Time.

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, Kan., Aug. 15.—Seventeen-year-old Alice Williams tonight told officers a "large, stocky, blonde" man beat her with a hammer and left her in a roadside ditch to die a month ago. The Cedar Rapids (Ia.) girl, her memory restored by rest and a brain operation, gave her first coherent account of what happened before she was found unconscious near Lawrence, Kan.

Talking from her bed in the University of Kansas hospital here, the girl told of a trip from St. Louis, home of an aunt, to a point near Kansas City with a man she said let her out there.

At the crossroads, she said, she was picked up by a "large, stocky, blonde man—not old—with blonde hair parted in the middle." He drove a new, black, small truck. In Kansas City the man drove her around, pointing out places of interest. Then he drove to a dirt road nead Reno, Kan., without warning he picked up a hammer in the car and tried to hit her with it. She said she screamed and pleaded with him not to hit her. She had a vague memory of being struck on the head and of being thrown out of the car.

KRATKY HEADS REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE ON TAXATION

St. Louis Lawyer to Enlist Voters Against New Deal's "Ruthless" Program.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Arthur M. Curtis, assistant to the chairman of the Republican National Committee, tonight announced formation of a committee division designed, he said, to conduct a nation-wide campaign against what he termed "the New Deal party's program of ruthless taxation." Robert Kratky of St. Louis, an attorney, was named to head the group.

The announcement, in a statement from the Republican National Committee, said there would be organizations of men and women in every county "to enlist voters" against the Democratic administration's taxation program.

The statement quoted Kratky as saying in part: "Spending $2.12 for every $1 collected in taxes, the New Deal party has plunged the nation into an abyss of debt instead of cutting Government expenses 25 per cent, balancing the budget and establishing a generally economical program as promised. . . . The President's latest glowing promise that taxes will not continue to rise comes in the face of the fact that expenditures for the fiscal year of 1937 have been announced at approximately one billion dollars more than they were in 1936."

FURNITURE FACTORIES TO REOPEN TOMORROW

Five, Closed Since July 25, Reach Agreement With Upholsterers' Union.

Five St. Louis furniture factories, which have been closed since July 25 because of a disagreement with Upholsterers' Local Union 25, will resume operations tomorrow under a settlement, details of which will be announced to members of the union at a meeting at Carpenters' Hall, Grand boulevard and Cozens avenue, this afternoon.

An advertisement published in today's Post-Dispatch, requesting the union members to be at work tomorrow, bears the names of Ray Embree, union president, and the five firms—International Furniture Co., Mid-west Furniture Co., Royal Upholstering Co., Artistic Furniture Co. and Weigl Furniture Co.

The dispute, interpreted as a lockout by the 300 union workers, resulted from demands for a signed working contract and an adjustment of piece rates on the basis of 87½ cents an hour. Previously the men had worked under an oral agreement at piece rates based on 75 cents an hour.

Embree said he had reached an agreement with the employers for recognition of the union, increasing of the minimum wage from 60 to 75 cents an hour, and other increases from 5 to 15 per cent, which would increase the wage of the average workman, ranging from $27 to $30 a week, to from $30 to $35. The union will be asked to ratify the agreement at the meeting today at Carpenters' Hall, and if it does so, details will be worked out in two weeks.

Employers broke off negotiations for a signed agreement, and notified workers that the factories would be temporarily closed. The union voted to accept the action as a lockout and justification for the automatic establishment of a strike situation. As no attempt was made to operate the factories, there was no picketing.

'PRINCE MIKE' TURNS UP AGAIN

Back on Broadway After a Fling at Farming.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Harry F. Gerguson, the pseudo Mike Romanoff, has returned to the Broadway which he renounced more than a year ago to become a "gentleman farmer" in Virginia.

"Prince Mike," a former pants presser who passed himself as a Russian Prince in the best circles of society, was discreetly silent on his plans as he made the rounds of the night clubs. He is tanned after a year spent as caretaker of an estate near Fredericksburg, Va. E. Fred Sweet, Chief Federal Probation Officer, said: "We are all through with him."

"100,000 MILES? That's Nothing!
I'VE DRIVEN MY DODGE 281,000 MILES!"
Says FRED CAPRON, SPOKANE, WASH.

"I bought this car in 1920," says Mr. Capron. "I drive it every day in all kinds of weather. In my opinion, there is no car to equal the Dodge for dependability and economy. I am known by my car, and believe me, it is a real advertisement."

Dodge Owners from Coast to Coast Report Sensational Mileage from Dodge Cars

FOR 22 years the words "Dodge" and "Dependability" have been synonymous...and no wonder...from all parts of the country come reports of Dodge cars that have been driven nine—twelve — fourteen — sixteen years!...Dodge cars driven 100,000 miles — 150,000 miles, 200,000 miles, 280,000 miles!... That's one of the reasons why more people buy Dodge cars than any other make with the exception of the three lowest-priced cars.

But, though Dependability scores with every motorist, that's not the only reason Dodge is the fastest-selling big car in America...Dodge economy!—that news too has spread from Coast to Coast like wildfire...owners report 18 to 24 miles per gallon of gas...astonishingly low upkeep cost...money savings so substantial that—in the long run—many owners say they more than make up the few dollars difference in cost between Dodge and small, lowest-priced, competitive cars.

Dodge gives you more for your money—more extra-value features than you can find in cars priced even $500 higher than Dodge...the safety-steel body, genuine hydraulic brakes...the Airglide-Ride...Chair-Height seats... redistribution of weight equally to all four wheels...patented Floating Power engine mountings...breath-taking beauty...roomier interiors, more luxurious than ever before.

Don't miss driving this big, new Dodge! Make the free economy test! See with your own eyes how Dodge saves gasoline! And don't forget that Dodge now costs only a few dollars more than the lowest-priced cars!

DODGE
Division of Chrysler Corporation

SEE HOW DODGE SEATS approximate the height of a comfortable easy chair! In many cars, high floors and low seats raise the knees—cramp the feet and legs. In Dodge, floors have been lowered, and Dodge Chair-Height seats give you a natural sitting posture!

AIRGLIDE-RIDE—This thrilling new Dodge ride is made possible by: (1) longer, more flexible springs with action synchronized front and rear, plus the Levelator which prevents sideway on turns; (2) moving engine forward to distribute weight evenly to all four wheels; (3) lowering floors to permit use of Chair-Height Seats; (4) rear seat passengers ride ahead of rear axle shock-line.

JOAN BENNETT, Walter Wanger star, says: "I don't believe in unnecessary extravagance—that's why I own a new Dodge."

Slower Industrial Operations And Drouth Put the Stock Market On Defense and Prices Lose Ground

The Upward Movement on the Exchange Has Continued, With Few Exceptions, Since the End of April.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The stock market found the going bumpy this week as some divisions of industry shifted into lower gear.

Financial outposts reported that professional traders, who provided the bulk of activity, seemed uncertain most of the time which way to turn.

On the one hand they had as guide-posts numerous reports of corporate earnings improvement and more liberal dividend declarations.

On the other hand, it was said that the slower pace of industry raised once more the question: have stocks run ahead of the recovery procession?

The point was brought out that while the stock market has swung ahead with few interruptions since the end of April it had the bullish fuel of better than seasonal industrial production and the stimulus of retail expansion puffed up by soldiers' bonus funds.

Of late, however, the bonus spending has lost its force and industry has shown signs of finally yielding to the influence of summer. Another important factor which has tended to make stock traders think twice is the inroads of the drouth.

Sales during the week amounted to 6,534,400 shares, compared with 7,047,870 last week and 11,123,770 corresponding week last year. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 309,575,234 shares, compared with 179,662,718 a year ago and 246,198,003 two years ago.

The corn crop has been deeply slashed, while the wheat yield has been reduced. As Wall streeters see it, two things will help to sustain farm purchasing power, notwithstanding.

First, relief funds will help to take up the slack occasioned by smaller crops. Second, higher prices will give buying power a good boost.

Effects of Crop Losses.

Aside from the problem of farm purchasing power economists say, is the all-important question of what effect the ruined crops will have on the country's business at large.

Explaining that the smaller yields mean advancing food prices, some think the public may have less to spend for other products and this may be an adverse influence on business.

Nevertheless, thhey insist that recovery, particularly in the durable goods division, has gained enough momentum to offset in some measure the blight of shrunken crops.

While the automobile makers cut operations sharply during the week, this was principally a reflection of preparations for change-over to new models. Slower steel production was accompanied by predictions of experts that next month will find the industry resilient.

Bonds rose but lost part of the advantage as the week drew to a close. A bright spot of the loan market was the rise of U. S. Government obligations to new highs and the stubborn resistance shown later when corporate issues met selling.

The bidding for Federals was said in banking circles to have been prompted by the statement of Secretary Morgenthau that business betterment has been accompanied by an increase in revenues.

Week-End Trade Slow.

A ragged rally was the best the stock market could achieve at final session as liquidation ebbed at the week-end.

Gains of fractions to more than a point predominated among the most active issues at the close of a dull session but the list generally made virtually no headway on the upside.

The Associated Press average for 60 stocks finished unchanged at 67.9, with a small advance in the utility group offsetting a dip in the rails. Turnover dropped to 366,320 shares, the smallest for a Saturday session since June 27, and compared with 865,270 a week ago.

Copper shares and an assortment of industrial specialities in the business news spotlight were favored on the rallying tendencies. But it was difficult to whip up enthusiasm considering the usual week-end urge to take things easy and the desire of many traders to wait for a clearer view of autumn prospects.

The undertone of strength in markets for industrial metals, notably copper and steel scrap, focused speculative interest on those groups. Some of the textiles, especially in the rayon industry, also attracted fair demand on the rally in view of latest reports of forward wholesale buying and the firm price structure.

In contrast with the narrow movements of most issues, Philip Morris broke sharply preceding announcement of the death of the company's president, L. B. McKitterick. It finished 5 points lower around 90 after absorbing considerable selling.

Some of the Losses.

Losses ranging to more than a point also were recorded at the finish for American Telephone, du Pont, Santa Fe, Allied Chemical, Union Carbibe and U. S. Rubber. Union Pacific dropped three points as the unseasonal drop in freight carloadings last week dampened ardor for the rails.

Some week-end short-covering was held to have been a factor in the rally of shares under moderate pressure earlier in the week. Those closing fractionally to more than a point higher included J. I. Case, American Can, United States Steel, General Motors and Industrial Rayon.

Kennecott sold at a new peak at 48½, up 1⅛ and Anaconda added ¾ at 40¼. International Business Machines bulged three points to 168. Chrysler ended fractionally higher at 114.

On other sectors of the financial front week-end quiet also prevailed. Bonds were narrow. United States Government obligatons held near top levels in face of the 50 per cent boost in reserve requirements for member banks of the Federal Reserve system. Bankers looked for little change in money conditions despite the expected sharp reduction in surplus loanable funds made the new reserve requirements.

A late rally left wheat futures fractionally to more than a cent a bushel higher and corn a little higher, keeping the focus on advancing commodity prices. Cotton futures ended 25 cents lower to 5 cents a bale higher. Leading foreign currencies were unchanged in terms of the dollar.

$15,000,000,000 CUT IN 'POSSIBLE' CREDIT

New Reserve Bank Requirements in Effect—Local Bank Calculations Next Week.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Bank reserves capable of expansion into 15 billion dollars of credit shrank away today as the Federal Reserve Board's order increasing reserve requirements by 50 per cent to prevent "a possible injurious credit expansion" became effective.

Excess bank reserves, the basis of credit throughout the American business world, were pulled from a near peak of some $3,170,000,000 as reported for the close of business Wednesday, to a point between $1,700,000,000 and $1,750,000,000.

The difference or roughly $1,500,000,000, was locked in a Federal Reserve vault, no longer available to the banks for lending. In banking circles $1 of reserves is regarded as capable of multiplication into $10 of credit.

This reduction was accomplished by increasing the proportion of the banks' own deposits which they are required to keep as reserves with the Federal Reserve banks.

Local Banks to Calculate New Rates Next Week.

The increase in reserve requirements ordered by the Federal Reserve Bank went into effect yesterday when St. Louis banks were required to keep 15 per cent of their demand deposits and 4½ per cent of their time deposits on deposit at the Federal Reserve Bank. The new requirements represent increases of 50 per cent.

Banks generally already had excess reserves with the Federal Reserve Bank so the new regulation was put into effect with no difficulty. The St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank, in its weekly statement issued Friday showed an increase of $12,331,000 in its reserve deposits. The total was $159,085,000.

William McC. Martin, president of the bank, said it would be two weeks before the bank could determine accurately what percentage of the reserve deposits represented excess reserves. St. Louis and cities in which there are branches of the St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank will make the calculation next week, but the banks in other cities have two weeks in which to average their daily deposits and determine the required reserve.

The new reserve requirements were not expected to increase money rates locally. In banking circles it was said there was a firm undertone to the money market and the demand was increasing but any advance in the prevailing rates was not anticipated before the late fall at earliest.

London Board of Trade Report.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The following are the Board of Trade figures for the month of July: Total imports £68,730,000; exports of British products £40,080,000; re-exports £4,990,000; total exports, £45,070,000; excess of imports £23,660,000.

EXPORT COPPER PRICE MAKES 5-YEAR PEAK

More Active Buying by Domestic Consumers—Advance Expected.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Copper commanded most attention in metals last week, developing added strength in the foreign market and more active buying by domestic consumers.

Export copper sold on a parity with the domestic price, touching 9¾ cents a pound, c. i. f. European base ports, the highest price in more than five years.

Discussion anent the possibility of a rise in the domestic base was general, and while some opposition to the agitation was noted, majority sentiment seemed to be that a rise was imminent.

The Spanish political situation probably accelerated munitions ubying abroad, and anxiety over the price situation speeded up domestic buying.

Tin advanced 1 cent a pound, but reacted later and ended the week about unchanged. Alternately favorable and unfavorable reports concerning status of the restrictions negotiations kept sentiment unsettled.

Active buying from diversified sources featured lead. With 70 per cent of September requirements under contract, buyers would assume October commitments if producers were willing to sell. Cable and building industries were among the more conspicuous buyers.

Zinc was quiet and unchanged. Domestic consumption was brisk in both the steel and brass industries, and the impending weekly sales report on Tuesday is expected to show a fair-sized turnover, reflecting in part the rise in galvanized sheet production to 63 per cent.

A vacation shutdown in several Pittsburgh plants accounted largely for a reduction in steel ingot production from 72 to 71 per cent of capacity.

While Chinese antimony in bond was nominally unchanged, American grades declined ¼ cent.

Washington Commerce Notes

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. — The Treasury has announced that in order to obtain an extension of time for the payment of the windfall tax levied in the 1936 revenue bill, the taxpayer must show that payment would result in "substantial financial loss," not merely "inconvenience." The ruling was made on the provision in the law permitting three-year extensions upon a showing that "undue hardship" would result from payment on the date due.

The Commerce Department reports total exports of grains and flour for the week ended Aug. 8 were 2,666,000 pounds, as compared with 2,732,000 pounds in the previous week and 2,732,000 in the corresponding week of 1935. Imports of wheat for consumption from Canada, meanwhile totaled 1,108,000 pounds for the week ended Aug. 8, 1,019,000 for the week ended Aug. 1; and 121,000,000 pounds for the week ended Aug. 10, 1935.

In response to many inquiries into the purchase of long term Government bonds by the national banks, J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the currency, has listed such holdings as follows: Government bonds maturing after 1949, $964,876,000 on Dec. 31, 1935; $855,563,000 on March 4, 1936, and $1,824,660,000 on June 30, 1936. He listed total holdings of Government bonds or Government-guaranteed bonds as follows: $7,812,112,000 on Dec. 31, 1935, $7,785,979,000 on March 4, 1936, and $8,447,364,000 on June 30, 1936.

Ernest G. Draper, acting Secretary of Commerce, estimates that America, has a creditor-position of $7,250,000,000 in world finance. He figures American holdings of foreign securities at $4,800,000,000, direct investments abroad at $7,800,000,000 and American-owned short term credits abroad at $850,000,000—a total of $13,450,000,000. Foreign holdings of American securities he sets at $5,000,000,000 and foreign-owned short-term credits here at $1,200,000,000—a total of $6,200,000,000.

The Commerce Department's summary of business trends says reports now at hand "confirm earlier indications that July brought a less-than-seasonal decline in retail sales," noting that the Reserve Board's seasonally adjusted index of department store sales advanced from 88 in June to 91 in July, the first time since the summer of 1931 that the index has been above 90. By comparison with sales for July, 1935, that month this year was 14 per cent higher.

The Federal Reserve Board attributes the fact that excess reserves are holding below the level estimated for Aug. 15 by the board when it ordered required reserves increased to the fact that repayments of old loans to New Deal lending agencies have unexpectedly been supplying the Treasury with large amounts of cash. Otherwise, a spokesman said, the latter would have drawn on its deposits with reserve banks, disbursed the funds into the stream of commerce, in which they would flow into excess reserve balances.

$2,000,000 Expansion Program.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Clarence Francis, president of General Foods Corporation, announced today a $2,000,000 expansion program for the company, including construction of two new factories at Battle Creek, Mich., to cost about $1,200,000.

The expansion of facilities was made necessary by the current heavy demand for packaged cereal products, Francis said.

FOREIGN CURRENCIES SLUGGISH LAST WEEK

Several Million Dollars of Gold Engaged for Shipment From Paris.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Despite a pronounced improvement in the international political situation, especially that part of it centering in Spain, leading foreign currencies remained sluggish in terms of the dollar this week.

French francs descended to the level where they could be profitably converted into gold for shipment out of France and international banking quarters reported the engagement of several million dollars worth of the yellow metal. The current movement was the first since June 19, when the france recovered substantially as a result of improved internal conditions within the republic.

Holland guilders and Swiss francs, while moving sympathetically with the French unit, nevertheless found enough support to keep losses at a minimum. Both units finished within a small fraction of the rate ruling at the start of the week. The British pound sterling bobbed up and down alternately with the flow of funds from Paris to London to New York but finished about unchanged.

Firmness in Shanghai and Hongkong dollars provided the principal feature in far eastern currencies. The Spanish peseta continued without benefit of a quotation as a result of the moratorium in Spain.

Leading foreign currencies were at a standstill in most exchange centers at the final session of the week.

In the quietest kind of dealings, partially attributed to the closing of all banks and exchange places in Paris in observance of Assumption day, French francs, Holland guilders, Swiss francs and the British pound sterling remained at Friday's closing levels in New York.

In London gold currencies displayed a steady undertone in terms of sterling and the dollar. The latter closed 1-16 of a cent lower against sterling.

LOANS AND DISCOUNTS CONTINUE TO GROW

Week's Increase of $3,299,000 Brings Total Up to $146,907,000 for Local Banks.

Loans and discounts in St. Louis Clearing House Association member banks recorded another gain last week, increasing $3,299,000 to $146,907,000, another new high mark, according to the statement issued as of the close of business Friday.

Demand deposits increased $6,256,000 to $282,226,000; bank deposits decreased $4,013,000 to $158,978,000; time deposits increased $32,000 to $100,449,001; total deposits increased $2,275,000 to $541,653,000; bond and stock accounts decreased $1,134,000 to $265,720,000; total resources increased $2,688,000 to $597,034,000; total lawful reserves increased $2,023,000 to $75,366,000.

Total clearings last week amounted to $86,500,000 compared with $81,000,000 the preceding week (five days). Debits to individual accounts last week totaled $124,700,000 compared with $121,500,000 the previous week (five days) and $119,900,000 the corresponding week last year The daily average debits to individual accounts last week was $20,833,000 compared with $24,300,000 the preceding week and $19,983,000 the corresponding week last year.

Local money rates were as follows; prime commercial paper, ¾ per cent; customers' loans, 1½@5 per cent; collateral loans, 2@6 per cent; loans secured by warehouse receipts, 1@5 per cent.

PRICES OF SCRAP STEEL AT NEW HIGH LEVELS

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Influenced by the unusual midsummer activity in the steel industry, prices of scrap material have soared to new high levels in several of the leading markets, steel circles disclosed today.

One of the sharpest advances was reported at Chicago where the quotation for heavy melting material was marked up 75 cents to $15.50-$16 a ton. Cleveland dealers boosted prices 50 cents a ton, while Pittsburgh and Detroit markets rose 25 cents.

Demand for scrap steel is ordinarily governed by the rate of production of steel mills. With the industry operating at 70 per cent of capacity or higher during the last few months, the producers have shown willingness to buy large tonnages of scrap for melting purposes.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 15.—Wheat futures closed about one penny lower due to yesterday's reaction in the Winnipeg market and a smaller miller demand.

Cotton closed lower, bullish weather reports being offset by European uncertainties, realizing and Bombay liquidation.

London and Paris closed on Saturday.

Cotton Crop Estimate Higher Than Was Expected.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Such adjustments as were prompted by the higher official crop figures than expected were accomplished on declines of between 30 and 40 points from pre-bureau levels in the cotton market early this week.

Rallies followed on reports of continued dry, hot weather in the Western belt and numerous reports of deteriorating crop conditions in other sections, but after selling up from 11.66c to 12.15c for December, the market encountered increased selling.

This was accompanied by expressions of doubt in some quarters as to whether advances above the 12c level were likely to be maintained in the face of an increasing new crop movement, and there were sharp reactions toward the end of the week.

The Government report placing the indicated crop as of Aug. 1 at 12,481,000 bales, was about 300,000 bales in excess of expectations, but as soon as technical adjustments had been completed attention turned to further progress of the crop.

Ideas as to early season export outlets have been somewhat unsettled b yelimination of "aski" marks in trading with Germany' but optimistic views of domestic consumption have been maintained by reports of continued good retail turnovers, and, while quiet, the primary cloth markets have held steady, as mills are believed to be supplied with good backlogs of old orders.

Domestic consumption for July was estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service at 581,000 bales, against 391,000 last year.

COMMODITY INDEX AT NEW PEAK LEVEL

Drouth Losses Remain Dominant Force Behind Rising Price Curve.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Advancing prices along a rather broad front swept the Associated Press index of quotations for 35 commodities to the highest point for several years in the past week.

Drouth losses in wide sectors of farm production remained a dominant force behind the rising price curve, as was evident in new highs for the year touched by indices of agricultural and livestock groups.

The advance broadened to include a wider variety of products. The industrial index also touched a new 1936 peak and rising price spurred forward buying of goods.

Except wheat, leading grains in the week ended yesterday added one to more than two cents a bushel to previous gains. Wheat showed a net loss, but traders watched the latest heat wave on the possibility it might generate another bullish ouburst in the grain pit.

Food prices on the average, however, dropped back moderately as egg, butter and flour quotations declined.

Index at 80.46.

The Associated Press index for the 35 commodities advanced to 80.46 per cent of the 1926 average from 80.06 the preceding week and 75.37 in the comparable period a year ago.

Prices on the average now have more than recouped losses on a reaction which ran from early in the year into spring, when heavy snows and rains and larger plantings raised visions of more bountiful crops.

Since June those visions have faded with reports of mounting drouth damage and official description of the dry spell as the worst on record.

The recent advance in farm prices has duplicated the trend after the 1934 drouth. That rise extended well into 1935, when larger yields replenished home supplies and checked imports.

Cotton was an exception to the main trend of farm staples. Benefiting from generous rains in parts of the South, the staple has been doing well. The first Government estimate, published at the close of the preceding week, forecast a larger yield than the trade had expected.

Cotton futures broke sharply on the estimate when the New York market resumed and did not fully recover the loss later.

Strength of Steel Scrap.

Strength in steel scrap and in export prices of copper accompanied the high summer operating rate of the steel industry and war preparations abroad. Export copper sold at 9¾ cents a pound, equaling the domestic quotation, and led to expectations in the trade of another boost in the domestic quotation if the demand holds. The statistical position of the industry has improved markedly.

The index and component groups, with 1926 average wholesale prices equal to 100, compared as follows:

CURB LIST STEADY IN A QUIET TRADE

A Number of Issues Added Major Fractions—Sales Only 85,000 Shares.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—With many traders away for the week-end, stocks in the Curb Market held steady, or edged higher on very light volume today.

A small number of shares added major fractions. Among them were Aluminum Company of America, up ¾ at 131½; E. W. Bliss, up ⅝ at 19¼, and Technicolor, up ¾ at 28¾.

Humble Oil gained ⅝ to 677, as International Petroleum and Imperial Oil held steady at 34½ and 20¾, respectively. Gulf Oil sagged ½ to 87½ and Creole Petroleum ¼ to 21⅛.

Electric Bond and Share improved ¼ to 23¼, while other pivotal utility shares were unchanged from the previous close.

Transactions were 85,000 shares, compared with 175,000 last Saturday.

PRICES OF SCRAP STEEL AT NEW HIGH LEVELS

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Influenced by the unusual midsummer activity in the steel industry, prices of scrap material have soared to new high levels in several of the leading markets, steel circles disclosed today.

One of the sharpest advances was reported at Chicago where the quotation for heavy melting material was marked up 75 cents to $15.50-$16 a ton. Cleveland dealers boosted prices 50 cents a ton, while Pittsburgh and Detroit markets rose 25 cents.

Demand for scrap steel is ordinarily governed by the rate of production of steel mills. With the industry operating at 70 per cent of capacity or higher during the last few months, the producers have shown willingness to buy large tonnages of scrap for melting purposes.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 15.—Wheat futures closed about one penny lower due to yesterday's reaction in the Winnipeg market and a small miller demand.

Cotton closed lower, bullish weather reports being offset by European uncertainties, realizing and Bombay liquidation.

London and Paris closed on Saturday.

SLIGHT INCREASE IN LOCAL STOCK TRADE

Prices Show Mixed Changes as a Result of the Week's Turnover.

There was a slight increase in the aggregate volume of business on the St. Louis Stock Exchange last week with prices at the close about equally divided between gains and losses. Several issues moved beyond the market's general average range. Hydraulic Brake preferred sold up 4¼ points and Brown Shoe was down 2 points.

Rice-Stix and Ely & Walker were higher as were Missouri Portland and Dr. Pepper and Scullin Steel preference.

National Candy and Wagner Electric were lower on the week.

Sales in Saturday's session were as follows: Hussman-Ligonier 25 shares, at 13½ and 13¾, down ¼; Hussmann-Ligonier preferred 109 at 13½ and 13¾, up ¼; Griesedieck-Western Brew, 50 at 16, down ¼; International Shoe, 2 at 48; Rice-Stix, 100 at 10, unchanged; Rice-Stix first preferred, 1 at 112; Southwestern Bell preferred, 30 at 125½, unchanged; Wagner Electric, 12 at 34½ and 34, down ¼.

TREASURY DRAWS HEAVILY UPON 'WORKING' DEPOSITS

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The Treasury has been drawing heavily upon its "working" deposits in the federal reserve banks for bonus and relief expenditures. Its balances at the reserve banks, which ranged from about $500,000,000 to more than a $1,000,000,000 through the first seven months of the year, have fallen below $350,000,000.

Further withdrawals were anticipated since the Treasury apparently has abandoned its policy of maintaining its working balance at the reserve banks above $500,000,000 as a check upon expansion in surplus loanable funds. Some interpret the decline as meaning Federal authorities no longer saw a need for the policy in view of the boost in reserve requirements for member banks of the system.

The Treasury's "general account" with the reserve banks compared as follows:

Week ended Aug. 12 ...$338,062,000.
Preceding week ....$439,391,000.
Same week last year ...$ 33,798,000

WEEK'S SALES ON LOCAL STOCK EXCHANGE

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, Aug. 15.—Sales of stock on the local board during the week amounted to 6633 shares, compared with 11,717 the previous week. Bond sales were $1000, compared with $8000 the preceding week.

Iron Ore Shipments Greater.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 15.—The Lake Superior Iron Ore Association reported today shipments of iron ore from upper lake ports in July totaled 7,159,563 tons, compared with 4,460,536 tons in July a year ago.

For the season to Aug. 1 total shipments were 18,837,073 tons, compared with 12,606,029 tons up to Aug. 1 a year ago.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY SLACKENS AFTER RISE

Ten Weeks' Advance Had Carried Index to Top Since February, 1930.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—A slackening of activity along the industrial front is indicated in this week's business barometers after a strong recovery march carrying through July.

The Associated Press index of industrial activity shows a moderate decline, interrupting an advance that ran for 10 consecutive weeks and lifted it to the highest point since February, 1930.

The setback recorded in the composite statistical data published the past week was regarded widely in the financial community as a natural reaction.

The index of automobile production dropped abruptly as motor makers prepared to shift into manufacture of new models and take inventory.

Railroad carloadings declined unexpectedly after climbing strongly to peak levels of the year last month.

Figures for cotton manufacturing and residential building moved forward to new 1936 highs but four of the six components of the Associated Press index worked out at lower figures.

The composite index stands at 94.7 per cent of the 1929-30 average compared with 95.8 the previous week and 73.1 in the corresponding week a year ago.

Adjusted for seasonal changes, with 1929-30 activity equal to 100, the index and its component groups follow:

	Latest Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Composite index	94.7	95.8	73.1
Auto. production	70.7	91.2	63.4
Steel mill activity	94.0	95.8	64.6

STRONG MARKET FOR U. S. BONDS DURING WEEK

New High for Year or Longer Recorded by Both Direct and Guaranteed Loans.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—A strong market for U. S. Government obligations held major attention in bond market circles the past week.

Aided by special news developments and other constructive factors, new highs for the year or longer were recorded by both direct and guaranteed Federal loans and most of the advantage was held despite easing tendencies in other departments of the market at the week-end.

Increased demand by banking institutions which had completed whatever adjustments were necessary to conform to the new balance requirements of the Federal Reserve Board; the statement of Secretary Morgenthau that no new taxes were needed at this time and that the Federal budget would be balanced "earlier than expected" were among the more favorable items.

The main run of corporate bonds moved a trifle irregularly despite the strong background provided by Government liens and the foreign division. Low-priced issues that are normally influenced by stock trends eased off toward the close of the week under profit taking, while standard investment ratings held about even.

Foreign Dollar Bonds Strong.

Foreign dollar bonds developed a strong undertone with a turn for the better in the Spanish revolution. Italian Government and municipals, Polish issues and others were conspicuous gainers. Bonds of the International Telephone & Telegraph Co., which had been under severe pressure for a week or longer, likewise recovered a considerable amount of lost ground. The company owns the telephone monopoly in Spain.

New offerings for the week were slightly over $20,000,000 of which a rail issue constituted the biggest piece. A sharp upturn in new financing next week by corporations, states and municipalities was looked for. The largest single piece definitely on the calendar was the $45,000,000 State of Pennsylvania notes, tenders of which have been invited for Wednesday.

A steady undertone in high grade corporate and Government issues provided a bright spot in an otherwise colorless bond market at final sessions.

Changes in all groups were narrow and the small turnover of $3,616,000, par value, attested the absence from the financial community of many traders and others who ordinarily interest themselves in the loan market.

What Averages Show.

The Associated Press average of 10 low-yield bonds advanced .1 of a point to 111.9, or within .4 of a point of the 1936 high. Other domestic groups used in the compilation were unchanged to .1 of a point lower. The 10 foreign bonds averaged .1 of a point higher, largely as a result of an advance to 1¼ points in German 7s.

While sales in the Government section totaled less than $500,000 most of the active treasuries ended the week around recently established peaks. Gains ranged from 1-32 of a point to 3-32. Longer term maturities were favored over others.

Foreign dollar bonds were mixed. Fractional gains were shown by Italian 7s and Rome 6½s, while Cuban 5½s and Serbian 7s eased.

BAR GOLD, SILVER AND MONEY

The St. Louis Clearing House Association reported clearings for Aug. 15, 1936, $13,200,000; corresponding day last year $11,900,000; this year $2,721,400,000; corresponding period last year $2,418,200,000. WHEAT MARKET RECOVERS LOSS, CLOSES HIGHER Abrupt Late Advance Results Largely From Reports That Kansas City Was Buying Back Wheat Sold to Omaha.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Abrupt late advances in wheat markets today resulted largely from reports that Kansas City was purchasing wheat back which recently had been sold to Omaha.

In sudden rushes to buy that took place during the last half-hour of trading here, previous speculative sellers both of wheat and corn made haste to reverse their market position, and found offerings relatively scarce. Complaints of abnormal dearth of subsoil moisture southwest likely to hold up fall planting of domestic hard winter wheat were reported as a reason for repurchases at Kansas City.

Assisting the late show of general new strength in wheat values was a firmer tone at Winnipeg, where earlier all wheat futures had fallen to below $1 a bushel. Incidentally, world carry-over stocks of wheat were estimated today at 440,000,000 bushels, against 589,000,000 a year ago, a reduction of 149,000,000 bushels.

Close Is Nervous.

Wheat closed nervous, ½@1¼c over yesterday's finish, September $1.11¼@⅜, December $1.10⅞@1.11, May $1.10⅞@1.11; corn ⅛@½c advanced, September $1.08@1.08¼, December 95¼@⅜c, May 91¼@⅜c; oats unchanged to ⅜c higher, December 43⅞c, and rye 1¼@1⅞c up. The provisions outcome was 2c to 20c decline.

At the maximum, Chicago wheat prices today showed 2 cents a bushel overnight gain with September at $1.11½. Eastern houses were on the buying side of the market during early declines of prices, and apparently took all the surplus supply out of the futures pit. Weakness of Liverpool and Winnipeg quotations was an outstanding influence at this stage, together with assertions that European milling interests were holding off, and that Argentina has sown larger than normal wheat acreage.

A peculiar development was that although cables reiterated Liverpool wheat, traders were sharply watching the tense political situation centering about strife in Spain. Liverpool closing prices today were in some cases virtually 2 cents a bushel down overnight. It was also stated European demand for wheat was slow, with only a small scattered business reported. Meanwhile, Winnipeg arrivals of wheat today continued large, 799 cars.

Winnipeg Turns Higher.

Late advices from Winnipeg, however, showed October and May wheat contracts bouncing back to well above the dollar level. Rains overnight in the prairie provinces were reported as mostly in northern districts, but with a forecast of further showers unwelcome at harvest time.

Corn, oats and rye rallied with wheat, despite additional and more widespread moisture in the corn belt. Rye in particular turned decidedly strong following a fractional dip.

Packing interests were sellers of provisions.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 25,658,000 bushels; corn, 12,807,000. Open interest in wheat was 91,435,000 bushels and in corn, 43,722,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS EXCHANGE, Aug. 15.—There were no sales made in future market. September wheat was bid up ⅝c.

Winnipeg wheat opened ¼@½c lower and early was ¼@¾c off. The close was ⅜c lower to ¼c net higher.

Liverpool wheat opened ¾@1¼d lower and closed 1⅛@1½d lower.

HORSES AND MULES.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., Aug. 15.—Horse and mule receipts were liberal the past week and selling showed an improved tone under the stimulus of a broad Southern demand. Almost every important State south of the Mason-Dixon line was represented in the buying column. The offering embraced approximately 1000 head, almost all of which were horses. There was a good clearance.

A ready outlet prevailed for attractive young mules from yearlings up. Horse colts and geldings, on the other hand, were hard to sell at a satisfactory price. Cotton mules were on a strong basis and dealers said demand is sufficient for any kind of a run. Colt mules, too, had a good trade and all grades were wanted.

Receipts the coming week will include 350 Montana horses, all one brand. Inspection of Cuban riding horses is still in progress and some 1200 head are still to be purchased here.

*NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $125@160; medium to good draft, $100@125; good to choice chunks, $100@125; smooth-mouthed chunks, $80@110; large farm mares, $125@150; medium farm mares, $90@110; fillies, yearlings and twos; small, common, $30@50; good size, $60@85; extra size and quality, $120@160; (horse colts sell $15@25 per head less than fillies); good Southern mares, $75@100; small Southern mares, $40@60; small cheap horses, $30@50.

*MULE QUOTATIONS.

Farm mules, 15.2 to 16 hands, $110@140; colt mules, good size and bone, $100@150; colt mules, small, $60@85; draft mules, $125@150; mine mules, 15.3 to 16 hands, $120@140; mine mules, 14 to 15 hands, $75@100; choice cotton mules, 15.1 to 16 hands, $135@160; choice cotton mules, 14.2 to 15 hands, $110@125; small green mules over 3 years old, $40@70.

*Quotations are for average animals and do not cover those of outstanding quality or the very cheapest grade.

PARTIAL RECOVERIES IN COTTON AFTER DECLINE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Early declines were followed by partial recoveries in cotton today. Covering and trade buying was induced by the unexpectedly heavy domestic consumption figures and prospects for continued dry weather in the Western belt. December sold up from 11.69 to 11.82 and closed at 11.78 with the general market steady, net 5 points lower to 1 point higher.

The opening was 4 to 12 points lower in response to easy Liverpool cables, foreign selling and liquidation. Some stop orders were uncovered by the initial decline but after their execution offerings tapered off and prices later advanced on the unfavorable weather news and private reports of crop deterioration.

The report of the Census Bureau placed domestic consumption for July at 603,203 bales, or about 22,000 bales above the recent forecast.

This figure compared with consumption of 390,712 bales last year and the previous high record for July of a little over 600,000 bales reported in 1933.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 29,000 bales, against 22,000 last year.

Spot quiet; middling, 12.36.

Memphis Spot Cotton.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 15.—Spot cotton had a steady tone today. Middling closed 11.90c, compared with 11.95c yesterday. Sales were 383 bales.

New Orleans Spot Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug 15.—Spot cotton closed steady, 7 points down. Sales, 1977; low middling 10.87, middling 12.12, good middling 12.72.

PLAYGROUND CRAFTS EXHIBIT THIS WEEK

More Than 15,000 Articles Made at 46 School Centers Will Be Shown.

The annual handicraft and industrial play exhibit of the public school playgrounds will be held Wednesday and Thursday from 2 to 9 p. m. at the Hadley Vocational School, 3419 Bell avenue. More than 15,000 articles, made at the 46 school centers since the season opened June 15, will be exhibited.

Each playground center will have its own display booth and will exhibit a representative doll made by the entire group. Each doll will represent a particular nationality and will be appropriately costumed.

This year's exhibit will be the most colorful and largest in variety and number in several years. Authorities attribute the increase to the unusually hot weather which has curtailed playground games and necessitated the introduction of new projects to fulfill recreation demands.

Puppet shows will be presented by four of the school playgrounds. On Wednesday, Walnut Park will give "Bluebeard" in the afternoon at 3:30; in the evening Fanning School children will present "Jack and the Beanstalk" at 8. Thursday's program includes "Ali Baba" to be given in the afternoon at 3:30 by the Hogden School children and a miniature interpretation of "Hanzel and Gretel" to be presented at 8 by Ashland pupils.

Children from the 10 Negro playgrounds will present their exhibit at the Cole School, 3935 Enright avenue, on Friday from 2 to 9 p. m.

Handicraft on the school playgrounds is under the supervision of Viola Holland, Marion Bernard, Hallie Wharton, Russell Hibbert and Arthur Kreyling.

KANSAS CITY G. O. P. PLEA TO SAFEGUARD FALL ELECTION

Chairman Says St. Louis Is Taking Every Commercial Advantage of Its Investigation.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 15.—In a letter to the Jackson County Board of Election Commissioners, the Republican County Committee today asked that steps be taken to "safeguard" the November election.

Bennett M. McGregor, chairman of the Republican group, asserted the primary election frauds, as well as the frauds committed in the last city election, are a matter of grave concern to the citizens of Kansas City."

McGregor wrote that "registration from hotels and apartments in Kansas City is notoriously fraudulent, and a substantial part of the fraud in registration can be eliminated if the registration from hotels is confined to those who actually live there." He cited provisions of the Missouri law which required innkeepers to submit lists of bona fide lodgers at request onf a election commissioner.

McGregor asserted that St. Louis was taking "every commercial advantage of its election investigation and that "Kansas City cannot afford, from a commercial standpoint ,to permit St. Louis to outstrip it in the elimination of frauds."

WIFE OF COL. R. L. JACKSON DIES SUDDENLY AT ALTON

Had Received Injection for Trench Mouth at Doctor's Office; Husband Head of Military Academy.

Mrs. Mary Borden Jackson, wife of Col. Ralph L. Jackson, president of Western Military Academy, Alton, died suddenly at noon yesterday after receiving an injection for trench mouth at the office of Dr. Mather Pfeiffenberger in Alton.

She was talking with Dr. Pfeiffenberger, her family physician, when she collapsed. Efforts to revive her with oxygen were futile, and the Coroner was notified. It was not expected there would be an inquest. Mrs. Jackson started treatment for a trench mouth infection after returning to Alton a week ago from a vacation cruise on Lake Michigan.

Mrs. Jackson, 44 years old, was a native of Chicago and a graduate of Monticello College, at Godfrey, Ill. She and Col. Jackson were married in 1914. They have three sons, Ralph 18, Charles 14 and William 12 years old.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the military academy with burial in Oakwood Cemetery.

HANS PETER KOKEN, ARTIST, PUT ON DEPORTATION TRAIN

Case Developed After Arrest for Passing Worthless Checks; Once Before Expelled.

Hans Peter Koken, German artist, who has been in jail at Belleville since last April awaiting deportation, was put on a special train here last night to be deported from Galveston, Tex.

Koken, 50 years old, painted several portraits in St. Louis before he was arrested and sent to the City Workhouse for cashing worthless checks. He was arrested by immigration authorities when it was discovered he had been deported from this country once before and had violated immigration rules in obtaining a permit to enter the country as a visitor without stating that fact.

At the time of his entry he said he was a member of Salon de Paris and the German Society of Art and that his late father had been president of the latter society.

COTTON STATES STUDY OF TENANT PROBLEM

Governor of Arkansas Calls Conference, Receives Pledges of Co-operation.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 16.—Governors of cotton-growing States pledged co-operation today in a movement started by Gov. J. M. Futrell of Arkansas to find a solution of the South's 70-year-old farm tenant and sharecropper problems.

Gov. Futrell called a conference to conduct an impartial study of the tenancy question. Futrell, who has announced his intention to retire to private life at the end of his term in January, has moved to name an Arkansas commission. Hot Springs, far removed from the troubled East Arkansas sharecropper belt, was proposed for the conference meeting place.

Futrell said he felt a solution could be worked out through cooperation of Federal and State agencies, indicating he believed a program for assisting tenant farmers in purchasing their own farms through long-term financing offered the brightest hope for what he described as an "underprivileged class."

Allred Pledges Co-operation.

Gov. James V. Allred of Texas was one of the first to pledge cooperation. "The Governor of Arkansas has a very worthy objective," said Allred. "I am in complete sympathy with any concerned move to change farm tenants into farm owners."

At Columbia, S. C., Gov. Olin D. Johnston said: "My father was a tenant farmer and I worked as a boy on a tenant farm, so naturally I would be interested in anything that will aid the farmers, especially the tenant farmers, of the State and Nation."

Commissioner of Agriculture J. C. Holton of Mississippi said: "It might be a good idea for the friends of the South to get together and work out some plan for stopping all this propaganda about sharecroppers that is designed to hurt the South."

Discussion Never Hurts.

"It never hurts to discuss a situation," said Gov. Richard Leche of Louisiana. Although they said their tenant problems were not as pressing, Gov. George Peery of Virginia, Gov. E. W. Marland of Oklahoma, and Gov. Hill McAllister of Tennessee expressed similar opinion.

Attorney-General Cummings said in Washington this week that a Federal grand jury in Little Rock would be asked to investigate charges of peonage in Arkansas cotton fields.

Brien McMahon, assistant Attorney General, expressed interest today in the southwide conference proposed by Futrell, but said it would have no effect upon the Government's proposed investigation.

GRANITE CITY BOY KILLED

Delmar Hyle, 13, Hit by Freight Train Near Chicago.

Delmar Hyle, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Sale Hyle of Granite City, died Friday at La Salle, Ill., of internal injuries suffered when struck by a freight train near Chicago last Tuesday.

The accident occurred while Hyle was walking along the railroad tracks and did not hear the train which hit him from behind. His legs were crushed. They were later amputated below the knee. The body has been returned to Granite City for funeral services today.

LANDON COMPLETES PLANS FOR EASTERN SPEAKING TRIP

Will Make 14 Brief Stops in Illinois; To Make Railroad Change in St. Louis.

By the Associated Press.

ESTES PARK, Colo., Aug. 15.—Gov. Alf M. Landon completed plans today for his first eastern campaign drive which will include three major speeches, 50 rear platform appearances, and many of political conferences.

The Republican presidential nominee's itinerary will begin at LaSalle, Colo., Aug. 20, and take him through Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Missouri and to Topeka by Aug. 27. Landon will make more than 30 stops on his east bound trip and 15 west bound from New York. He will talk with local party leaders in a lounge car.

Pennsylvania was chosen for his first Eastern speech, and President Roosevelt's home State for the next two. Landon put Illinois down for 14 rear platform appearances.

Among Illinois towns listed for three-minute stops Aug. 27 are Bloomington, Lincoln, Virden, Carlinville, Alton, Granite City and East St. Louis. The Governor will place a wreath on the tomb of Abraham Lincoln at Springfield. There will be a stop in St. Louis for a railroad change between 5:10 and 8:23 p. m. The train will make stops at Washington, Jefferson City, Sedalia and Warrensburg.

DROUTH COMMITTEE STARTS 3000-MILE INSPECTION TRIP

Report on Devastation in Nine States to Be Made to Roosevelt and Wallace.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The Great Plains Drouth Committee, asked by President Roosevelt to hand him concrete suggestions for a long time national program for the dry regions, left today for Amarillo, Tex.

The group will leave there Monday on a 3000-mile inspection of drouth devastation in Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Montana, Wyoming and the Dakotas.

Officials plan to present a report to Mr. Roosevelt when he and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace arrive in South Dakota late this month.

Two favorable reports on the National Agricultural picture were made public. Cash receipts to farmers from sale of principal products during the first half of this year were reorted almost a half billion dollars above the same period last year, by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. The totals were $3,132,000,000 for the first six months this year compared to $2,670,000,000 in 1935.

FOREST FIRES UNDER CONTROL

Precautions Taken to Prevent New Blazes in Minnesota.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 15.—Precautions were taken by forestry authorities today to guard against another outbreak of smouldering brush and forest fires, which swept over 300,000 acres in Minnesota.

Rain Thursday night and Friday, enabled fire fighters to check the flames. Forestry officials have closed to travel all secondary roads in the fire zone. This they explained is to keep the roads clear for trucks hauling men and equipment. No new fires were reported today for the first time in two weeks.

In the Wisconsin fire zones, Bennett and Chaffey, where lives and property were threatened three days ago, all fires were reported burned out.

GUILD STRIKE BARS SUNDAY EDITIONS OF SEATTLE PAPER

Hearst Makes No Attempt to Issue Post-Intelligencer — Stopped Publication Thursday.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 15.—The Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Hearst morning newspaper which suspended publication indefinitely Thursday after members of the American Newspaper Guild called a strike, made no effort today to get out Sunday editions, which have a circulation of about 150,000.

Picket lines blockading the plant were quiet and police reported no new violence or further arrests. Only watchmen were in the building.

J. M. Litonius, president of the Seattle Typographical Union, whose members have refused to go through picket lines into the building, explained their stand in a letter to the editor of the Seattle Star. He pledged himself to order his men into the Star plant or any other printing office the Post-Intelligencer management might elect to use, "provided safe ingress and egress" is assured, and added: "However, you well know that if you should avail yourselves of this offer, or if managers of other plants should so avail themselves, your plant or theirs would, in all probability, have to suspend because of picketing, as did the Post-Intelligencer."

The Guild chapter, headed by Richard Seller, former Post-Intelligencer reporter, published its second daily newspaper today. An announcement on its first page said: "From this day on, as long as William Randolph Hearst fails to give the citizens of Seattle a morning paper, the American Newspaper Guild will."

Officials of the Post-Intelligencer said the strike had been called after its refusal to reinstate two men who had been discharged, one for "waste and inefficiency" and the other for "gross insubordination." The Guild replied that the two men had been discharged for activity in organizing a Guild chapter. The Regional Labor Board, directed by Charles Hope, served a complaint on the newspaper on Thursday, and set a hearing for Sept. 8.

Jonathan Eddy, national executive secretary of the Guild, is on his way west by plane. Seller said Eddy would arrive tomorrow morning.

The Guild said Harvey K. Kelly, former executive secretary of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association and now a Hearst representative, was here conferring with heads of unions affected by the strike.

Seller said 42 of the Post-Intelligencer's staff of 68 eligible for Guild membership were on strike. An executive of the newspaper said 22 newsroom employes, including five reporters, were on strike.

Pendergast Sits Up Part of Time.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The condition of Thomas J. Pendergast, Kansas City Democratic leader, ill in a hotel here, has so greatly improved that he is sitting up part of the day. Pendergast suffered a heart attack June 24. "The family is thrilled over his recovery, particularly after the shock he gave us," Mrs. Pendergast said. "We are not making immediate plans to return to Kansas City.

TROTZKY DENIES ANY PLOTTING IN SOVIET RUSSIA

From Exile in Norway He Suggests Full Inquiry Into His Activities by Two Commissions.

'I HAVE NOTHING TO FEAR OR HIDE'

Pravda Charges German Secret Police Were Involved—16 Under Arrest to Go on Trial Aug. 19.

By the Associated Press.

OSLO, Norway, Aug. 15.—Leon Trotzky, former Soviet Minister of War, accused of plotting a Russian counter-revolt, said in a statement tonight that the Soviet allegations were "totally untrue."

Seeking vindication, he proposed the formation of two commissions to investigate the charges and to examine his own actions in Norway where he has been living in exile.

To the first commission, he said, "I am willing to tell what I have done every day and every hour of my time in Norway." He also proposed that an international labor commission go to Russia to investigate.

"I am sure this commission will destroy the Soviet lies against me," he said. "I have nothing to fear or hide."

Trotzky continued: "Since I came to Norway I have had no connection with Soviet Russia." He said he and Mrs. Trotzky had not even exchanged "one word" with their son who is working in Russia.

The Soviet charge, which linked him with Gregory Zinoviev and Leon Kamenev, was characterized by Trotzky as "one of the greatest distortions in political history."

"It is very probable numerous elements are using by name and ideas," Trotzky declared in a statement published in an Oslo newspaper. "But I am most certainly not the leader of a terrorist plot, and I have always been opposed to individual terrorist methods."

Pravda Charges German Secret Police Were Involved.

MOSCOW, Aug. 15. — German secret police were linked tonight by the Community party newspaper Pravda with the counter-revolutionary plot attributed to three former Soviet leaders.

The revolt aimed at Joseph Stalin, general secretary of the Community party and dictator of Russia, Pravda declared, and the conspirators maintained "systematic contact with the German Gestapo (secret police)."

Sixteen persons arrested by Soviet police will go to trial Aug. 19. Pravda made thinly disguised forecasts of executions to follow the trial. Death before a firing squad has been the customary method of executing political prisoners.

The key man of the plot was said to be Leon Trotzky, exiled revolutionary living in Oslo, Norway. Included among those indicted were Gregory Zinoviev and Leon Kamenev, who were associated with Stalin in ruling Russia after the illness of Nikolai Lenin in 1923.

Zinoviev and Kamenev are serving sentences imposed in 1935 on charges of participating in counter-revolutionary activities said to have been uncovered in an investigation following the murder of the previous year of Sergei Mironovitch Kirov, Stalin's chief aid.

During the months following the assassination of Kirov, hundreds of persons were executed, imprisoned or banished to Siberia in a general purge of the Community party.

Pravda charged "we know there was a direct and organized co-operation between the Trotzky-Zinoviev gang and Fascist police spies."

"Individual terror was a plank which the Malcontents joined to form a united center," it continued, "the purpose of which was to sabotage Socialism."

Trotzky, whose chief aim was the extension of Communist doctrine throughout the world by force, has been in the bad graces of Moscow authorities since the death of Lenin, whose funeral he did not attend. He was once Foreign Minister of Russia, and as Minister of War controlled a fighting force of some 1,500,000 soldiers.

In 1927 he was expelled from the party, and Stalin assumed leadership. Trotzky, driven from one land to another, has supported himself by writing.

AID FOR STUDENTS IN DROUTH

Youth Administration Conference at Maryville to Discuss Plans.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 15. — Clark Buckner, State director of the National Youth Administration, announced today a conference of officials and educators from Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa would be held at Maryville Thursday to discuss plans for aiding students of drouth areas through the coming school year.

Richard R. Brown, deputy executive director of the National Youth Administration, and C. B. Lund, regional representative of the youth program, will explain plans for carrying on the student assistance in the four states.

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—Due to the talents of her divers, America emerged today from the week-long Olympic swimming championships with the unofficial men's and women's team titles as Italy, Germany, Hungary and India won gold medals in other events.

Japan reaped a harvest of 34 points in the last three events of the men's aquatic competition, but the Nipponese yielded the title won in 1932 at Los Angeles to the United States 83 points to 77 because of American feats earlier in the week, particularly by her divers, who contributed 36 points to the aggregate.

Marshall Wayne of Miami won the 10-meter platform diving title as Elbert Root of Chicago took second; Detsuo Hamuro of Japan captured the 200-meter breast stroke crown, while another Nipponese, Noboru Tedara, won the 1500-meter free style championship—the final event of the final day.

Although the American girls, also due to their divers' exploits, won the team title 55 points to 52½ for Holland, husky Rita Mastenbroek carried off the honors. The Dutch star captured the 400-meter free style championship, adding it to the 100-meter crown won earlier in the week. All in all she won three gold medals, the third for anchoring the victorious relay team, and was runnerup in the backstroke event.

The soccer championship, which was marked in the early rounds by Peru's withdrawal from the Olympiad in protest of a decision reversing a 4—2 triumph over Austria, was captured by Italy, the Italian booters defeating Austria, 2—1, in an overtime final.

Two triumphs were chalked up by Hungary. Her water buffalo retained the water polo crown, whitewashing France, 5—0, and Endre Kabos won the individual sabre fencing championship.

The windup of the boxing tournament saw Jackie Wilson, Cleveland bantamweight and last of eight American starters, go down to defeat in the finals against Sergo of Italy. As runnerup in his class, Wilson received a silver medal. The only other American medal winner was Lou Laurie, Cleveland flyweight, who finished third in his division.

While India defeated Germany, 8—1, to win the field hockey crown Capt. Ludwig Stubbendorf of Germany won the combined dressage-cross country event of the equestrian competition, Capt. Earl Thomson of the United States taking second place.

Davis Will Be Lost To Cards for Several Days

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 15.

CATCHER VIRGIL DAVIS probably will be out of the Cardinal lineup for several days, as a result of an injury suffered today when he was hit on the finger of his right hand by a foul tip off Suhr's bat.

An X-ray examination disclosed no broken bones but a sudden swelling indicated a ruptured blood vessel in the right wrist. Dr. Harrison Weaver, club trainer, said tonight he believes Davis will need two or three days' rest before the condition will be cleared up.

U. S. Men and Women Capture Olympic Swimming Titles

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—Japan's men and Holland's women closed their Olympic swimming campaigns with a terrific rush today, but thanks to a big lead piled up on previous days. The United States managed to squeeze home ahead in both divisions under the unofficial point scoring system.

A first place, two seconds, a fourth and a fifth on the final tumultuous day enabled the American men to nose out the Japanese, 83 to 77, and smash the monopoly the little brown scooters gained at Los Angeles four years ago. A third and fourth in the 400-meter free style final gave Uncle Sam's girls a 55 to 52½ margin over Holland's great team, led by Rita Mastenbroek.

Victory in all four men's and women's diving championships, with a sweep of the first three places in two of them, proved the

WRAY'S COLUMN from Berlin

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, August.

YOUR correspondent's scalp is still tingling from the electric thrill of opening day ceremonies, impressively staged for more than 100,000 onlookers.

For many Americans present the entry of Reichsfuehrer Hitler was the big moment of the entire Olympic Games. The massive grandeur of the setting, the truly wonderful choruses, the almost imperial pomp of the official parade and the thunderous outburst of "Heils" as Hitler approached his reviewing position made the scalps of observers tingle.

From far up on the second tier of press seats, field glasses revealed the stern, unsmiling face of Der Fuehrer as he marched at the head of the official band down the classic staircase at the west end of the Stadion around the track toward his reviewing box.

If he felt gratified at the demonstration he did not let it appear. Clad in brown Nazi military costume he stood out among the frock coats covered with decorations, worn by the dignataries who escorted him.

As he approached his reviewing stand a little girl of six or eight years ran out on the track with a small bouquet of flowers,

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 15.—Jesse Haines suffered one of the most disheartening reverses of his long career this afternoon when he was driven out of the box in the seventh inning of the game with the Pirates after having held the Pittsburgh team to one hit in six and one-third innings.

If the Pirates had hopped on Big Jesse for line drives and had they rattled extra base hits off the fences he might have retired knowing that he just wasn't good enough to win the ball game, but in this wild seventh inning, only two balls were batted out of the infield. Three of the men who faced him in this tragic session reached first on bunts and two waited up at the plate long enough to coax a base on balls. Two errors, one by Lynn King and the other a bad throw by Haines himself, were far more damaging than the two hits that reached the outfield.

Chollie Grimm and his Cubs again came to the rescue of the Cards by dropping a game to Cincinnati, thus leaving the Redbirds at the top of the league race by half a game.

Weaver Strikes Out Nine.

The Pirates, of course, could not have beaten the Cards by seven runs to 1 unless they, too, received good pitching. That's just what Big Jim Weaver, one-time Brownie, did deliver. He kept seven hits scattered and he cracked his fast ball through the middle of the plate for nine strikeouts. He was rarely in trouble although he was wild enough to keep the batter guessing. Frisch's double to open the eighth and Medwick's single accounted for the only St. Louis run. Jersey Joe also hit a triple to open the fourth but Weaver was fast enough to pitch himself out of that hole, stopping the league's leading batter, Johnny Mize.

Haines breezed along in his very best form. Lloyd Waner slapped a single to center in the first inning and was left on base, and after that until the third batter faced him in the seventh inning, Haines did not permit anything resembling a base hit and only two Pittsburgh runners reached base in the six innings.

That was so close to perfect pitching that when the holocaust came in the seventh it was doubly shocking. The sequence of tragic incidents followed in this order:

Virgil Davis Injured.

With one out, Vaughan coaxed a base on balls. The hit-and-run sign was out and Vaughan started for second as Suhr swung his bat. Davis moved up close to make a fast throw and as he did so he received a foul tip on the end of a righthand finger. He needed repairs and was replaced behind the bat by Ogrodowski. Through no fault of the younger catcher, the Cardinals' chances of victory went out the gate as Spud Davis quit the field.

After a slight delay, Haines resumed pitching to Suhr and the Pirates' first sacker slammed a single to right field. Lyn King came in fast to get set for a throw to third to cut off Vaughan but he did it all a bit too fast and the ball got through his hands and legs and rolled to the fence for a two-base muff, Vaughan scoring and Suhr reaching third. Maybe that upset Haines for he walked the next batter, Brubaker.

Pirates Win by Bunting.

The logical play then was a bunt and Young didn't surprise anybody when he dumped the ball toward third. Haines fielded the ball and whipped a fast throw to the plate,

CUBS' DEFENSE FALTERS, REDS WIN, 5 TO 4

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 15. — The Cincinnati Reds stepped through loopholes in the Chicago defense today to a 5 to 4 victory that put a temporary crimp in the Cubs' bid for the National League leadership.

Umpire Barr chased Manager Charles Dressen, Infielder Calvin Chapman and Pitcher Paul Derringer from the Reds' bench for too boisterous protests of a close decision in the second inning.

Pitcher Bill Lee permitted only six hits in five innings and Pitcher Charles Root held the Reds hitless for the last four stanzas but a ragged defense undid their effective mound work. The Cubs found Benny Frey of the Reds for 10 hits.

The Cubs rallied in the ninth when singles by Cavarretta and O'Dea and another infield out gave them a score but there it fell short.

HUNGARIAN WINS FENCING CROWN

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—Endre Kabos of Hungary tonight won the Olympic individual sabers fencing title with seven victories and 20 touches received.

Trailing the champion were: Gustavo Marzi, Italy, six and 22; Aladar Gerey, Hungary, six and 26; Laszlo Rajcsanyi, Hungary, five and 25; Vincenzo Pinton, Italy, five and 28; Giulio Gaudini, Italy, three and 28.

Giants 1½ Games From Lead After Defeating Phillies, 4-1

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The fast-stepping New York Giants advanced a little nearer first place in the National League today as they defeated the Phillies, 4 to 1, for their fifth straight victory.

The triumph, coupled with the defeat of both the Cards and Cubs, left the Giants only a game and a half back of first place, held by St. Louis.

Although handing the Phils their thirteenth successive setback, the Giants were outhit for the third straight time by Jimmy Wilson's men. Carl Hubbell, touched for nine safe blows, while his mates were getting only seven, kept the Phillies' hits well scattered, however, for his seventh consecutive victory and his seventeenth of the year.

The Giants did all of their scoring in the sixth as they got to Bucky Walters for three hits and as many passes. Carl Hubbell personally accounted for two of the runs with a single.

Bottomley Day an Animal Fair — Four Goats, a Pig And Two Ducks Were There

By James M. Gould.

If Sunny Jim Bottomley, first baseman of the Browns, didn't have any stock on that farm of his down Bourbon, Mo., way, he has a fine start now. For, with 10,000 looking on at Sportsman's Park yesterday, Jim was presented with a Jersey cow ("Fielder's Choice"), four goats, a pig, two ducks, a bale of hay, a milk bucket and stool and sundry other gifts at one of the most unusual "days" ever tendered a major-league ball player.

Jim Conzelman, Washington U. head football coach and chairman of the "Cow Committee," presided at the presentation. There was a band and a girls' trumpet corps, both good, and there was the largest attendance of the season on a Browns' ladies' day.

Everybody had a good time, including the pig, the goats and the ducks, which roamed at large—very much at large—while Fielder's Choice was being presented to its new owner. The pig was specially elusive until a pretty and well-executed dive by Outfielder Weatherly, a farm boy himself, brought the porker down.

The event was considered of sufficient importance to merit the recording of it on movie-camera film.

Generally, a player having a "day," gets a traveling bag of some type that the years have made stereotyped. But this time Bottomley was asked what he wanted. Jim said a cow, and a cow it was. The other animals were "added attractions," as it were.

Just to prove the day was different, Bottomley doubled to drive in the first run of the game on his first appearance at the plate. According to all union rules at such presentations, the player honored is supposed to strike out. Anyway, he generally does.

A few weeks ago, Bottomley had made up his mind to retire. He had a pronounced "misery" in his back and he couldn't make his aging legs behave. He was persuaded to change his intention and finish out the season.

Perhaps the generosity of his public and its affection for him will bring the grand old boy back again in 1937.

AUBUCHON BEATS EL DORADO, 17-3, WINS REGIONAL LEGION TITLE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EL DORADO, Ark., Aug. 15.—The Aubuchon-Dennison team of St. Louis, Mo. champion American Legion junior baseball team won the regional championship here this afternoon by trouncing the El Dorado squad, holders of the Arkansas title, by the lopsided score of 17 to 3.

In addition to taking the regional title, the St. Louis team won the right to go to the Southern Legion finals at Charlotte, N. C.

After being held to low scores in the first two games with the teams breaking even, St. Louis broke loose in a big way this afternoon and scored a decisive victory with no doubt of the outcome after the fifth inning.

Eleven-Run Inning.

Aubuchon took an early lead with one run in each of the first and third innings and then mixed base hits with errors to push over 11 markers in the fifth. They collected a total of 15 hits, several extra base knocks being included in the total.

BROWNS GET GOOD PITCHING AND DEFEAT INDIANS, 4-0

EARL CALDWELL GAINS SHUTOUT, YIELDING TRIBE ONLY SIX HITS

Hornsby's Men Make Five Safeties in Row Off Galehouse to Score Three Runs in Second — Bell Smashes Home Run.

By James M. Gould.

Give the Browns a well-pitched game and a victory seems to follow even as "the night, the day." Earl Caldwell yesterday gave the Browns such a game and, as a result, Hornsby's seventh-placers, smacked the Cleveland second-placers down by a score of 4 to 0, thus evening the current series which is concluded with a single game today.

Caldwell simply slow-curved the slugging Indians silly. They managed six hits all told, all singles but one, a double by Weatherly. In only one inning—the fifth—did they manage more than one hit and this impeding rally was cut short by a fine running-catch by Solters.

Browns Get Five Hits in Row.

Galehouse did the pitching for only two innings. He was badly bothered in the second when the Browns opened with five successive hits and made, of them, three runs. Then, in the fifth with the bases empty, Beau Bell lifted a homer into the left-field seats. That was the extent of the scoring. The Browns collected 11 hits in all.

It was "Bottomley Day" and it so happened that Jim drove in the first Brownie run with a double in the second frame. That run would have been sufficient the way Caldwell pitched.

Both teams had first-inning openings but both muffed them. Again in the second, Cleveland threatened but faded out before any run-making. The Browns, however, did more than threaten; they scored three runs and, for a time made it look certain that Galehouse's tenure of office would be cut short.

Bottomley Gets Double.

West opened with a single and scored when Bottomley pumped a double to right center. Hemsley's single moved Bottomley to third and a hit by Bejma scored him. Hemsley counted on Caldwell's single past third.

Cleveland didn't get "tough" again until the fifth when they managed to get two on with two out. The situation was saved despite the fact that Earl Averill hit to left—a thing he very seldom does—when Solters made a stunning running catch.

In the last of the fifth, Galehouse made another mistake. He tried Beau Bell with a slow ball, Bell-high. Beau promptly showed his appreciation by presenting the ball to a left field bleacherite.

Caldwell continued his great pitching and Galehouse caught the fever and did some excellent work after the fifth. The result was that the Browns failed to add to their total and the Indians failed to even start any total.

Brownie Notes.

FOR the final game of the series, today, the probable pitchers are Ivy Andrews for the Browns and Willis Hudlin for the Indians. Hudlin, a few years ago rated one of the best pitchers in the business, still is seeking his first 1936 victory.

The Cleveland club is one of the hardest-hitting combinations in baseball. How powerful it is can be judged from the fact that such a slugger as Joe Vosmik bats in seventh position.

There was an out-of-the-way play in the first inning. With two out and Averill on first, Trosky hit to shortstop. Ordinarily, the ball would have been handled by Lary, but the Browns play Trosky far around toward right field so the force-play was Clift to Lary. In the third, Lary threw Trosky out, playing to the first-base side of second.

That was quite a second-inning attack the Browns pulled on Galehouse when the first five men hit safely.

The attendance at the semi-final of the series was announced as 11,048. About 3500 of these were cash customers.

Bejma has been hitting "right peartly" of late and if he keeps it up Tommy Carey may have some trouble climbing back to the second base job.

Weatherly, the Cleveland outfielder who is leading the league in hitting, is pint-sized, but one of the fastest men in baseball.

Before the fourth inning was over, every Brownie had at least one hit.

The band present at the game was the "Sunny Jim Band" from Sullivan, Mo., and the super-excellent girls' trumpet corps from Collinsville, Ill.

Quick Work.

Hank Winston, Brooklyn Dodger hurler, was on the mound pitching to the St. Louis Cardinals three hours after he reported from a Brooklyn farm.

THE BUSY MR. BELL—Safe Stealing Second in Third Inning

Jim Bottomley and his cow were a big part of the show at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon as the Browns won from Cleveland, 4 to 0, but Beau Bell took his share of the limelight. He singled in the third inning and, as shown in this photograph, slid safely into second on a steal. Later in the game Bell hit a home run into the left field bleachers.

Giants Can Tie For League Lead Today, IF—

BILL TERRY'S New York Giants, who were floundering in the second division not so long ago, can tie for the lead with the Cardinals today, but there are a number of possibilities to be decided before that can happen.

If the Giants defeat the Phillies while the Cardinals are losing a double header at Pittsburgh and the Cubs are dropping a twin bill at Cincinnati, then the standings of the teams tonight would be:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Cardinals	66	46	.589
New York	66	46	.589
Chicago	65	46	.586

Cards Lose to Pirates, 7-1, But Keep Lead by Half Game

trying for Suhr. The throw was just a bit high, Ogrodowski reaching it with his glove but he failed to make the catch. Jess was charged with an error as the ball got away from "Brusie" and Suhr scored, the other runners advancing. Since the bunt succeeded so well, Padden tried the same tactics, this time swinging the ball toward first. Mize fielded the ball but when he turned to make a throw to first there was no one there to receive it and Brubaker scored on the perfect squeeze play. Pie Traynor, manager of the Pirates, is not the big soft-hearted guy that Charley Grimm, boss of the Cubs, is cracked up to be. Traynor finding that a bunted ball threw the Cardinal infield into a panic, put out the same sign for the next hitter, Weaver. Bib Jim knows as much about bunting as one of Singer's midgets knows about putting the shot. His effort at "laying it down" was a pop fly that sailed over Haines' head, out to second base, and the bases were filled. Then came a forceout for another run and a single to right by Lloyd Waner for the fifth run of the inning and, much as he hated to do it, Frisch was forced to give Haines a rest.

Ed Heusser finished it up, yielding two runs in the eighth inning for a total of seven. The Cards' defense cracked up again in this inning but it didn't make much difference for there was little chance to wiping out that big lead.

REDBIRD NOTES

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 15.

DIZZY DEAN and Jim Winford are scheduled to pitch tomorrow's doubleheader for the Cards and Manager Traynor says he will use Swift and Lucas.

The Cardinals need these games for the Giants threaten to win another from the Phillies, complicating this fight for first place, which up to now has been a private affair between the Cardinals and Cubs.

Frisch's team will look a lot stronger when Pepper Martin returns to the lineup. In addition to being a satisfactory fielder, Pepper is a threat at bat, while neither Fullis nor King has thrown a scare into the opposing pitchers.

Weaver's accomplishment in smothering Johnny Mize was probably the thing that won the game for Pittsburgh. In those early innings, when Haines was going so smoothly, a couple of Mize blasts would have turned the tide in favor of St. Louis.

PEARSON WINS NO. 15 AS THE YANKS WALLOP ATHLETICS, 16-2

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 14.—Monte Pearson checked the Athletics with six hits today as the New York Yankees, pounding out 15 hits and aided by eight passes, defeated the Mackmen 16 to 2.

The Yanks got away in front in the first inning when they counted four times without getting a hit. Gordon Rhodes, the Athletics' starting hurler and Horace Lisenbee issued five free tickets. After the first run had been forced in, Jake Powell's grounder went through Newsome and Lou Gehrig, Bill Dickey and George Selkirk came home to empty the bases.

The big attack came in the eighth, however, when the American League leaders counted seven runs, four of them on Gehrig's 36th home run of the season, hit with the bases loaded. Gehrig also got a double and a single to lead the Yanks' attack.

Pearson held the Athletics scoreless until the fourth when Pinkey Higgins hit his sixth homer of the season. The blow snapped Pearson's string of scoreless innings against Philadelphia at 20 consecutive frames.

They added another run in the seventh on a walk, a single and Moses' long fly but Pearson had no trouble chalking up his 15th victory of the season.

TIGERS WIN TWICE FROM WHITE SOX AND GO INTO THIRD PLACE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—The Detroit Tigers took over third place in the American League from Chicago today by sweeping a double bill with the White Sox, 3 to 1 and 10 to 3, before 15,000 fans.

Elder Auker, submarine-ball hurler, held the Pale Hose to seven hits in the opener to win his ninth game of the season as his mates were rapping Bill Dietrich and Clint Brown for 11 safeties. Al Simmons, Tiger outfielder, drove in two of the three runs and Auker the other.

In the nightcap, Jake Wade walked eight men but kept eight Sox hits well scattered as the Bengals whacked Sugar Cain and Bill Shores for 14 hits and an easy victory. The Tigers got five runs in a big second inning.

ROOKIE HURLER HELPS DODGERS BEAT BEES, 6-2

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 15.—Paced by Joe Stripp and George Watkins, the Brooklyn Dodgers made it two straight over the Boston Bees today, winning 6 to 2 as Henry (Hank) Winston hurled good relief ball to receive credit for his first major league victory.

Stripp had a perfect day at bat with four straight hits, one a double, while Watkins connected with a homer with one on in the fourth to give the Dodgers a lead that they never relinquished.

Winston, tall, husky right-hander recently obtained from Allentown, relieved Max Butcher in the fifth with two runners on base and none out. One of the runners scored but he allowed only two singles the remainder of the game.

ROOKIE HURLER HELPS DODGERS BEAT BEES, 6-2

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 15.—Paced by Joe Stripp and George Watkins, the Brooklyn Dodgers made it two straight over the Boston Bees today, winning 6 to 2 as Henry (Hank) Winston hurled good relief ball to receive credit for his first major league victory.

Stripp had a perfect day at bat with four straight hits, one a double, while Watkins connected with a homer with one on in the fourth to give the Dodgers a lead that they never relinquished.

Winston, tall, husky right-hander recently obtained from Allentown, relieved Max Butcher in the fifth with two runners on base and none out. One of the runners scored but he allowed only two singles the remainder of the game.

SHARKEY TO PROVIDE COME-BACK TEST FOR LOUIS TUESDAY

BOSTON SAILOR IS REPORTED IN FINE SHAPE FOR 10-ROUND BOUT

Only Question With Joe Is Whether He Will Be Gun Shy—And Experts Still Like Him as Fighter.

By W. J. McGoogan.

Jack Sharkey, the Boston sailor, question mark of heavyweight boxing, is to supply the acid for the acid test of Joe Louis, Detroit's Brown Bomber, in a 10-round contest at the Yankee Stadium, New York, Tuesday night. Or so the promoters claim.

Just what kind of acid Jack, who was born John Cocosey, will use has not been evident. If he employs one kind which has cropped out in his career three times he will be knocked out; another kind may bring him to a point of victory or a third variety a knockout triumph. Nobody will know until Tuesday night.

"Don't bet on or against Sharkey, unless you get it from Jack himself," one so-called wise bettor recently remarked. And that's the way the gamblers likely will view the fight. They believe from the form that Louis should win by a knockout in four or five rounds, but they want to wait and see just what effect his knockout at the hands of Max Schmeling had on the Negro before going for him again, hook, line and sinker.

The experts are noticeably reticent as to predictions on the battle because they have been stung badly twice in a little more than 12 months by the outcome of the Jim Braddock-Max Baer fight and the result of the Schmeling-Louis encounter. Hence they are hedging their prognostications with ifs, ands and buts.

Jack's 'Come-Back' Record.

Sharkey is 33 years of age and was in retirement for two years. He began his comeback early this year with a questionable knockout of Unknown Winston, a Connecticut Negro. So fishy did the kayo appear that the match was ordered refought in the same ring. So Sharkey bowled Winston over again, twice in the same night. Certainly the only time any such thing has happened in a heavyweight bout.

Even at that the Massachusetts commission was not convinced and while Sharkey was absolved of blame, Winston stands suspended.

Later Sharkey fought Tony Snucco, and lost, and later drew with him, the same Tony, who was knocked out by John Henry Lewis at St. Louis in June.

Then Sharkey made his best effort, getting off the floor to defeat Phil Brubaker, the young California sensation, to gain the match with Louis.

Such is the recent record of the acid provider.

Farther back in his history you find many other and stranger things, chief among them three knockouts — by Jack Dempsey, Quentin Romero Rojas and Primo Carnera.

Kayo, Kayo, Kayo!

Dempsey accomplished the feat after he had lost his title to Tunney and the victory over Sharkey was necessary before the rematch between Jack and Gene could be made. Sharkey started the bout by outpointing Dempsey widely until he turned his head to question the referee—at which point Jack put Sharkey down and out with two powerful blows, a left hook to the body and a right to the jaw.

And later Rojas got in his kayo. Rojas, it will be remembered, fought Jack Renault at the Coliseum here years ago and lost after a severe body beating. Still he was able to kayo Sharkey.

Still later came the greatest insult of all, a kayo at the hands of Primo Carnera, which cost Sharkey the heavyweight title which he had won on a questionable decision from Max Schmeling.

It has since been claimed that Sharkey swooned in the Carnera battle, but whatever was the cause, he was knocked out, and then lost to King Levinsky, of all people—the King who chose the lower strand of the ring ropes on which to sit down and be counted out in his match with Louis.

Altogether, prior to his comeback, Sharkey had 56 fights. Of these he won 43, and 21 victories were knockouts. He lost six, fought no decisions, drew twice and was knocked out three times.

Not a very impressive record for a man who is to tell the tale of Louis' ring career. And yet — Sharkey has experience. Reports from his training camp indicate he is in good physical condition — that is, as good as may be expected of a 33-year-old man. He can or used to be able to box but does not seem to be possessed of the weapon which Schmeling used to pound Louis into submission, a crushing right.

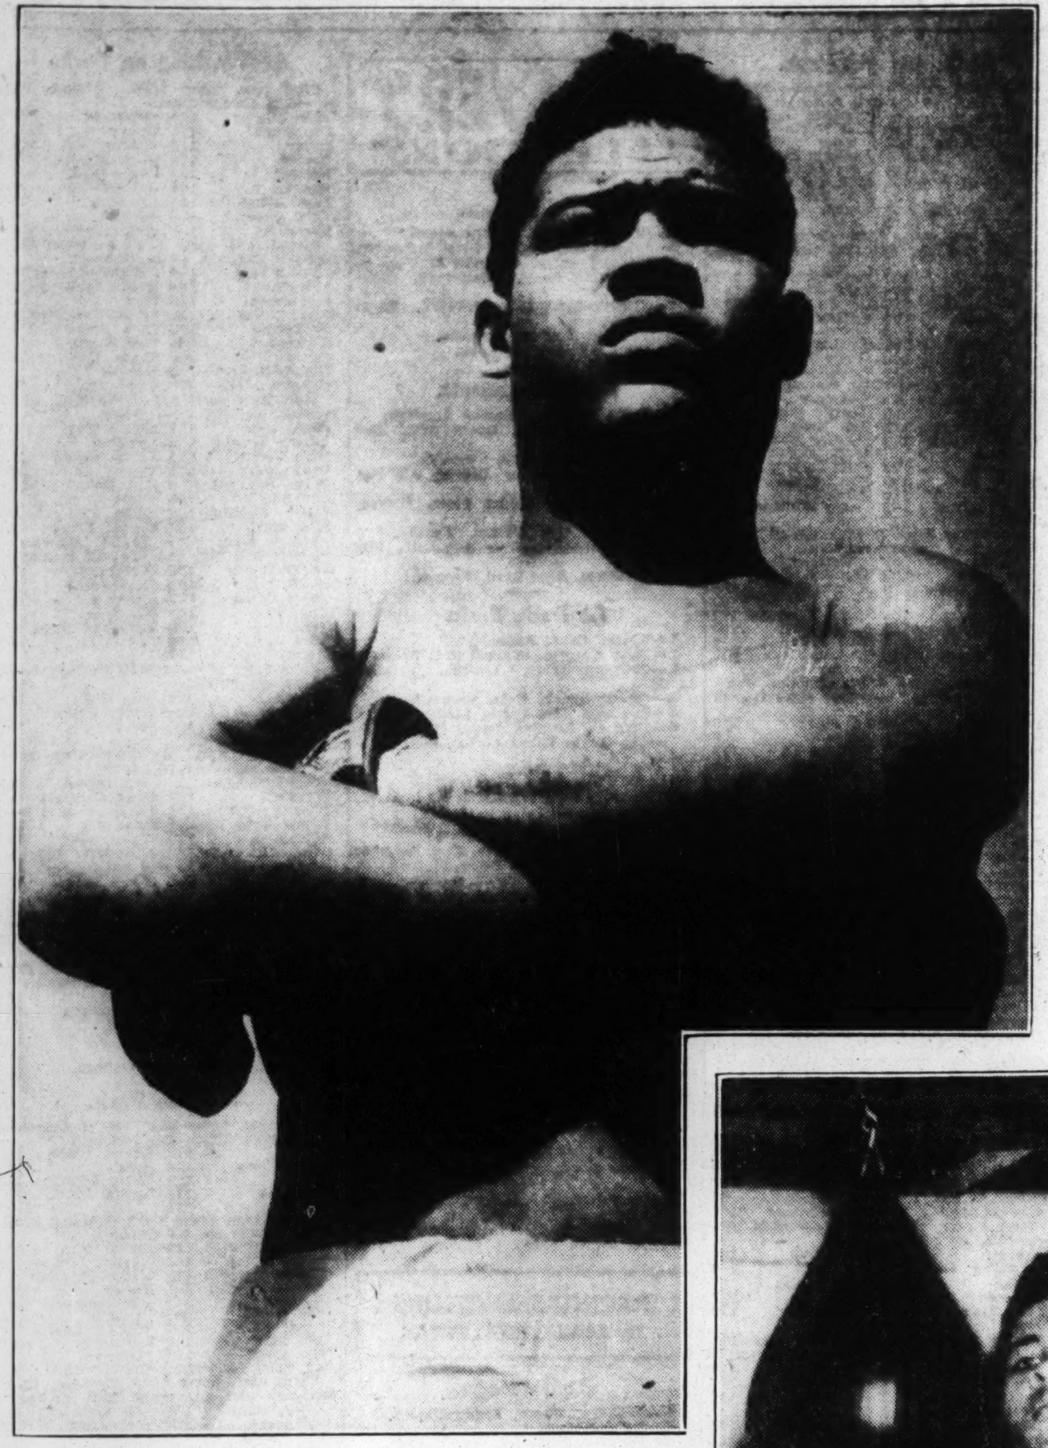
Will Joe Be Gun Shy?

As to Louis, the only question concerning Joe is his mental attitude. Did the Schmeling knockout destroy his confidence in himself? If it did, maybe he will be easy prey for most any heavyweight. If it did not, then one should not ruin his career. He still is the outstanding heavyweight in the game, so far as natural ability and physique are concerned, in the opinion of many observers. But if he has become gun shy from the beating Schmeling gave him, then he won't be the same sensational young boxer who marched through 27 successive victories, 23 of them by knockouts.

There is more than passing interest in the battle because of the question as to Louis' future. For if Joe is proved definitely a dud, the heavyweight division won't be the steaming circle it has been for nearly two years. And that is giving some fans pause, because they declare that Sharkey has not always done his best against men in similar situations.

No doubt the scale of prices from $2.20 to $11 will bring out a big crowd and while there is no disposition on the part of the promoter, Mike Jacobs, to anticipate a sellout, which would mean a gross of nearly $400,000, it is expected that more than 50,000 persons will attend and the gate will pass the $250,000 mark. Not a bad figure for a match with no title significance.

The Pedestal Man Turned Plodder



—Associated Press Wirephotos.

Prior to his meeting with Max Schmeling June 19, Joe Louis was looked up to by all in the boxing game—he was everybody's choice to go straight through to the world championship and hold it for years. Opponents went into the ring fearful of the results of his blows. The upper picture shows him on his pedestal. But in training for his bout Tuesday with Jack Sharkey Louis' sparring partners are reported to have shown that they no longer were afraid to go into action with him. Joe is shown in the lower picture a serious-minded fighter—working hard to regain his center place in the spotlight.

Louis Turns on Steam In Impressive Workout

By the Associated Press.

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Aug. 15.—Joe Louis found himself today for the first time since he began training for next Tuesday's comeback battle with Jack Sharkey in the Yankee Stadium.

Apparently irked by the chidings he has been receiving from the newspapermen covering his workouts, the Brown Bomber turned on the steam. Two weeks ago he was slow, listless, loafed a lot and was such a sucker for right-hand punches that his sparring partners delighted in teeing off and letting him have them.

So unimpressive was the Negro that a few days ago old Jack Blackburn, the trainer, sent an S. O. S. call to New York for Paul Cavalier, the heavyweight. Between them they set about giving Louis a badly needed series of boxing lessons.

They taught him to block, to make better use of his left hand. Today their efforts began to pay dividends.

Louis successfully blocked almost every right fired at him in the five rounds he stepped with Young George Godfrey of Baltimore; George Hicks of New York, and Tiger Boy Williams of Chicago.

Not only that, but he belted a few on his own and all but knocked his playmates' heads off with a series of right and left-hand jolts that left the few spectators popeyed.

Blackburn and managers Julian Black and John Roxborough were tremendously pleased with what they called the first good workout Joe has had since the Max Schmelinng episode last June.

"He's all right," said Blackburn. "We haven't been pushing him. He showed today he can go to town when we give him the go sign."

Louis weighed 204 today. He'll box tomorrow, then take things easy until he motors into New York Tuesday.

The Negro lad, while outwardly as unconcerned as usual, is very serious about hitting the comeback trail and tells friends he is sure he'll send Sharkey tumbling along the knockout route in the wake of Baer, Carnera and most of his other opponents.

"I felt good today," he said. "It surely sounded good when those punches landed. I'll take care of Mr. Sharkey, all right."

Black and Roxborough laughed off reports they wanted a postponement in order to give Joe more time to get in shape.

"We haven't worried about him a bit," Black said. "We knew Jack Blackburn would have Joe ready when the time came and he has. The old Joe Louis will go against Sharkey Tuesday night."

OFFER OF $40,000 FOR TEN WEEKS IS CABLED TO OWENS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 15.—An offer of $40,000 to Jesse Owens, American Negro Olympic champion, for a 10 weeks' engagement on the stage, was cabled today to the athlete by Eddie Cantor, stage and screen comedian.

"I cabled him and offered to place $40,000 in a Los Angeles or New York bank at once for 10 weeks of his time," said Cantor.

Ruth Loses Golf Match.

BLUFF POINT, N. Y., Aug. 15.—George Herman (Babe) Ruth, who now plays golf instead of baseball, was defeated in the second round of the international invitation tournament today by R. E. Prescott of Plattsburgh, 3 and 1.

The Babe, however, was only one over par for the 17 holes. Ruth defeated F. H. Gouverneur of Bluff Point, 3 and 1, in a first-round match.

RIGGS UPSETS GRANT, WILL OPPOSE BUDGE IN RYE FINAL

By the Associated Press.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Robert L. Riggs, 18-year-old Los Angeles boy who holds the national clay courts tennis championship, scored a major upset in the men's division of the Eastern grass courts tournament today when he defeated another player whose strokes are more effective on clay surface, Bryan (Bitsy) Grant of Atlanta, 6-3, 1-6, 8-6, 6-1. Grant was seeded second in the tournament behind Don Budge, the Oakland, Cal., Davis Cup player who reached the final Friday, while Riggs was seventh.

The women's division previously had its full quota of upsets with Mme. Sylvia Ehnrotin of France and Helen Pedersen of Stamford, Conn., both unseeded, advancing to tomorrow's final.

Budge and Gene Mako, the Davis Cup pair, won the men's doubles title by outlasting their predcessors in international competition, Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., and John Van Ryn of Philadelphia, 4-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

The national champions broke Mako's service regularly in the first two sets, but the younger pair rallied so strongly to square the count that Allison and Van Ryn let the last few games of the fourth go to save their energy. In the final set they gained a 2-0 lead by breaking Mako again but weakened after leading 4-1 and 40 love.

deciding factor in the Americans' triumph.

Winning three out of six speed races, Japanese again proved themselves the world's best at getting through water in a hurry, but they did not come near duplicating their sensational showing in 1932 when they won everything except the 400-meter free style.

Medica Wins 400.

Victories by Jack Medica of Seattle in the 400, Adolf Kiefer of Chicago in the 100-meter back stroke and Ferenc Csik of Hungary in the 100-meter free style championships proved sad blows to the defending champions.

Impressive wins today by Detsuo Hamuro in the 200-meter breast stroke and Noboru Terada in the 1500 free style final before a packed stadium of more than 20,000 failed completely to assuage their wounded feelings.

The flying Dutch girls climaxed a remarkable string of victories in speed events when the powerfully built Miss Mastenbroek won the 400-meter free style crown after a rousing stretch duel with the wiry Danish star, Ragnhild Hveger, giving her her third gold medal of the eleventh Olympiad. Hideko Maehata's conquest in the 200-meter breaststroke alone deprived them of a clean sweep in racing events and cost them a team victory over America.

America's diving superiority was further emphasized by Marshall Wayne's triumph in the platform event. The tall, statuesque Floridan and Elbert Root of Chicago finished one-two this morning as a prelude to the final swimming events. The other American entrant, Frank Kurtz of Los Angeles, finished fifth.

Miss Mastenbroek, who previously played second fiddle to her pretty teammate, Willy Denouen, emerged the outstanding figure of the week's competition, winning the 100 and 400 meter free style events, placing second in the backstroke and anchoring Holland's victorious relay team.

Miss Gestring's Victory Decisive.

Today, as in every race she swam, she gave away distance in the early stages and then called upon her tremendous speed and stamina to break her rivals hearts with a closing rush.

The only girl to rival her spectacular performance during the week was little snub-nosed Margie Gestring of Los Angeles, who won the springboard diving championship at the tender age of 13 and gave the United States ten points that proved ultimately decisive.

Medica, winning the 400 and placing second to Terada in the unexciting 1500 final, proved the individual star among hundreds of male competitors. He never had a chance to beat the steady 19-year-old Nipponese after he permitted him to gain a sizeable lead halfway through the long grind.

Although his fourth place added three valuable points to the American total, Johnny Higgins of Providence, R. I. couldn't give the Japanese and the Germans much competition in the final backstroke battle.

From start to finish the race belonged to Hamuro with only Sietas of Germany making him jump in the final 100 meters. Higgins had to produce a strong rally in the closing stages to finish as well as he did. Hamuro was clocked in 2:42.5, equalling the new Olympic record he made in the trials. The German was timed in 2:42.9 and Higgins, 2:45.2.

Lenore Kight Wingard of Homestead, Pa., swam a brave race to place third in the 400 in which both Miss Mastenbroek and Miss Hveger lowered the Danish Girl's new Olympic record of 5:28. Lap after lap Mrs. Wingard stayed right with them, even taking the lead briefly at the halfway mark. At 300 meters she was only a foot back and still very much in the race.

WRAY'S COLUMN FROM BERLIN

a tribute from Deutchland's Jugend.

Der Fuehrer paused, accepted the flowers, passed them to an attendant, patted the little child on the head and marched on.

Deutschland Ueber Alles.

DIRECTLY opposite Der Fuehrer, filling several sections of the amphitheater, hundreds of women singers struck up "Deutschland Ueber Alles" and the hymn swelled to tremendous volume as the greater part of the throng present took up the refrain.

Then began the parade of 50 nations in which Deutschland was not Ueber Alles, but last. It is one of the traditions of Olympic revivals that Greece shall be first on the list and the sponsoring country last, the remainder going alphabetically according to the language of the country.

Under this arrangement the position of the United States team was next to last, our designation in German being "Vereinigte Staaten von Nordamerika." This placed us in the penultimate position, just ahead of the German athletes.

Roars of applause greeted team after team as variously garbed groups of athletes circled the track, saluted the Reichsfuehrer and took their places each in column of fours, the head facing the reviewing stand.

The question of how to salute Der Fuehrer seemed to have involved a lot of thought not at all unanimous.

There were the military salute, the Nazi salute, eyes right, the doffing of hats or caps and the dipping of colors.

There can be no doubt whatever about which salute was the more popular. Of the approximately 50 groups which paraded, 22 gave the Nazi salute in passing the stand. One country delegated a single man to act for the entire group.

Tremendous salvos of applause greeted each nation that gave back to Hitler his own salute—if you can attribute to any one individual authorship of a form of salutation known almost since the world began.

The French, Canadians, Italians and especially the Austrians—blood brothers to the Germans—drew the heavy applause of the multitude.

Always in Bad.

THE United States once more was destined to become the bad boy of the occasion who seemingly had left his manners at home.

At previous Olympic openings the United States by its nonchalance or indifference to formalities and correct procedure, had acquired a bad name. On one occasion the team did not even salute the reviewing stand, it is related.

Another time, while standing in file, some of the men broke ranks and lay down on the grass while all other national groups stood at attention.

The American team, when it came on the field, was a really attractive sight. But it marched around toward the reviewing stand to very little applause, although it was the largest and strongest representation sent by any country, except Germany.

As the bearer of the Stars and Stripes approached the reviewing group the colors were not dipped, but the arms of the athletes swung upward, hats were removed and held at arms' length as each section of the United States contingent passed. After marching well past Der Fuehrer, the athletes of each United States section began to put on their hats again, evidently in accordance with a routine agreed upon.

It proved to be an unfortunate arrangement, for just at that moment the German team came on the track and the band immediately began to play again, "Deutschland Ueber Alles."

That the Americans were putting on their hats just as the German national anthem was being sung seemed like a deliberate insult, but, of course, no offense was intended.

It was just one of our bad breaks.

Broadcasting by Pigeon.

MORE thundering songs as Germany's column of athletes took up its position next to the United States team on the field. It was announced that Richard Straus's anthem, composed for the occasion, had been accepted as the official hymn of the Olympic Games.

Then, unexpectedly, literally thousands of homing pigeons, carrying the news to the world that the Olympic Games officially were open, were released from the field. They slowly circled the arena, rising higher and higher, until they finally cleared the cliff-like walls of the Stadium and the massed humanity and disappeared in the distance.

The Immortal Flame.

DOWN the broad staircase at the east end of the arena tripped a lithe, blonde youth bearing a torch, apparently of magnesia. He was the last of a relay of some 3000 runners who lap by lap had carried the Olympic flame from Greece to Berlin.

The runner rounded half the track, and tripped lightly up the long broad staircase at the west end. Half way up an altar, constructed for the purpose, bore a gas contrivance, on which the sacred flame was lighted from the runner's torch.

Another salvo from the throng as the flame leaped up, to burn continuously throughout the present games.

Following this the standard-bearers of all nations assembled in a huge semicircle, across the track in front of the reviewing stands. Officials were grouped in the center and presently through the ring was led a wrinkled old man in Greek costume of 40 years ago—leggings and bolero of old rose, kilt and blouse of white and a Greek fez. This was Spiridon Loues, winner of the first Olympic marathon. He was taken before Der Fuehrer to be congratulated and afterward was led back across the track and off the field.

During this ceremony all flags were lowered except one. That stood out like a sore thumb—the colors of the United States. L. Joachim, gymnast, and hero of four U. S. Olympic teams, was the color bearer.

Once again it appeared that the United States was flouting its hosts. But the simple fact is that army regulations do not permit us to dip colors.

More singing and then the teams by Nations filed off the field and returned to the Olympic village. The vast throng broke up and went home, with considerable difficulty in many cases owing to the huge throng in Berlin for the occasion and the official parade which held up traffic through the heart of the city it required two hours for some of us to get to our hotels.

Germany's dramatization of opening day emphasizes once more that the sponsors of the 1940 Olympics have a standard set that will be difficult to equal and impossible to surpass.

ITALIANS WIN SOCCER TITLE BEFORE 100,000

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—A capacity crowd of 100,000 packed the main Olympic Stadium today to see Italy capture the Olympic soccer championship in a bitterly contested final round battle with Austria, 2-1.

Frossi, Italy's right wing, scored the first Italian goal late in the second period and then counted the deciding tally in the first minute of the extra session after Karl Kainberger, Austria's inside left, had tied the score two minutes before the end of regulation time.

With Italy taking the gold medal, Austria won the silver and Norway the bronze.

ST. LOUISAN LOSES IN BAIT-CASTING EVENT

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 15.—Henry Fujita, San Francisco entry in the International Fly and Bait Casting tournament, won the dry fly distance unknown competition today in a cast-off with J. S. Weber, St. Louis.

Fujita and Weber tied at 97. Fujita turned in 95 to Weber's 88 in the special event.

Entrants cast for five rings, having no idea as to the rings' distance from shore.

H. H. Lyons, San Francisco, and A. C. Acetta, Cleveland, O., tied for third place with scores of 96.

TRUESDALE SIGNED TO MEET BORAS IN MAT PRELIMINARY

Tuffy Truesdale, Arkansas light-heavyweight, last night was signed to oppose Gus Boras, local Greek, in a curtain-raising 30-minute match on Promoter Bill Schwabe's wrestling show Thursday night at the Coliseum.

Dorv Roche, Decatur, is down to oppose Dick Raines, Houston, Tex., in the main event, with Joe Sanderson, local referee, taking on Babe Rodriguez in the one fall to a finish semiwindup.

Eddie Newman, New York, who met Roche on the last card, will be seeking his first local triumph against Warren Bockwinkel of St. Louis, in the headliner of the three prelims.

Joe Miller, German veteran, is the opponent of Walter McMillan, in the second preliminary.

WILSON LOSES OLYMPIC FINAL; GERMANY WINS BOXING TITLE

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—America's boxing team, 1932 champions, was forced to content itself with one silver medal and one of bronze as the 1936 Olympic tournament closed tonight with Germany firmly established as the unofficial team titleholder.

Jackie Wilson, Cleveland Negro was alone of the American contingent qualified for the finals, was outpointed by Sergo of Italy in the bantamweight championship round and had to be satisfied with the silver medal. Lou Laurie, Cleveland flyweight, took the bronze medal in that division when his prospective opponent, Carlo-Magno of Argentina, failed to weigh in for the bouts which decided third and fourth places.

Germany captured the team crown by taking two championships, and furnishing two runners-up and one third-place finisher, a total of 34 points. Argentina, with one first, one second, two thirds and a fourth, was second with 26 points, and France with two firsts and a fourth, was third with 23.

The new Olympic champions:

Flyweight—Kaiser, Germany.
Bantamweight—Sergo, Italy.
Featherweight—Casanova, Argentina.
Lightweight—Harangi, Hungary.
Welterweight—Despeaux, France.
Light-heavyweight — Michalot, France.
Heavyweight—Runge, Germany.

The final unofficial team standings on a 10-5-4-3 basis:

Germany, 34 points; Argentina, 26; France, 23; Hungary, 16; Italy, 15; Finland, 10; United States, nine; Norway, nine; South Africa, eight; Sweden, seven; Denmark, seven; Estonia, five; Mexico, four; Poland, three.

Although he failed to qualify for the finals, Laurie gained the unusual distinction of being awarded a special prize for giving the best technical boxing exhibition in the tournament. The award was based upon the official judgment of the Boxing Federation officials.

To Hold Softball Meet.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Aug. 15.—The annual Labor day tournament of district champions in softball will be held here Sept. 7, it was announced today by C. A. Neavles of St. Louis, State softball commissioner. Neavles said teams from Columbia, St. Joseph, Trenton, Kirksville, Hannibal, Sedalia, Springfield and Kansas City had entered the affair.

Cochrane Says He Will Do No More Catching This Season

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers, said today he would do no more catching this season "unless there is a big change for the better" in his physical condition.

Cochrane, who was out of service for a month in mid-season due to illness, said he was "getting no better fast."

"I feel well until I start to work out," he explained, "then the old trouble returns."

Cochrane collapsed in the Tiger dugout in June during a particularly strenuous game. He has been in Henry Ford hospital at Detroit twice for observation since then.

He said he planned to take a long ocean trip aboard a freighter when the baseball season ends, and hopes to be able to resume his place behind the bat next season.

As a precaution, however, he is bringing up George Tebbetts from the Tiger farm at Beaumont, Tex., as a promising recruit catcher.

GRANVILLE TAKES TRAVERS FROM SUN TEDDY BY NOSE

Great Finish Earns $14,700 for Woodward Star, Putting His Winnings for the Year at $84,225.

By the Associated Press.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 15.—William Woodward's Granville drew the line fine again today as he waded through mud and slop to win the sixty-seventh running of the Travers, America's oldest stake.

Famous for his close finishes, even in defeat, the son of Gallant Fox succeeded where his famous sire lost to Jim Dandy, the 100 to 1 shot, when he got up in the last stride to take a head decision over Warren Wright's Sun Teddy, winner of the Arlington Handicap.

Only a head separated the pair as they crossed the finish line at the end of the mile and a quarter journey. The crowd of 15,000, one of the largest since pre-depression days, did not know the result until several minutes later as the judges called for a photograph. Count Morse, also owned by Wright, was another four lengths back, showing the way to Mrs. Payne Whitney's Memory Book and Ogden Phipps' White Cockade, a stablemate of Granville's, making his first start since winning the Withers Mile at Belmont Park in May.

Granville, showing no aversion to the mud, covered the distance under 127 pounds, two more than Sun Teddy carried, in 2:05 4-5. He added $14,700 to his earnings for the year to boost his total to $84,225, while backers of the Woodward ace received even money as he scored his fourth straight victory.

There was some doubt as to whether the stewards would allow the result to stand. While no jockeys claimed foul, Granville, after moving up on the outside at the stretch turn, swerved over on Sun Teddy, which in turn hit Count Morse.

The Wright entry furnished a perfect combination but in the end it had to give way to Granville's great finish. Count Morse, a speed horse, opened a long early lead while Eddie Arcaro rated Sun Teddy in second place. Johnny Stout had Granville in third place but he was several lengths back of the leader.

Rounding the bend leading into the stretch, Sun Teddy stuck his head in front as Granville made his move. Taking almost stride for stride, they battled through the stretch with Sun Teddy holding a slight lead. In the final strides, however, Granville showed the gameness for which he is famous. He got his nose in front and kept it there.

100 TEAMS EXPECTED TO SEEK HONORS IN SOFTBALL TOURNEY

Approximately 100 teams are expected to participate in the City Tournament held under the auspices of the American Softball Association, beginning Aug. 29, George H. Sisler, president of the association, announced today.

A total of $900 in awards for expense and merchandise for the men's division and a total of $375 in awards for expense and merchandise in the girls' division will go to the winning teams. The championship will be determined by the best two-out-of-three games between the two finalists.

White Cockade was placed on outside.

Granville ran a very game race. He was unable to get to the leaders until the stretch, came to the outside and swerved over on Sun Teddy who in turn knocked Count Morse out of it. Granville then stood long drive and just got up to win in last stride. Sun Teddy well ridden, was perfectly rated along behind Count Morse to the top of the stretch, where he took lead but was bumped by the winner, recovered and put up a game finish. Count Morse was sent into long lead going into first turn, displayed good speed and ran good race. Memory Book had no excuse. White Cockade broke from outside the stalls and went wide going into first turn, setled into stride, showed speed but stopped bad.

ORIENTALIST WINS $5000 RACE AT CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Orientalist, owned by Mrs. Emil Denemark of Chicago, won the $5000 Prairie State stakes for two-year-olds at Washington Park today by one length, with Bottle Cap second and Yellow Tulip third. The winner sprinted the six furlongs in 1:13 4-5 over a heavy track.

Orientalist, ridden by Jockey H. Albrecht, came from behind in the stretch, with Bottle Cap, the heavily played favorite closing an immense gap. Mordorf, a stable mate of Orientalist, set the pace after the first quarter of a mile, but faltered to finish fourth.

Orientalist paid $18.40, $4.80 and $3.80 across the board. Bottle Cap paid $3.20 to place and $2.60 to show. Yellow Tulip paid $5 to show.

Fischer Wins Trapshooting Championship

An Illinois trapshooting enthusiast, Chris C. Fischer, of Staunton, demonstrated to the local aggregation the finer points of the sport as he cracked and powdered 99 out of 100 clay pigeons to win the Forty-ninth State singles championship yesterday at the Airport Gun Club. While only 15 shooters participated in the first day's activity of the second annual shoot this number is expected to swell greatly in today's final events.

Fischer, always rated as a serious contender in the various trapshooting events, missed his last "bird" on the second 25-shot round, rallying, however, to score 50 consecutive kills to come out on top. Dan "Boone" Zimmer of the Creve Coeur Gun Club, shared second place honors with Oscar F. Franz. Each turned in a 98. Zimmer scored two perfect rounds before dropping one "bird" on both the third and fourth. Franz eased up on his shooting to miss the target on the second and third rounds.

Four shooters tied for third place with a 95 each. They were O. A. Messner, Dr. C. D. Magee, Harry L. Daly of Gillespie, Ill., and W. J. Fienup.

Today's program will include the Forty-ninth State class championship, Forty-ninth State handicap and ladies' singles championship, while a trophy will also be awarded to the shooter making the best score during the entire program.

TRAP NOTES.

J. R. Judy, who was high professional in the shoot yesterday with a score of 97, won the exhibition handicap with a tally of 47. Judy later participated in a doubles shoot along with Walter W. Bradbury, president of the Missouri Skeet Association, and C. B. W. Chapman.

Raymond Fienup, 11-year-old son of W. J. Fienup, turned in an 88 yesterday. The youth said it was one of the best scores he has ever made.

Trapshoot Today.

The trapshoot of the Grafton Gun Club will be held today on the grounds of the North Side Gun Club of Alton. Shooting will begin at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The shoot was originally scheduled for the Grafton Gun Club's range, but a fire destroyed it recently. The three events are 100-targets, handicaps, 18-24 yards; 50 16-yard targets, and 25 pair doubles.

Attendance Increasing.

The Southern Association attendance will return to the million class this year for the first time since 1931 if fans continue flocking to games at the rate so far shown this season.

TROLLEY LEAGUE TO ENTER FINAL ROUND OF TITLE RACE TODAY

With the regular Trolley League season coming to a close Aug. 30, the teams today enter the final round of games with a pair of contests scheduled on the east side of river. At State Street Park in East St. Louis the second-place Edgemont club will meet the J. S. & S. team of Vandalia while the league leading Stags will face the East St. Louis Hufschmidts at Athletic Park in Belleville. The Alpen Braus of Granite City and Boosters of Carlyle will be idle.

Edgemont is trailing by half a game and can take over first place today if they defeat Vandalia and the Hufschmidts down the Stags. Edgemont will send Eddie Eichelberger, the big right hander, to the hill, whiel Nelsen Guffey, acting in role as manager and first-string pitcher of Vandalia, will oppose the East Side ace.

Eddie Bryan, who has enjoyed a very successful season since joining the pitching staff of the Belleville aggreation, is slated to pitch today against the East St. Louisans. He will be opposed by either Dick Casey or George Martin.

LELAND KENT TAKES LEAD IN BICYCLE EVENT

Although he was [illegible] apped by a bad spill early [illegible] race and further weakene[illegible] he intense heat, Leland Kent, [illegible] ear-old bicycle rider of the St. Louis Cycling Club, took first place in the first half of the Missouri State championship cycling program yesterday afternoon over the Jefferson Memorial course in Forest Park. Kent's time for the 25 miles was one hour and 16 minutes, and 15 seconds.

Orvel Grosse, 15-year-old junior of the Century Road Club of America, took the honors in the junior division by winning both events, a one-mile sprint and a 10-mile race. His time for the mile was three minutes and 31 seconds, while he negotiated the 10-mile course in 31 minutes, 33 and eight-tenths seconds.

The final half of the program to determine Missouri's representatives in the national meet to be held here Sept. 13 and 14, will be held this morning at 8:30 a. m. over the Forest Park course. Three events, the junior two and five-mile races and a 50-mile grind for seniors, are on the docket for this forenoon.

Though he took first place in total points with 16, Kent actually crossed the finish line in fourth place. However, by virtue of winning three of the four sprints held every third lap, the young Northsider has forged into the scoring lead. Nevertheless, he must either win today's 50-mile race or finish only one point behind, if he is to win the state championship and the medal which goes with that honor.

Kent's injury came just before the finish of third lap, which, incidentally, was a sprint. John Sedvach, another cyclist, spilled in Kent's path. The youngster went down. The calf and ankle of his right leg were burned, but he leaped on his wheel and came back to win the next three sprints.

Every third lap was a sprint lap and points were awarded on a 5, 3, 2, and 1 basis. The same scoring was also used at the finish. There were 14 laps and four sprints.

Second in the senior division was last year's State champion, Gene Gotsch of the Century Road Club of America. Gotsch, totaling 14 points, crossed the line a scant yard behind Ray Florman, who was third in total points with 10, though he finished first in the race.

Other contestants and their points: Lou Droz, 6; Velmo Chappius, 5; Dick Suevers, 2; and Dick Land and Ernie Sallens, 1 each.

Three riders failed to finish the race. Sedvack, after his mixup with Kent, retired, while Pat Boyle and Dick Suevers went out with flat tires.

Joe Dellerman took second place in the junior one-mile race and Clarence Willmore third. However, in the 10-mile event, the procedure was reversed — Willmore was second and Dellerman third.

Kent, the senior winner who is employed as a shoeworker, was the city champion last year. He also finished second to Gotsch in the battle for State honors.

SIX RIDERS SIGN FOR MOTORCYCLE RACES

Six motorcycle racers signed yesterday for the program which will be combined with "Spot Night" at Edward Walsh Memorial Stadium Tuesday night.

Lee Melcher, the German champion from Milwaukee, who was out of recent competition here because his bikes were put out of commission in accidents, will compete.

Two other riders who were out of the running through accidents on the last program will be back. They are Joe Finger of Chicago and Ted Eichen, hard-riding young lad from Vancouver.

Andy Koslow and Kyrt Stolz of Chicago and Ray Demy, Eastern track rider, are the other three outstanding entries received yesterday.

TWO RECORDS ARE CREDITED TO AMERICAN RELAY TEAMS

Six Meet and Four British Standards Fall in 11-4 Triumph for Touring Olympic Group.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 15—Three world's records crashed today as Uncle Sam's Olympics champions, in their farewell appearance abroad, swamped the British empire's best track and field athletes, 11 to 3, before 90,000 in White City Stadium.

In addition to the world record performances, two by American relay combinations and one by a British quartet, six meet records and four British marks also fell before the combined assaults of the trans-Atlantic rivals. It was America's sixth straight victory since the classic was started in 1920.

The Americans started the record smashing in the first event, when Chuck Hornbostel, Bob Young, Charley Williamson and John Woodruff lowered the world mark for the two-mile relay to 7 minutes 35.8 seconds. This compared with the old standard of 7:41.4, hung up by a Boston A. A. quartet, anchored by Lloyd Hahn, in 1928.

Four-Mile Record Falls.

Hornbostel later participated in another world record performance when he, Gene Venzke, Archie San Romani and Glenn Cunningham cracked the four-mile relay standard which the Illinois A. C., with Joie Ray running the anchor leg, had set at 17 minutes 21.4 seconds in 1923. Today the American four was clocked in 17:17.2 as Cunningham was clocked in 4:12 for the final mile.

The third world record fell to the British one-mile quartet, made up of William Roberts, Godfrey Rampling, Bill Fritz and Arthur Godfrey Brown, which was clocked in the amazing time of 3:10.6, clipping two seconds off the listed standard hung up by a Stanford University combination in 1931. The British outfooted the American combination of Archie Williams, Al Fitch, Glenn Hardin and Jimmie Luvalle by a scant yard.

The "Black Phantom," Jesse Owens, the big crowd-drawing attraction of the day, ran on the winning American 400-yard relay quartet with Frank Wykoff, Marty Glickman and Ralph Metcalfe, but the day's honors went to Woodruff, the Olympic 800-meter champion. Woodruff not only anchored the record-breaking two-mile relay team but also the one-mile medley relay outfit and beat out Phil Edwards, Canadian Negro ace, in a dazzling fashion.

Towns Wins Hurdle Race.

Jack Lovelock, New Zealand's Olympic 1500-meter king, was clocked in 14:14.8 in the three-mile team race, which went to Great Britain, and Johnny Loaring of Canada passed Harold Manning of Wichita, Kan., on the final leg of the steeplechase relay, the only other event the British won.

Forrest Towns, Augusta (Ga.) timber-topper, who won the Olympic high hurdle title, won the 120-yard high hurdle event in 14.4 for a new British record, with Fritz Pollard of Chicago second.

America swept the field events with Lee Meadows clearing 14 feet 2 inches in the pole vault; Cornelius Johnson doing six feet in the high jump, both new British records; John Brooks of Chicago covering 24 feet 10 inches in the broad jump; Sam Francis, Lincoln (Neb.) southpaw, doing 51 feet 6 inches in the shotput; and Henry Dreyer heaving the hammer 168 feet 5 inches. M. Courtwright of Canada led the javelin throwers at 217 feet 6½ inches, but America won the event on a team basis. All field events were decided on the aggregate distances by the three leaders of each nation.

Sports for Friendship?

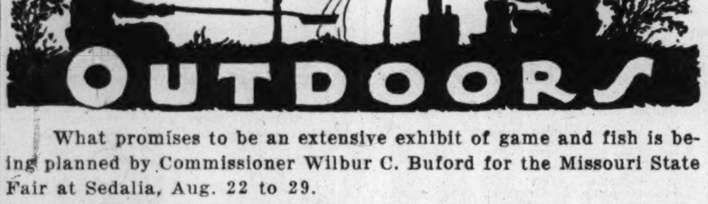
By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES.—General Juan Vaccarezza, Buenos Aires chief of police, has ordered the cops to stop playing soccer football.

Police teams must be abandoned, he ruled, because service matches, instead of creating good will, bring jealousy, dissension and rivalry.

Piscatorial Professors

These Cleveland High School teachers could teach their students something about fishing. Theodore D. Kelsey, left, 61 Fair Oaks, and E. E. Hutzel, 3767 Potomac street, are shown with their catch of Mackinaw trout, one of the best of the season in the Little Traverse Bay region. The fish were caught by trolling in Lake Michigan not far from Bay View. They weighed over 80 pounds, the largest of them 15 pounds.



What promises to be an extensive exhibit of game and fish is being planned by Commissioner Wilbur C. Buford for the Missouri State Fair at Sedalia, Aug. 22 to 29.

The display will be housed in the Game & Fish Department's new building on the State Fair grounds, opened for the first time last year when over a quarter million people visited the building.

The building is immediately north of the old rustic pavilion built several years ago out of native timbers. The new structure, 60 by 119 feet, is faced with red and gray Missouri granite.

Under a canopy at the front is a modern aquarium, its many tanks displaying hundreds of specimen fish common to Missouri waters. At the entrance of the exhibit one sees a reproduction of a natural waterfall winding over a rugged fern-bordered course. Extending from the falls are two series of aquaria each set in natural rock background.

Pens are provided for wild game and facilities for their proper care. Here one may see Missouri's native bobwhite quail, wild turkey and Virginia whitetail deer.

The first hunting season opening of the fall months will be September 1 when doves become eligible for the hunter's bag. Not more than ten doves can be killed by any one person in one day, and a hunter may have in his possession not more than 15 doves. The dove apparently has had a most favorable nesting season as they may be seen in large numbers in almost every section of the state. A hunting license is required of all who carry a gun, regardless of age or sex. The season continues open to Dec. 15.

It has been found in several instances that a fish may swallow a hook and yet live a long time. The hook sometimes dissolves and disappears. C. P. Everston, a Versailles sportsman, is authority for the story that a 75 pound blue catfish was recently caught in the Lake of the Ozarks below Versailles with 113 hooks in its mouth.

Bowling Notes

A mixed doubles league, with 16 pairs entered, is being organized to roll on the Wellston Recreation alleys every other Sunday night at 7 o'clock. The circuit will be a handicap affair and all those desiring information should call D. J. Sweeney at EVergreen 9216.

The Industrial Handicap Bowling League, which will roll on the Wellston drives, is being organized. An attempt will be made to increase the membership from eight to 12 teams. For information call C. L. Hensen, ROsedale 3178 or CHestnut 4700, Station 250.

Bob Harris, former manager of the Florris Recreation, has taken over the Washington alleys.

The Del-Mar Recreation Handicap Bowling League is being organized for teams with averages between 850 and 900. The league will roll on Monday nights at 7 o'clock. Harry Feuser, FOrest 1211, is receiving entries.

Two women's leagues, one to roll in the afternoon and the other at night, are being organized by D. J. Sweeney at the Wellston Recreation.

There are openings for several teams in a handicap league rolling at Heidel's Recreation on Thursday night at 7 o'clock. There also are openings for two complete leagues. Phone Frank Heidel, PRospect 8400.

A Tuesday afternoon league, with six women's teams, has been organized, and will open the season at Heidel's Recreation, Aug. 25. In case two additional teams are obtained the league membership will be increased. For information call Mrs. Frances Johnston, RIverside 2831J.

The Cinderella Monday Night Women's League needs two more teams. Phone Larry Joust or Walter Kerr, Prospect 8751.

A meeting to organize a women's league to bowl on Wednesday afternoons will be organized at a meeting at the German House Recreation Aug. 25 at 2 p. m.

Varoff Shows Brother

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO. — George Varoff of San Francisco, who set a world record of 14 feet, 6½ inches in the pole vault but failed to win a berth in the final Olympic trials, is coaching a brother, Sister Annie, 16, and the neighbohrood children in the event. Paul, the 12-year-old brother, does 5 feet, 8½ inches. George believes that his form is perfect.

POOR MARKS MADE IN LABOR MEET; PEACOCK IS ELIMINATED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The athletes who missed the Olympic boat and tried to make up for it in the first World's Labor Athletic Carnival today were fortunate, judging from their performances, that they failed in their bids to make the American team.

Not one of the times or distances posted in a dozen events on the first day of the two-session meet, held before some 7500 fans at the stadium on Randall's Island, came even close to disturbing the marks already in the books or posted in Berlin. The event, however, was packed with plenty of surprises and thrills.

Chief of the upsets were the elimination of the three-time conqueror of Jesse Owens, Temple University's Eulace Peacock, in the 100-yard dash, because of the recurrence of his old leg injury, and the victory in this same event by a long-legged Georgia Tech galloper with a loping strike, L. Perrin Walker, in 9.8 seconds.

Rodenkirchen Fails.

The sprint also produced another big surprise when Robert Rodenkirchen, the former Jersey City school boy who cracked the 200-meter world's record earlier this year and then lost out in a chance for the American Olympic team because of a technicality on his nationality, could get no better than fourth behind Walker.

Along with Walker's sprint triumph, the best of a no-better-than-mediocre set of performances, was the 24.2 seconds posted by Gilder Farrow, a rangy Negro from Atlantic City, in the finals of the 220-yard low hurdles, beating Deotis Taylor of New York.

Old Pat McDonald, the grizzled New York policeman, coming out to compete in the 56-pound weight speciality he won in previous Olympics, got no better than fourth behind Pete Zaremba, New York University's former husky, who won out with a heave of 34 feet, 1½ inches.

Schoolboys Surprise.

Two schoolboys, Bob Peoples of Oklahoma City's Classen High School, and Archie Harris of Ocean City, N. J., provided a pair of surprises in the field events. Peoples upset a flock of older and more experienced performers in the javelin with a toss of 198 feet, 1¾ inches.

Harris, although he failed to win his shot-put specialty, nevertheless outclassed several more favored rivals in taking third with a throw of 46 feet, 11 inches, behind the winning 49-foot, 5½-inch mark posted by Ral Allee of San Francisco's Olympic club.

"She is...!"
"Is she...?"

One man says enthusiastically of a young lady, "She is marvelous!" Another, not so enthusiastic will say, "Oh, is she?" Just a matter of highly personal preference.

We believe that like millions of other delighted smokers, you'll say Van Dyck is a fine cigar, smooth, mild, pleasure-ful. But you—you'll decide for yourself.

It costs only 5¢ to be introduced to Van Dycks. And the only way you can be sure you're not depriving yourself of smoke-satisfaction is to try them at your leisure. You, too, may find this comradeship a lasting joy.

U. S. PARKS TENNIS TOURNEY OPENS HERE TOMORROW

16 ST. LOUIS DISTRICT MEN AND WOMEN ARE AMONG ENTRIES

Ted Drewes, Who Won Singles Championship From 1924 Through 1927, Will Try to Gain Honors Again.

By Davison Obear.

The St. Louis District, with 16 players, will be well represented in the National Public Parks tennis championship which gets under way tomorrow morning on the Jefferson Memorial courts in Forest Park. First-round matches in the singles will open the program, and the doubles play is scheduled to start Tuesday.

Ted Drewes, Robert Norton and Frank Keaney will represent St. Louis in the men's division, while Merceina Weiss and Mrs. Jean Dalstrom are the entries in the women's singles and doubles play Drewes won the National Parks singles title from 1924 to 1927 inclusive and George J. Jennings Jr., Chicago, is the only other player to win the honors for four consecutive years.

Norton has participated in a number of previous national championships, while Keaney will be making his first appearance this year. He holds the St. Louis men's singles title. Miss Weiss played in the 1934 national tournament but this will be the first for Mrs. Dalstrom.

East St. Louis has qualified five players. McNeill Smith will be the men's singles representative and will play with Karl Kammann in the doubles. Kammann was runner-up in the singles in the first tournament held here in 1923. The East St. Louis pair will be one of the title favorites.

In the women's events East St. Louis will have Mrs. Bert Thompson, city singles champion, and the Tribout sisters, Margaret and Mercedes. The Clayton Park Board has entered Charles Sauselle and George Finger in the men's doubles.

The four players to represent Granite City in the various national parks events are Louis Bost, recent winner of the men's singles qualifying tournament; Louis Mehl, the runner-up; Mrs. Billie Benson Buente, women's singles winner, and Mabel Sorter, doubles champions. Mrs. Buente is a former O'Fallon Park star, and with Mrs. Violet Furlong, received high ranking in women's doubles in the Missouri Valley section.

The draw for the men's and women's singles will be made at the Gatesworth Hotel this afternoon at 5 o'clock. Pairings for the doubles championships will be made tomorrow afternoon. Registration of players will begin this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the hotel and will continue until the last player arrives.

CITY POLICE TO PLAY COUNTY TEAM TONIGHT IN SOFTBALL GAME

The St. Louis City Police team will play a team made up of County officers in their third annual softball game tonight at the Normandy High School Field. The game, which will be preceded by a girls' game, will start at 9 o'clock.

In the past two years the teams have broken even, so the city police are hoping they can win the rubber game in celebration of the birthday of Sergeant Rogan, who is the team's manager and coach. In addition, the squads are competing for a trophy for the first time and the team which wins the first two legs on the cup will become permanent owner of the trophy.

The city squad will consist of Catchers Elmer Lucks and Leo Sullivan; infielders Ray Hacker, Pat Kelly, George Fett, Bill Bischoff, Bill Busch and Claude Roth; Outfielders Luke Hasty, Larry Rhea, John Ottin, John Doleny and Bud Vaniecek and Pitcher George Ryan.

The County team will consist of Manager Arnold Willman, Captain Orion Litzinger and Leo Seivers, Bill Smith, Art Mosley, Harvey Willman, Robert Kelly, John Obertz, Ted Baumer, Ray Baumer, Charles Kramer, Phil Dueser, Ott Frank and Jule Oberbeck.

SOUTHERN METHODIST MAY PLAY WASHINGTON HERE OCT. 9, 1937

Jim Stewart, athletic director of Southern Methodist University, stated yesterday that the Mustangs may return to St. Louis for another football game with Washington University. The date will be Oct. 9, 1937.

The Mustangs are a great favorite here, although they have won from Washington both times in the last two years. Southern Methodist also was a Rose Bowl participant last January.

Athletic Director Stewart, who is a brother-in-law of Jack Knott, Brownie pitcher, yesterday saw the Browns play the Cleveland Indians. Stewart sat in a box with Jimmy Conzelman, Washington's head coach.

Pictures Gross $500,000.

The Louis-Schmeling fight pictures are said to have grossed over $500,000 so far.

They Hope to Shuffle Off to Buffalo With Tennis Trophies

Here are the Buffalo (N. Y.) public parks tennis champions, Ethel Haas and Joe Turski, who are entered in the national tournament, opening here tomorrow.

Harlem Place Methodist Wins Junior Olympic Meet; Eberle Upset in Hurdles

By Reno Hahn

Harlem Place Methodist Church team won the first Greater St. Louis Junior Olympic track and field meet yesterday at Francis Field, scoring 72 points. Church of the Little Flower was second with 52 and Kingshighway Presbyterian, third with 40 1-5. The meet started six weeks ago with preliminaries in the three boys' and two girls' divisions.

Despite the fact that most of the athletes were not in training, good times and distances were made. Athletes from Southern Illinois, St. Louis and St. Louis County participated in the meet. They were permitted to enter through the churches which were selected as the basis for teams.

The Harlem squad, made up principally of former Roosevelt High School athletes, dominated the senior boys' division, and scored most of its points in that and the intermediate boys' group.

Jack Bushyhead, who was undefeated last season at University City Junior High School, ran the senior boys' 440-yard dash in 52.7 seconds, not equal to his best effort but very good considering that he is not in serious training.

Jimmy Johnson, Kirkwood, was a surprise victor in the 120-yard high hurdles, defeating both Charles Eberle, St. Louis University High, and Jim Louis, Madison-St. Clair Conference champion in 16 seconds. Johnson is just reaching his peak and should dominate the high hurdles next season.

Bob Saldofsky, who did so well at Roosevelt as a junior last year, continued his fine work in the intermediate division by taking the 50 and 100-yard dashes, second in the eight-pound shot put, and anchoring a winning relay team for the best individual effort of the afternoon.

The point totals: Harlem Place Methodist, 72; Little Flower, 52; Kingshighway Presbyterian, 40 1-5; St. Paul's Methodist, 39 1-5; Maplewood Methodist, 24; Euclid Baptist, 20; Niedringhaus Methodist, 19 1-3; Beth David, 18; St. James, 11; Rock Hill Presbyterian, 10; Shaare Zedek, 8; Webster Groves Presbyterian, 7; Lafayette Park Methodist, 5; Messiah Lutheran, 5; Holy Rosary, 3½; Benton (Ill.) Baptist, 3 1-3; Richmond Heights Presbyterian, 3; Redeemer Evangelical, 3; St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran, 3; Holy Redeemer, 2; Corpus Christi, 2; St. Paul's Episcopal, 1½; Holy Name, ½; Delmar Baptist, 1-3; St. Ann's, 1-3.

Muny All-Star Baseball Clubs To Play Today

The Municipal Baseball Association's second annual All-Star game will be played this afternoon at the Public Schools' Stadium. While there is much interest in the performances of the players on the North and South Side teams, the preliminary contest should attract as much attention, for it will be between the Floris and the Wagners for the championship of the City League and the right to enter the playoffs for the muny title.

The preliminary game will start at 1 o'clock to be followed by the battle between the North Side All-Stars, with Russell Lyon in charge, and the South Side All-Stars, directed by George Wiley. Lyons is also the manager of the Wagner team.

The two squads took a short workout yesterday, the North Siders at Sherman Park, and the South Siders in Forest Park.

Norvall Hunthausen of the J. Burkes team, will start on the mound for the North team which won the game played last season. Lou Fangmeyer, Kelloggs, will be the starting hurler for the South nine.

INDIA WINS OLYMPIC FIELD HOCKEY TITLE

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—India won the Olympic field hockey championship today by beating Germany, 8-1, in the final.

Germany put up a great fight in the first half, holding the crack India team to a 1-0 lead, but the winners went wild in the last half and scored seven goals.

Holland, which yesterday defeated France, took third place.

CHICAGO NINE BEATS BOSTON, 16-5, TO WIN UNION PRINTERS' TITLE

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Closing the most successful baseball tournament in the history of the Union Printers' International Baseball League, Chicago defeated Boston, 16 to 5 in the final game for the Garry Herrmann trophy and the championship in the twenty-sixth annual tournament at Wrigley Field this afternoon.

The highlight of the tournament was the early elimination of the 1935 champion Washington team, which had won the pennant 13 times.

Chicago defeated Boston in the opening game of the tournament last Sunday by the score of 13 to 6, and was the only undefeated team in the series.

At the annual meeting of the league Friday night, Washington, D. C., was selected as the 1937 tournament city, and Indianapolis was named as the city for the holding of the annual mid-winter meeting in January. Charles Rupnow of Detroit, Mich., was elected president to succeed John M. Dugan of Cincinnati, who has been head of the league since 1926. Charles Holbrook of Washington, D. C., was chosen as vice-president and George E. O'Donnell of New York City was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

ZUPPKE READY FOR HIS 24TH YEAR AS COACH AT ILLINOIS U.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Aug. 15.—In less than four weeks, football camps in the Big Ten Conference will present the appearance of bee-hives as preparations for the 1936 campaign get under way. Official fall drill will begin Sept. 10 and from then until the close of the season, Nov. 22, plenty of action will be in evidence. The non-conference season will open, Sept. 26 and the opening game of the conference schedule will be played, Oct. 3, with Northwestern meeting Iowa.

Minnesota and Ohio State shared championship honors last season, each team winning its five conference games. Minnesota scored a total of 136 points against 33 by opponents, while Ohio State chalked up 120 points, compared to 26 annexed by opposing teams. Minnesota won the conference title in 1934 by winning five games and at the close of last season had a record of winning 17 consecutive games and not having lost a game in the last 24 played.

Athletic directors and coaches who will have charge of football activities of the varous conference schools this season are as follows:

Minnesota — Frank McCormick, director, and Bennie Bierman, coach.

Ohio State—L. W. St. John, director, and Francis Schmidt, coach.

Michigan—Fielding Yost, director, and Harry Kipke, coach.

Northwestern—Tug Wilson, director, and Lynn Waldorf, coach.

Indiana—Zora Clevenger, director, and Bo. McMillan, coach.

Purdue—Noble Kizer, director, and coach.

Chicago—Nelson Metcalf, director, and Clark Shaughnessy, coach.

Wisconsin—Harry Stuhldreher, director and coach.

Iowa—Ossie Solem, director and coach.

Illinois—George Huff, director, and Bob Zupke, coach.

Bob Zuppke of Illinois is the dean of Big Ten coaches. He will inaugurate his twenty-fourth season as head coach at Illinois this fall.

MURPHY LEADS QUALIFIERS IN CODEBALL EVENT

Lou Murphy led the qualifiers in the first round of the National A. A. U. codeball tournament held yesterday in Forest Park, turning in a score of 66 to nose out Mart Dooling by a single point.

Murphy, who holds the course record of 63, nearly registered a "hole-in-one" on the thirteenth hole when his shot which traveled some 150 yards rolled into the cup only to bounce out again.

Among the participants in yesterday's tournament was Dr. William E. Code of Chicago, inventor and leading exponent of the game, who "kicked around" the 14 holes in 79. Codeball, which has been described as golf played with the feet, was originated several years ago in Chicago and is played with an inflated rubber ball, six inches in diameter and weighing 12 ounces.

Sol and Benny Kessler each turned in 78 to tie for third honors. Ed Doody, Ozark amateur title holder, will shoot in today's qualifying round which will precede the championship struggle later in the afternoon.

Chairman Frank Dooling of the A. A. U., announced that the qualifying and final round in the women's division will also be played this afternoon. Among the favorites in this division are Miss Harriette La Mertha, Miss May Brady and Mrs. Freda Johnson. Bert Gates, 1935 men's champion, did not defend his title yesterday.

WHOSE FAULT?

UNSAFE TIRES CAUSE BLOW-OUT ACCIDENTS LIKE THIS!

GOLDEN PLY BLOW-OUT PROTECTION found only in Goodrich Silvertowns

Reporter: "Pretty close shave, Miss. What happened?"

Driver: "We had a blow-out that shot us right off the road. Guess it serves me right. My garage man told me my tires weren't safe, but I just laughed at him."

A blow-out is no laughing matter, especially to the motorist who has had one. And after it's all over, when you're sitting by your wrecked car waiting for help, you'll suddenly realize that gambling on tires is mighty serious and dangerous business.

Figures don't lie

Don't let anyone tell you that all tires on the road today are safe. They're not. And the fact that thousands are killed or injured in blow-out accidents every year proves it. To really stand up under today's high speeds a tire must be specially constructed—it must give you protection where you need it most—inside the tire. The new Goodrich Silvertown is just that kind of a tire. And here's why it saves motorists' lives.

When you spin along the highways at a rate of 40, 50, 60 miles an hour terrific heat is generated inside the tire. Rubber and fabric begin to separate. A tiny blister forms. Bigger and BIGGER grows this invisible blister. Then it's just a matter of time when, BANG! A blow-out!

An amazing invention

To protect you against such danger every Goodrich Silvertown is built with the Golden Ply, a layer of special rubber and full-floating cords, scientifically treated to resist internal tire heat. By resisting this heat, the amazing Golden Ply keeps rubber and fabric from separating—it keeps heat blisters from forming. And when you prevent the blister you prevent the high-speed blow-out.

Silvertowns also safeguard you against dangerous tail spin skids with a specially designed "road drying" tread that acts like the windshield wiper on your car. At the first sign of a skid the big center ribs sweep away water, giving the double outer row of husky Silvertown cleats a drier surface to grip.

Priced lower!

When Goodrich Silvertowns cost much less than other super-quality tires, can you afford to be without the protection and months of extra mileage they give? See your Goodrich dealer now.

WHAT SURVEY OF REAL ESTATE FIELD SHOWS

Prices Generally Advance Semi-Annual Reports to National Association of Real Estate Boards State.

252 CITIES IN THE SUMMARY

Residential Rents Increased Ten Per Cent—Sectional Variations and Also Differences Between Cities.

A real estate outlook that for a very large proportion of the cities of the country is the most promising in many years is shown by the Twenty-Seventh Semi-Annual Survey of the Real Estate Market, general findings of which are released today by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The survey is from confidential reports made to the Association by local member boards. It covers 252 cities. (In addition, reports from member boards in Hawaii and Canada were received. Survey totals announced, however, are in all cases for the continental United States.)

Stiffening earning power of real estate, including business as well as residential properties, forms the backbone of the advance. New home building, its most striking expression, is held back in some communities by construction costs, in some communities by difficulty still experienced in adjusting mortgage terms to buyers' needs, and by other causes, but in many cities it has reached the point where home sites again are in demand. The real estate market in general is more active than a year ago in 92 per cent of the cities of the country, the survey finds.

Higher Selling Prices.

Real estate is selling for higher prices than a year ago in 77 per cent of the cities of the country, while only one per cent show a price level lower than last year. Many reports comment that 'steals" are no longer to be found.

Outstanding new feature of real estate recovery is the way rents for central business properties are stepping up, a trend of importance for the indication it gives of how far business in general is preparing for coming activity. Central business property, the survey finds, is leading for rates higher than a year ago in 62 per cent of all cities represented. Only 2 per cent of cities report these rates going lower. the association's survey of six months ago, which found business property rates up in 54 per cent of the cities, was the first in 10 years of these surveys in which a majority of cities had reported such a trend.

Considerable variation is shown between the various geographic sections of the country in the spread of real estate advance, and individual cities even in the same section vary both in respect to details covered in the survey and in respect to general market activity.

The survey gives these important measures of the real estate outlook:

1. Under-supply of single-family dwellings is shown in 76 per cent of the cities reporting, as against 66 per cent so reporting six months ago. Only 1 per cent show any oversupply.

2. Under-supply of apartments is reported in 45 per cent of the cities, as against 43 per cent of the cities six months ago. Only 4 per cent show any oversupply.

Apartment Rentals Higher.

3. Rents are higher than last year for apartment space in 83 per cent of cities reporting, and for single family dwellings in 91 per cent of the cities. More, there is almost complete absence of any down-trend. Only 1 per cent of cities show lower rates, whether for detached houses, duplexes or apartments. In two geographical sections, the East South Central and the Mountain Sections, 100 per cent of the cities show up-trend in single-family house rents, and one of these, the East South Central section, shows 100 per cent up-trend in apartment rates.

4. Rent advance most frequently reported is 10 per cent. This is true both for detached houses and for apartments. Rents for single family dwellings in representative metropolitan centers are now at

F. W. WOOLWORTH CO. RENTS SPACE ON 39TH

Leases Quarters in Building Designed for De Tonty Street Corner.

The F. W. Woolworth Co. has taken a 15-year lease on quarters in a modern two-story building to be erected at the northwest corner of Thirty-ninth and DeTonty streets in Shaw's Lafayette addition. The new store will have a frontage of 78 feet on Thirty-ninth street, with a depth of 60 feet. A two-story building on the corner, with a frontage of 32 feet on Thirty-ninth and 60 feet on DeTonty, occupied as a drug store, will be incorporated in the new building.

The second floor of the structure will comprise offices available for physicians and dentists. It will have a total frontage of 110 feet on Thirty-ninth and 60 feet on DeTonty. Present improvements on the Thirty-ninth street side of the lot, excluding the corner building, are being razed to make way for the new building.

The structure will be built by the Gilda Realty & Investment Co. Saum, Architects, Inc., has the construction contract.

In addition to two downtown stores, at 500 Washington avenue and at 724 Olive street, the concern has 31 or more branch stores in St. Louis area.

Walter M. Smith, treasurer of F. W. Woolworth & Co., is having plans made for an ornate business structure to be erected at the northwest corner of Cherokee street and California avenue. He purchased the site, having a frontage of 60 feet on Cherokee, and 130 feet on California several months ago, through Harry Newman, Inc. Details of the project, as well as the height of the building, have not disclosed.

The corner dominates one of the most important intersections in South St. Louis.

The F. W. Woolworth Co. operates a large store at 2743 Cherokee street, adjacent to the corner to be improved by Smith.

GROUND IN FORDYCE LANE ACQUIRED FOR RESIDENCE

Mrs. George S. Mepham, 4457 Westminster place, has purchased an acre of ground in Fordyce Lane adjoining a tract, which she had previously acquired for development as a flower garden. The latter joins the residence of her niece, Mrs. Archy Lee, in Fordyce Lane. Mrs. Mepham will combine the two tracts as a site for a handsome residence, plans for which are being drawn by Study & Farrar, architects. The transaction was handled by Mary Potter Love, Inc.

Mary Potter Love, Inc., also reports having effected the sale of a lot in Brittany Woods, a new subdivision development at old Bonhomme road and Gannon avenue in University City, to Mrs. Bennett J. Applegate, and a lot on Ellsworth Lane, off Litzsinger road to O. D. Schnaar. The purchasers have plans for handsome residences, it was announced.

With Holly Hills Co.

R. V. Sanguinet, building contractor, formerly with the Albert G. Blanke Realty Co., is now associated with the Holly Hills Realty Co.

KROGER LEASES STORE IN UNIVERSITY CITY

Building Under Construction on North and South Road Near Delmar.

The Kroger Grocer & Baking Co. has leased from the plans, a one-story building of the drive-in type, designed for a site on the west side of the North and South road, just north of Delmar boulevard, in University City. It is to be built by a client of the Blumenfeld Realty Co., which negotiated the lease which is for a 10-year term.

The site has a frontage of 160 feet on the North and South road, by a depth of 150 feet. The building, which will be 40 by 80 feet in dimensions, together with parking space, will occupy the entire site. It will conform with the requirements of the grocery and baking company. The interior will be on a pretentious scale, with fixtures modernistic in the extreme. Construction is scheduled to start this week, under contracts calling for completion by Oct. 1.

The Kroger company has 26 or more branch stores in the city, including three on West Delmar and several in St. Louis County, notably in Webster Groves, University City, Overland, Maplewood and Kirkwood.

The company is now enlarging and converting the large warehouse at 3680 Chouteau avenue into a bakery, which is to serve as a source of supply for its customers in the St. Louis territory. The capacity of the structure will be trebled by the addition of two stories. Occupying a site 100 by 300 feet, the structure was acquired by the Kroger company several years ago when it purchased the Piggly-Wiggly and the Korn stores in the St. Louis district.

Plans contemplate a commercial bakery, rivaling in equipment, the most modern and complete in the country. The new plant will provide for an output that will keep it in operation night and day for seven days a week. Ovens handled by a conveyor system will be among the innovations. The company's present bakery is at 1311 South Thirty-ninth street.

The Kroger has a warehouse of large capacity at Thirty-ninth and Rutger streets, erected several years ago in order to provide for requirements incident to increased business. Fireproof in construction the building is one of the most modern and sanitary of its type in the United States. Adjacent to Mill Creek Valley, it has superior shipping facilities.

The company occupies approximately all of its store quarters in the St. Louis area under leases providing for rentals which add to the investment status of the property. It operates several thousand stores distributed throughout the country, including the St. Louis chain. H. V. McNamara is manager of the Kroger chain in the St. Louis territory.

SITE IN CLUB GROUNDS BOUGHT FOR RESIDENCE

Two acres comprising lot 28 in the St. Louis Country Club grounds have been purchased by Thomas W. White of the law firm of Fordyce, White, Mayne & Williams, represented by Whitelaw Terry, of Albert T. Terry Son & Co. The ground was owned by the Walsh Estate, represented by Cornet & Zeibig in the transaction.

White plans to erect a home on the site in the early future.

HOUSING LOAN CALLS SET NEW HIGH MARK

61 in Last Week for $246,300—Dollar Volume Smaller, Director Says.

The St. Louis district office of the Federal Housing Administration yesterday reported that 61 applications were made last week—the largest number received at the office in any one week since it was opened 18 months ago. The applicatons were for a total of $246,300. Of this $90,200 was sought for building new homes and the rest for refinancing existing obligations.

Thomas G. Mullally, district director, said the total number of applications received by the office thus far was 3078, for an aggregate of $13,778,950. The loans insured to date number 1562, for $7,144,725, and there are commitments for 560 loans, amounting to $2,546,760. While the number of applications was increasing, Mullally said, the dollar volume was smaller, the average loan being less than $4000.

S. B. REMMINGTON, VICE-PRESIDENT, SHAW & FRANCIS

S. B. Remmington has been made vice-president of Shaw & Francis Inc. He will also serve as salesmanager for the company. The concern is marketing Davis place, at the northwest corner of Clayton and Hanley roads and is sales agent for other high-class West End properties.

JULY BUILDING VALUATIONS LITTLE CHANGED FROM JUNE

Permits for Month in 215 Cities Total $95,281,845 Against $54,191,787 Year Ago.

As a result of the sharp drop in building permit values at New York City from the abnormally large June figure, the total value of permits issued in July in the 215 cities, which report regularly to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., showed a decline of 15.4 per cent from June. This, however, was only slightly above the 10.5 per cent seasonal decrease usually expected at this time and, if the New York City totals be excluded, there is a gain of 2.6 per cent shown for the July-June comparison. In fact, the contemplated building expenditures for July were the largest, with the exception of June, in the past five years.

The dollar volume of permits issued for the 215 cities for July amounted to $95,281,845, compared with $112,640,106 in June, and $54,191,787 in July, 1935. The increase over last year was equal to 75.8 per cent.

For the five boroughs of New York City the July total was $20,745,393, a loss of 48.2 per cent from the June volume of $40,011,404, but a gain of 25.0 per cent above the $11,213,613 figure reported in the same month of last year.

Outside of New York City, permits aggregated $74,536,452 for July, against $72,628,702 in the preceding month and $42,978,174 in July a year ago. This represented increases, respectively, of 2.6 and 73.4 per cent.

Permit Values in Cities.

The group totals of building permit values for the 215 cities for July, this year and last, together with percentage changes, are shown in the following table:

Groups:	July, 1936	July, 1935
New England	$ 5,259,269	$ 3,046,615
Middle Atlantic	30,308,754	16,405,334
South Atlantic	11,346,293	6,243,688
East Central	18,734,192	9,889,343
South Central	9,297,665	4,184,102
West Central	4,464,146	5,060,681
Mountain	1,700,576	1,697,843
Pacific	14,170,950	7,664,181
Total U. S.	$95,281,845	$54,191,787
New York City	$20,745,393	$11,213,613
Outside N. Y. C.	$74,536,452	$42,978,174

The group analysis of the July report reveals a decline of 40.4 per cent from June in the Middle Atlantic States, and decreases of 4.1 and 3.3 per cent, respectively, in the Mountain and Pacific groups, while all other sections showed increases as follows: South Atlantic, 15.9 per cent; West Central, 14.5 per cent, New England, 14.4 per cent; South Central, 9.4 per cent, and East Central, 0.8 per cent. Compared with a year ago the July returns showed large increases in practically all groups, except the West Central, which showed a loss.

Seven Months' Comparison.

The total value of permits issued for the first seven months of 1936 continues favorable, the aggregate of $558,925,430 this year comparing with $307,435,886 for the like period of a year ago, or a rise of 81.8 per cent. This followed an increase of 52.7 per cent reported in 1935 over 1934 and a gain of 18.5 per cent in 1934 over 1933, which year witnessed the low point of the depression.

The seven months' record of building permit values for 1936 and 1935, for the 215 cities, as compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., is given herewith:

Groups:	Seven Months. 1936	1935
New England	$29,511,536	$19,682,754
Middle Atlantic	188,559,757	98,044,593
South Atlantic	60,982,082	34,671,205
East Central	97,502,211	47,783,600
South Central	61,844,487	28,636,567
West Central	24,561,006	19,632,739
Mountain	10,685,896	6,650,700
Pacific	85,278,455	62,333,728
Total U. S.	$558,925,430	$307,435,884
N. Y. City	$132,007,223	$71,406,819
Outside N. Y. C.	$426,918,207	$236,029,067

SUIT TO BAR RENTING OF PROPERTY TO NEGROES

Action Alleges Vine Grove Avenue Premises Are Let in Violation of Restrictive Agreement.

Suit was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Edward M. Thornhill and Arthur C. Hoehn, as trustees, to enjoin Mr. and Mrs. Leonhard Herdt from renting their property at 3019-21 Vine Grove avenue, in northwest St. Louis, to Negroes.

The suit sets forth that in July, 1924, a restrictive agreement was signed by various owners of property in the block in which the premises in controversy is located, the agreement to last 20 years. By its terms none of the signers were to sell, lease or rent to Negroes.

According to the petition the Herdts acquired title from Joseph H. Weber, one of the signers of the agreement, and are bound by its terms, but are permitting the premises to be occupied by Negroes in violation of the contract.

Thornhill is treasurer of the St Louis Real Estate Exchange and Hoehn is its secretary. Lester W. Spilker, their attorney, explained the property owners requested officers of the Real Estate Exchange to serve as trustees under the agreement. Herdt declined to comment.

SMUGGLED ARMS ESCAPE PLOT THWARTED AT FOLSOM PRISON

15-Year Convict With Only 8 More Days to Serve Caught Trying to Get Automatics.

By the Associated Press.

FOLSOM, Cal., Aug. 15.—The 2800 prisoners of Folsom prison were locked in their cells under special patrol tonight after Warden Clarence A. Larkin reported an escape plot to get four automatic pistols and 100 rounds of ammunition to certain convicts had been thrwarted. Three or more prisoners were put in solitary confinement.

All convicts were called into the prison yard and searched. One dropped a pistol.

John Atkinson, a guard, caught convict Chester Ayhens trying to smuggle two automatics through the gate into the inner yard. Ayhens had only eight days more to serve of a 15-year sentence for second degree burglary.

Ayhens got his weapons, the warden said, from a cache of four guns buried by an outside confederate near the prison. A convict told the warden Ayhens got one pistol past the guards. He also led officials to the spot where the weapons had been cached but denied knowing for whom they were intended.

MARLAND DECIDES MAN MUST FINISH TERM AFTER 23 YEARS

Oklahoma Governor Fears Effect on Prison Discipline if Escaped Convict Is Not Returned.

By the Associated Press.

FORT SILL, Okla., Aug.. 15.—Gov. E. W. Marland announced here today he would demand that Carlton B. Chilton of Cleveland, O., who escaped from the Granite (Okla.) Reformatory 23 years ago, be returned to Oklahoma to finish a two-year sentence for bank theft.

Marland made the decision after a two and one-half hour hearing, at which he received a report on Chilton's case from Col. Charles Daley, superintendent of the State Crime Bureau. Daley urged that Chilton be permitted to remain in Ohio.

Chilton was serving a two-year sentence for stealing $400 from a Calvin (Okla.) bank, when he escaped.

After the conference Marland said in a statement that he had "come to the conclusion that it would be destructive to prison discipline if the man is not extradited."

COLLECTIONS AND CREDIT SALES BETTER DESPITE DROUTH

Retail Credit Association Attributes This to Increased Employment and Soldiers' Bonus.

Despite drouth conditions, collections and credit sales in most of 53 cities reporting to the National Retail Credit Association showed substantial increases for July above July, 1935, the association announced here yesterday, attributing gains to improvement in employment conditions as well as the soldiers' bonus money.

An average increase in collections of 7.5 per cent and an increase in credit sales of 10.7 was reported.

Pampa, Tex., reported the greatest increase in collections compared with those of July last year—47.5 per cent, while a 20 per cent drop in Muncie, Ind., was the greatest decrease. Joplin, Mo., had a 20 per cent increase in collections with increased employment. Collections and credit sales continued to increase in St. Louis.

RUBBER 'MONEY' MAKER HELD

Accused of Counterfeiting in Turning Out Joke Bills.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The 5000 pieces of "baloney money," bills printed on rubber, that Benjamin Wasserman, 27 years old, had at his home were meant to be amusing, but police and Secret Service agents arrested him on a counterfeiting charge today.

The agents confiscated the $2,000,000 in rubber currency, a press and 25 plates they said they found in Wasserman's apartment on the lower East Side. The bills, in all denominations up to $1000, are sold in novelty stores. On the back of one bill where "United States of America" is usually found the rubber bills read, "Unique States of America."

Penn College President Resigns.

OSKALOOSA, Ia., Aug. 15.—Dr. H. Randolph Pyle, president of Penn College, announced today the college Board of Directors had accepted his resignation Aug. 8. Dr. Pyle said he resigned to head the mathematics department at Earlham College, Richmond, Ind.

$1,070,000 FOR DROUTH RELIEF GRANTS AND LOANS IN STATE

Rural Rehabilitation Division of Resettlement Administration Promises It in a Few Days.

The Rural Rehabilitation Division of the Resettlement Administration has promised it will have $1,070,000 available in a few days for subsistence grants and feed and seed loans to the farmers, estimated to number 60,000, who will need aid in the Missouri drouth area, Robert K. Ryland, State director for the National Emergency Council, said last night on his return from Washington.

The money will be released through the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office of the Farm Credit Administration, which 10 days ago began disbursing $450,000 in grants and loans. With the new allotment, Ryland said, the office will be able to give aid until Oct. 1. Grants have averaged $20 a month, and loans $250. The agency is now making seed loans for winter wheat, to be grown without limitation, the loans to be secured by first mortgages on the crops. Funds will be available Tuesday for loans for the purchase or production of feed for livestock, with first mortgages on the livestock as security.

In addition, Ryland received assurance at the Works Progress Administration office that all projects for relief of drouth sufferers will be rushed. The main work in Missouri, a statewide development of water resources, including dam and reservoir construction and well and pond excavation, for which about $5,000,000 has been alloted, will begin in about 10 days, he said. Soil conservation projects also will be rushed. It is estimated that 57,000 drouth-stricken farmers will need work this winter.

WARRANTS FOR TWO MEN IDENTIFIED IN ROBBERIES

Raymond Jones and Bert Clark Accused of Three Robberies With Deadly Weapons.

Warrants were issued yesterday by the Circuit Attorney's office against Raymond Jones, 25 years old, and his cousin, Bert Clark, 21, charging both of them with three robberies with deadly weapons. Jones, an ex-convict, was also charged under the habitual criminal act.

The two have been identified by 21 persons as the men who participated in a series of holdups in South St. Louis in July and August, the police announced. Both were said to have been identified in seven holdups and Jones identified in an additional one. The total amount taken was about $300.

They were arrested early last Wednesday morning at 2749A Shenandoah avenue by Patrolman John Wilson of the Wyoming Street District, who had received information that two holdup men were living there. Jones was convicted of robbery in St. Louis in October, 1929, and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. Following his release he was arrested for questioning about a post office holdup, but was sent to th eCity Santarium. He escaped from there in May, 1933, on his second attempt, and went to Kansas City, where he was later caught in a holdup and again got a five-year sentence. He was released from prison last May.

NEW EAST ST. LOUIS JOURNAL BUILDING FORMALLY OPENED

Gov. Horner at Ceremonies for Modernistic Structure Built at Cost of $100,000.

The East St. Louis Journal formally opened its new building at 425 Missouri avenue last night, with ceremonies attended by Gov. Henry Horner and John J. Hallihan, director of the Illinois State Department of Registration and Education. The building was opened for inspection by the public from 7 to 10 p. m.

The newspaper's new headquarters is a two-story structure of stone and brick, in modernistic design. The business offices and pressrooms are on the first floor, with the editorial rooms on the second. It was built at a cost of $100,000. The newspaper, which is controlled by the East Shore Newspapers, Inc., published a special 108-page edition for today in connection with the opening of the building.

LAUNDRY SUPPLY CO. MOVES TO 117 S. BROADWAY

The David Jones Laundry Supply Co. has removed to the five-story building at 117 South Broadway, comprising approximately 25,000 square feet. The concern formerly occupied quarters at 118 South Commercial street, in the area embraced in the Jefferson Memorial project.

COSMETICS CONCERN LEASES 2D FLOOR, 1724 WASHINGTON

The Spimonti, Inc., a newly formed corporation, has leased the second floor of the building at 1724 Washington avenue, owned by the George Burdeau Realty Co., represented by the Andrean Leasing Co., the lessee being represented by the Edward Glik Co. The Spimonti concern, recently formed, manufactures cosmetics.

JEWELERS LEASE QUARTERS ON CHEROKEE FOR STORE

Schneider's Credit Jewelers, Inc., operating stores in Wellston and Maplewood, in St. Louis County, has leased the southwest corner of Cherokee and Iowa streets as quarters for a third store. Possession will be taken when alterations are completed. The lessors were J. H. and Arthur C. Hoskins, represented by M. H. Rodemyer & C. The lessee was represented by the Edward Glik Co.

about 88 per cent of their 1926 level. But apartment rents are still at only approximately 58 per cent of that level.

Interest Rates Falling.

5. Interest rates for real estate mortgage loans, probably the most important single factor in the costs of home ownership and the outlook for profit on a given real estate investment, are falling in 40 per cent of the cities surveyed, rising in only 1 per cent of the cities.

6. Capital is seeking mortgage investment in 74 per cent of the cities, as against 64 per cent six months ago. Loans are seeking capital in only 15 per cent of the cities. In every city of over 500,000 population, and in more than 96 per cent of all cities of over 200,000 population, capital is seeking real estate loans. Considerable regional variation as to mortgage supply is still shown.

7. New home building is being readily absorbed. A number of cities report that already new building cannot keep ahead of demand.

8. Home sites are selling. Activity in the subdivision market is greater than a year ago in 65 per cent of the cities. Only 1 per cent show a less active market.

9. Office space continues to lag behind business space both in demand and in rental recovery. For both business and office space, outlying sections of cities show far less space absorption than does town property. Central office properties show rents higher than last year in only 28 per cent of the 252 cities, but the depression low was passed for this type of structure a year ago, and the present survey found rates lower in only 1 per cent of the cities.

Rents for Outlying Properties.

Rents for outlying business properties are shown by the present survey as higher than a year ago in 40 per cent of cities reporting, as against 27 per cent so reporting six months ago. Rents for outlying office structures are higher in 18 per cent of the cities as against 13 per cent so reporting six months ago. In only 2 per cent of cities are outlying business property rents going lower, in only one-half of 1 per cent are outlying office property rents reported going lower.

Special Inquiries:

(1) Interest rates for new homes.

(2) Spread of advance in residential rents.

The survey included two special inquiries, on: (1) actual interest rates at which first mortgage loans on new moderate priced homes are now being made; (2) change in residential rents (quantitative national findings on which were made for the first time in the Association's survey of six months ago). Detailed findings of these special inquiries will be released Sunday, August 23.

Rising Realty Activity.

Rising real estate activity is shown by 100 per cent of the cities of over 500,000 population represented in the survey. Every city of over 100,000 population reporting shows advance in activity with the exception of one city which reports a condition level with that of last year.

In the East South Central and the Mountain sections 100 per cent of the cities report a more active market than last year at this time, and in the East North Central, South Atlantic, and West South Central sections 95 per cent of the cities report a more active market.

As to higher selling prices, the Pacific section has the best report, with 92 per cent of its cities showing price advance over last year. In the Mountain section and the West South Central section 90 per cent of the cities register price advance. In the East South Central section and the East North Central section 89 per cent of cities show upping of price level.

The one Canadian city reporting, Winnipeg, Manitoba, gives an interesting comparison with survey totals for the States. Details (permission to quote which has been given) include the following: Market more active than last year. Prices, on last year's level. Under supply of single-family dwellings. Supply of apartments and of business property, normal. Rents higher than last year for single-family dwellings by about 10 per cent. Rates for heated apartments advanced about 10 per cent. Interest rates falling. Commonest rate for first mortgage loans on new moderately priced homes, 6 per cent.

Honolulu, where the association's member board gives permission to quote survey details, shows both market activity and price level higher than last year. A normal supply of dwellings, apartments and business property is reported. Interest rates are steady with 6 per cent as the commonest rate for first mortgages on new moderate priced homes.

Building Activity in West Averaging $20,000,000 a Month.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—Building activity has expanded about 300 per cent through the Far West during the last two years.

Averaging more than $20,000,000 a month for the last three months, building permits issued in the seven Far Western States ran about four times the values recorded for the same months of 1934.

A compilation made from permit records in the principal city and county offices of the seven states by Sam Eubank, editor of the Daily Pacific Builder, gives the July total as $20,786,968.

This compared with the July 1935 total of $11,443,410, and the July 1934 total of $5,130,474.

During the three months ended July 31 this year, permits totaled $61,371,234. The total for the like months of 1934 was $16,109,835.

The Coast trend prior to 1934 was downward, irregular but persistent, for six or seven years.

This year the value of buildings projects, notably home construction, has been running fairly close to double the 1935 showing.

LEASES FOR FACTORY AND OFFICE SPACE REPORTED

The Mullin-Walters Realty Co., Inc., reports the following leases: The Union Printers & Press Co. has leased the second floor of the two-story building at 1110 Locust street, which is being altered to conform with requirements. THE ORIGINAL

ANNUAL PUBLIC Foreclosure SALE

SOLD FOR BALANCE DUE

The yearly event that Used Car buyers wait for. A Welfare Foreclosure sale. Others feature one or two cars at a "leader price" but Welfare cars are all priced at a figure that others cannot touch. Come in, look around and see for yourself. You'll say "How Do They Do It." But the proof is right here.

You'll find a foreclosure notice on every car with prices marked in plain figures. They are being sold for the balance due—and you know that means a savings to you.

Coupes For Sale

We're Selling This 1934 Lincoln Conv. Coupe

"SHORT"

We took our profit when the owner of this smart gun metal gray Lincoln conv. coupe traded it in for a new custom-built Packard. Now—this beautiful car is available at a mere fraction of its original cost.

Sparingly driven and carefully serviced by its original owner, it looks and drives like new. Its luxurious interior has spotless leather upholstery. Equipment includes Motorola radio, hot-water heater and folding trunk rack, wire wheels, side mounts 6 excellent Goodyear all-weather heavy duty tires. In every way a highly desirable car.

Landscaping Need Not Wait Until House Is Built

It is always easy to pick the newly built house for it usually stands in a barren waste with neither tree, unless the owner has been fortunate, nor bush nor blade of grass about it. Landscaping is really not the architect's job though in many instances he will make suggestions for planting on his plan. He will agree, however, with architects everywhere, that planting need not wait until the house has been completely built.

All planting should be done early in the spring or late in the fall, after the first killing frost. If the owner waits until the entire building activities have ceased he may lose a year's growth in his plants. Where the final grades are established, planting may go ahead without fear of harm and only the foundation planting need wait until all building has been done.

Every amateur gardner knows that top soil is most important for the future welfare of the garden. The prospective gardner will do well to hoard it. The top soil on the site of the house should be carefully removed and stacked in a convenient location. Where grades are to be changed materially it is recommended that the topsoil be removed and the filling in done with the soil excavated from the basement.

Trees, shrubs, perennials may be set out according to plan while the building is going on, if excavation and grading have been done, leaving only the lawn to attend as the final step.

If you have a good planting plan it is possible to progress a little each year. Only the necessary planting should be done the first year if you want to derive any pleasure at all from your garden. Each season may find you adding a little here and there, whether it be a rock garden, tulips, or a new forsythia. In this way even your initial cost will not be too high and you will have all the pleasure of seeing your garden and yard grow and take shape.

It is a good idea to consider installation of a sprinkler system. What with our recurring drouths we must have adequate water if our gardens are to be anything but parched, sorry looking deserts. With a properly planning, planting system copper pipe may be laid with automatic sprinkler heads properly spaced and a few special hose connections. The automatic sprinkler heads are set below the surface of the lawn and so do not interfere with the mowing. A sprinkler system may be arranged on a clock system which automatically turns on and off certain groups, doing away with all manual operation.

The development of the yards or, if they are large enough to be dignified by that term, the grounds about the house are almost as important as the development of the house itself. In most parts of the country a garden and lawn and shrubs are desirable features that every home should have. And for architectural effect the proper planting around the house is essential.

In small plots much can be done by careful planning to provide all the niceties of a good-sized estate. On a plot 50 by 100 feet there can be flowers and fruits and vegetables with space left over for a lawn and shrubs and a shade tree or two. True, none of the units will be large, but they should be large enough to occupy those interested in their care and provide some fresh vegetables and fruits and flowers that will gladden their hearts.

If the garage and service entrance can be kept near the front of the lot so that the whole rear yard and as much of the side yard as possible can be kept clear, the development of that area can be carried much farther. A porch or terrace facing the rear, opening out on a lawn with flower beds and shrubs surrounding it and a long, narrow vegetable garden on one side with berry bushes separating it from the living area, and a grape arbor and fruit trees at the rear, gives a fairly complete layout that will be ever interesting and ever changing to delight the eye of the beholder.

QUESTIONS BEFORE THE HOUSE

Q. We have a large yard in the rear and it is very sunny and we would like to have some shade trees to protect the new lawn and flowers. When is the best time to plant trees and what kind would be the most advisable for my purpose. We also would like to know if you have any plans for rock gardens? Also, we have our yard filled with clay and would like to know how we can treat it before sowing our grass seed.

MRS. W. L. D., St. Louis County.

A. The best time to set out shrubs and trees in the fall is after the first killing frost. You will probably want trees that grow rapidly. The best of these are Chinese elms which are also not attacked by borers of any kind. If you do the work yourself you must consider that growing trees require enough root and branch space. Plant your back yard on paper before setting out the plants actually. Any nurseryman from whom you purchase your trees and shrubs will be glad to help you with additional suggestions. For the best results in a lawn the clay should be covered with a layer of topsoil and manure before sowing grass seed. August is the best time to set out a new lawn. Rock gardens are more or less individual problems. A shady spot along the house or a slight rise in the ground where other flowers will not grow is usually chosen for the rock garden which is laid out in terraces with either sponge rock or other rocks that you may have gathered on trips to hold in the soil. All varieties of sedum thrive in rock gardens. Creeping veronica, creeping baby's breath, thyme and yellow yarrow as well as some varieties of Alpine flowers are recommended.

Q. In the kitchen in my home the grease always comes through the paper. Now I would like to have it repapered soon and I would like to know what to do first to prevent the grease from coming through the new paper. G. A. W.

A. Strip all old paper from the part of the wall where the grease shows and go over the plaster with vinegar. This will cut the grease and you should have no trouble with the new paper. As an extra precaution you might paint this place with a coat of shellac when the vinegar has dried out. Shellac seals the pores in the plaster and should eliminate your trouble.

Q. Our house is brick and clapboard siding, six years old, and in some places the mortar between the bricks is falling out. What can I do about this?

L. G. D., Richmond Heights.

A. The mortar was evidently made with too little cement and not enough sand. If it is soft all over, you might try with a knife, you may have trouble later. We would advise you to see a contractor and have the house tuckpointed

Q. What would you suggest as a way of fixing our kitchen floor? It is old and the wood splinters. I am afraid it is too rough to put linoleum over. CHAS. M.

A. It should be possible to have the floor scraped or sanded down to a smooth enough surface to put on linoleum. It may be necessary to do some patching and felt should be used, but it can be done. It should be less expensive than replacing the floor.

Q. The plaster on the walls of our house has been patched so much that even painting does not make it look nice. Someone told me I could use something they called plywood to cover it up. Can you tell me something about it?

H. B. T.

A. It is a material made of several layers of wood, usually three or five, glued together, with the grain of each layer running in opposite directions to those on each side. This makes a strong unit that does not warp and has considerable strength. It makes very good wall covering and is comparatively easy to apply.

Q. The drain from my ice box keeps getting clogged up so I am writing to ask you what to do.

WORRIED.

A. The drain pipe, in all probability is too small. Have it removed and replaced with a 2-inch pipe.

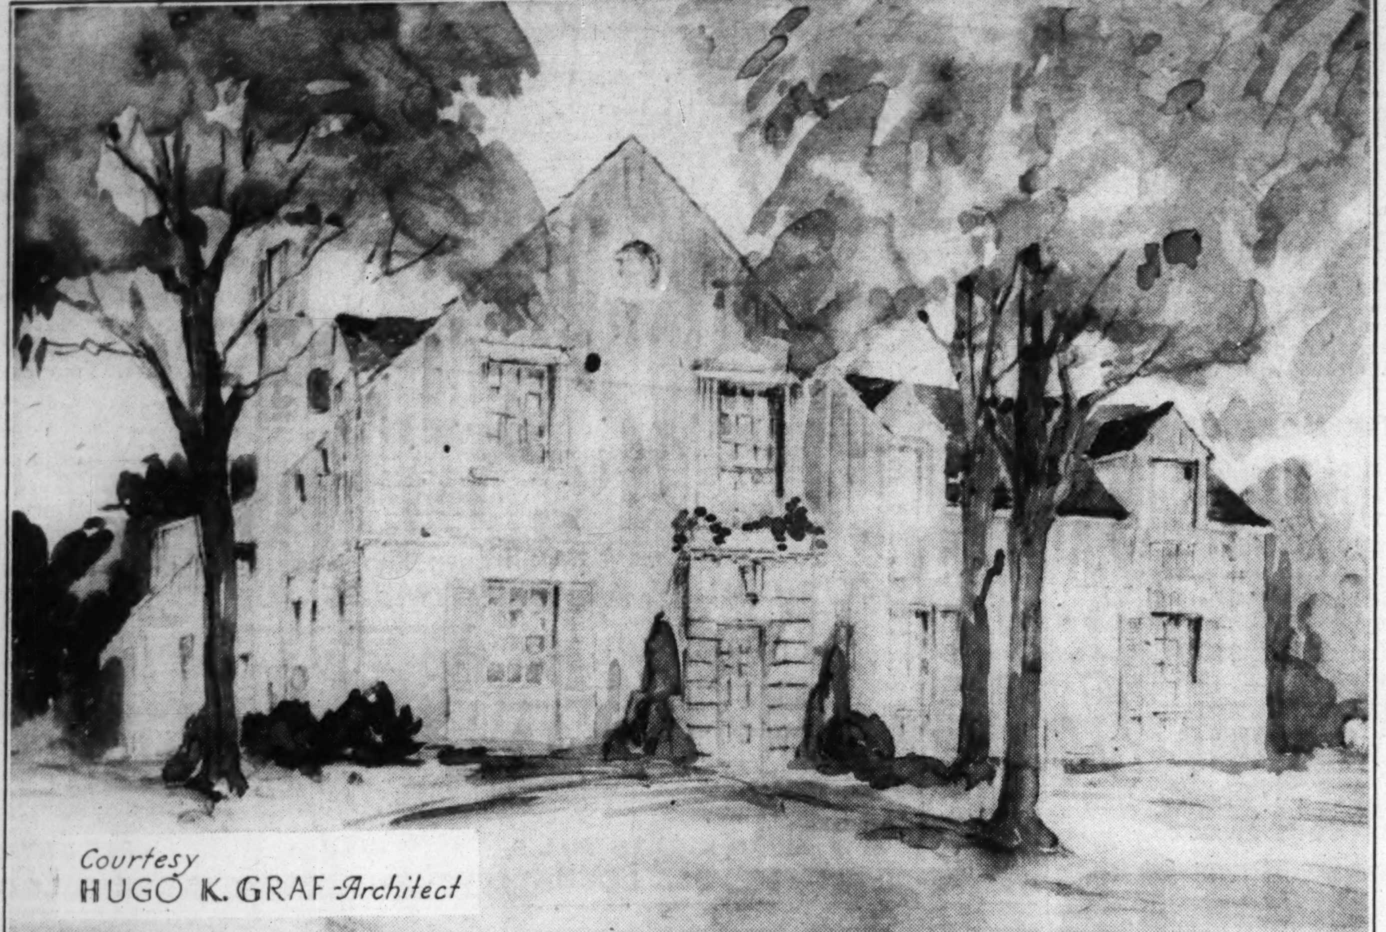
Q. I have a nice maple floor in my house, but it has curled up at the edges. My husband says it is from washing the floor. Is that so and what should I do to fix it?

MRS. J. G.

A. Undoubtedly if you wash the floor with water it will warp. The floor should be scraped or sanded smooth and either filled and waxed. or varnished, and you should clean it with an oiled mop.

Fine Example of American Farmhouse Type



Built of Brick, Painted White, and Weathered Cypress Siding, This House Is Good Example of "Extras" That Give It Individuality.

THE thrill that comes once in a lifetime" is an expression that may be borrowed for those who build their own homes with the aid of a competent architect. A house that is tailored to fit every need and perhaps some of the little idiosyncracies that most of us are heir to, leaves the owner with no regrets. He has a house that indulges his hobbies and provides a place for gracious and full living.

This is particularly true of the house designed for Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Noxon of 415 Yorkshire Drive in Webster Groves by Hugo K. Graf. It is a large house, larger perhaps than most of us need, but it illustrates so completely so many of the little "extras" that stamp a dwelling with individuality.

The architect, who takes good-natured exception to the layman's desire to know the style and periods of architecture for the purpose of labelling houses, finally conceded that this was an informal American house in white painted brick and bleached cypress, an American farmhouse type.

We have heard so much of American architecture, of the Colonial and Cape Cod but very little has been said of the farm house type There is a certain substantial dignity, a feeling of well being that the term flings up. It gives a feeling of good earth and rich soil and human comforts, for we were a nation of farmers before we became a national of manufacturers.

THIS house carries with it all the finest connotations of the term. The upper story is of wood laid in the old barn type, vertical with joints covered with batten. Bleaching oils have given the cypress an interesting color and texture, a weatherbeaten or sunburned blond appearance. The lower section has been painted white and the color is carried in the tall shutters which are of light green, and the roof which is covered with asbestos shingles in blending autumn colors. The shingles are coated with metal and oxidized. The picture that it presents is a pleasing one.

The house was placed after careful study, there are a number of fine old oak trees on the lot, to take advantage of the trees and also to harmonize with the houses on either side. It faces east and tops a rather sudden rise of ground The curving driveway to the garage was dictated by a number of trees since it was the express desire of the owner to save all trees possible.

Windows on the first floor are double hung with panels below, extending within 20 inches of the floor. They add to the substantial quality of the house by tying it in more closely with the shrubbery in the line of color. The doorway with its brick rustication gives the facade an air of dignity while the copper flower box above it, and the lantern strike a note of charming informality. The wood trim about the windows is fluted and the glass peephole in the front door and the screen door grill have been very especially designed.

The personality of the house has been stamped with the owner's hobby and job. He is a collector of old glass and this hobby has been unobtrusively incorporated into the decorative scheme of the house. The electrical and mechanical perfection of it point to his training as an engineer. The entrance hall is spacious and has a stairway with walnut handrail and balusters painted white. Opposite the door is a cabinet in which some of his prize pieces of early American glass are displayed. Provisions for glass cabinets have also been made in the dining room which is lighted by an old coal oil lamp which has been electrified.

The library which has been especially designed as the owner's workroom would delight the heart of any man. The walls are panelled and back of the panels on the north wall is a concealed desk, filing cabinet, drawing table and tools, in fact everything for a quiet evening of home work. The panels show no hinges or locks and all the equipment may be concealed at a moment's notice.

Those of us who have a mechanical turn of mind seem to be the only ones who realize that system in a household, a place for everything and everything in its place, are important factors in the comfort and simplification of everyday living. There is much of this in the house planned here. There is a communicating telephone system from the rathskeller to the second floor. The kitchen is electrically equipped with a built-in dishwasher and plenty of storage space for all manner of household appliances. There is a planning desk, a system of gongs and chimes from the dining room, rathskeller and front and rear entrance.

ANOTHER of the owner's hobbies has been used to good advantage by the architect and that is a collection of old English tiles depicting Shakespearean characters. These tiles have been set in a border about the living room fireplace. Additional ones needed were burned to match and were used as corner and base blocks.

A porch opens off the dining and living room. The two-car garage is connected by a passageway to the house and is accessible from the kitchen. A stairway leads from the garage to the maid's quarters above and also to the second floor. This is one of the conveniences that is so important to gracious and considerate living for it means that any late arrival by any member of the family will not interfere with the waking or sleeping of any of the other members Another point which stresses the "tailored house" idea is the 10-inch arch in the west wall of the garage through which the pet dog of the family may come and go as he chooses.

Upstairs are three bedrooms and two baths, a sun deck over the porch and a maid's wing consisting of bedroom and bath. There is ample closet and storage space on this floor and the two south and west bedrooms are very accessible to the bath. The master bedroom which is over the living room, has a number of features which make it rather unique. There is no dressing room. Instead, the two spacious closets on the north wall have been fitted with drawers which provide ample storage space. The narrowed entrance is used as a sewing room and has two closets in which the sewing machine and various appurtenances may be stored when not in use. The bath here has a shower with glass doors and colored fixtures.

The wood trim upstairs is painted and all rooms are papered in modern papers. The house is furnished almost entirely in fine early Victorian pieces.

THE basement has space for storage, a heater room and a rathskeller which is panelled in knotty pine and has a bar which may be concealed for the benefit of those who derive no particular enjoyment from liquid refreshments. The house is heated by a gas-fired, winter air-conditioned furnace.

There is a built-in garbage receptacle on the back porch and this porch is partially concealed by an especially designed wooden grill. The walk to the house is flagstone in colors that range from pinks to tans and is known as Crab Orchard flagstone. The house contains something like 55,800 cubic feet and the cost has been estimated roughly at 34 cents per cubic foot.

Gardens Demand Intensive Care in Hot Weather

Hot weather calls for special treatment in the garden. It is then that the skill of the gardener counts. So long as the rains are plentiful and nights cool, flowers and vegetables will go ahead with very little assistance, but in hot weather troubles multiply.

Growth slows up and insect attacks grow worse. Even if rains continue, hot weather is always dry, because the heat evaporates an enormous amount of water. Cultivation becomes vital, not only to cut down the weeds which are competing with the crops for subterranean water and food, but to create a dust mulch, which will prevent evaporation from the surface of the soil and conserve it for the plants.

It is now that the application of plant food in weekly doses becomes important for stimulating the growth of plants which otherwise would be inclined to sulk. For plants in the immature stage, this is especially true. Insect attacks should be dealt with upon their first appearance, since the warm weather not only increases the numbers of the insects but diminishes the resistance of the plants.

Where a garden can be irrigated the complaint is often heard that water does not seem to do much good, and the reason usually given is that the water is cold. The experience of garden clubs and market growers would seem to give some ground for this. But if the water is applied in a spray which is broken into fine particles, it is warmed by the air sufficiently to overcome the objection. It is probable that the reason for disappointment in irrigation, as a rule, is not cold water but insufficient water.

The extent of evaporation during hot weather calls for an extraordinary amount of water to balance the supply available for the plants. The amount possible to apply by the ordinary garden hose is insufficient and is made less effective when sprayed through the air. It is advisable, then, that even with cold water, if the amount that can be used is limited, it be allowed to run in shallow trenches or applied directly to the soil, rather than sprayed.

Instead of trying to water the whole garden on the same day or evening, concentrate on one portion and give it a thorough soaking, at least a foot down. Next day try another part. Such soaking should last a week and the water will not be cold very long.

FOR BETTER LIVING

Trading your frame or stucco house for one of brick is much simpler than it sounds. It is now possible to apply a veneer which not only looks and feels like brick but is brick. This may be applied directly over the old siding. Anchor panels with steel staples embedded are nailed to the house and the veneer bricks are placed between these staples and mortared by hand. The brick veneer is regulation size but is three-fourths of an inch thick.

This is a good time of year to consider the state of heat leakage for next winter. Heat is lost not only for lack of weatherstrips around windows and door frames but drafts may sweep under doors in the house and necessitate additional heating for comfort. Since the coolest part of the room in the winter is always nearest the floor it is a good idea to consider weather stripping doors throughout the house. There are now in the market all manner of gadgets that will keep drafts from sweeping under your doors.

While we happen to be considering weather stripping we may as well pause to consider the heating system. August is the month in which the furnace or the boiler should be given the once over. Winter air conditioning equipment which is comprised of a filter, a fan and a means of humidifying the air, is coming to be considered as part of the standard equipment. Install it now for winter comfort.

Automatic stokers too are coming to the fore. It is now possible to transfer fuel to the furnace or boiler without manual operation. Stokers fit all types of furnaces and boilers. The preparation of anthracite and bituminous coals have been improved to provide the most efficient combustion of these fuels in automatic coal burners.

A slanting board adjusted at the correct angle and attached to the baseboard of a clothes closet affords a convenient resting place for shoes. A narrow wooden cleat is nailed on the board a few inches from the top and forms a heel rest preventing the shoes from slipping to the floor.

The use of this shoe rack keeps the shoes, with their inserted trees, in good order and off the closet floor always within sight and easy reach. The closet presents a far neater appearance with this arrangement which also saves valuable shelf space.

An accumulation of dust in the corners of the closet is prevented by the slanting sides of the rack as the broom more readily reaches the entire floor surface.

A receptacle built on the inside of the kitchen door with an opening sufficiently large to receive groceries and other packages delivered during the course of the day will be a convenience and time saver.

The housewife may leave home on various errands confident that her purchases will be delivered and safe awaiting her return and the delivery boy is spared a second trip.

BOY SCOUTS' SUMMER CAMPS CLOSE TODAY

Most Extensive Program in History of Council; Three Types Operated.

Summer camping activities for St. Louis Boy Scouts concluded today when the last session of two weeks at Camp Irondale closed. The camping program for Scouts this year was the most extensive in the history of the St. Louis Council, it was said at scout headquarters yesterday.

This year three scout camps were operated by the St. Louis Council: Camp Irondale, Camp Powder Mill and Lion's Den. Irondale had four sessions of two weeks each. For Scouts who could not afford to attend a camp for two weeks, the Council operated Lion's Den located near Seckman, Mo., where more than 600 Scouts attended this year.

Camp Powder Mill, which also closed its final session today, was classed as a senior scout camp, where only Scouts advanced in scouting experience might attend. This camp is located on the Current River between Ellington and Emminence, Mo.

Aside from the three camps this year, two canoe expeditions to the northwoods along the Canadian border were offered St. Louis Scouts. These canoe trips lasted two weeks each, and were under the direction of Hal Rush.

Another important outing activity of St. Louis Scouts this season was the annual regatta of Region Eight, which comprises the states of Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado and Wyoming. At this regatta, held near Montrose, Iowa, St. Louis Sea Scouts placed high in the boat races, while the S. S. Polaris of St. Louis was the regional flagship.

John M. Cook, port captain of the Sea Scout base at Lake Creve Coeur, recently had an article in Boy's Life, the Boy Scout magazine, in which a sailing craft designed by him was described. As a result of the favorable response to his article, Scout Headquarters has received requests for plans for this St. Louis designed craft, known as the "moth," from Sea Scout organizations in the United States and Canada.

The 10 St. Louis Scouts recently chosen on a basis of competitive essays on leadership to attend the American Youth Foundation's camp at Shelby, Mich., for two weeks include: Harrison Johnson, Bob Gordon, Bill Orr, Bill Parks, John Thro, Robert Fehrman, Bill Unwin, Dan Greene, Marshall Dugger and Bill Lewis.

At a recent committee meeting on the St. Louis Boy Scout Circus the date for the circus was set for some time in the month of December. It was also announced that the circus this year will include a series of dramatizations of historic events on the founding and development of St. Louis from the days of the French trading post to Kit Carson.

GIRL SCOUTS.

The five St. Louis Girl Scout day camps will close this week with the presentation of exhibits and plays for the districts in which each day camp is located.

South district day camp, under the direction of Mrs. William T. Nicoll, has announced a program for the closing day of the camp on Tuesday, which will include exhibits of crafts and nature work, marionette show, songs by a group of Girl Scouts and a play.

The Forest Park district camp will close Wednesday when plays will be presented for guests, while the North District day camp will close Thursday when a play, for which Girl Scouts made paper masks, will be produced.

The County District day camp will produce "Peter Pan and the Drums" on Thursday, the closing day of the camp. The County District day camp in Kirkwood will close Aug. 24 with the presentation of Indian legends, when craft projects of the camp will also be on exhibit.

CIRCUS IS COMING TO TOWN FRIDAY

Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Show to Be Here Three Days.

The Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus, boasting its greatest prosperity since 1929, will be in town next Friday, Saturday and Sunday with the usual assortment of peculiar animals, wild west riders, freaks and nonchalant aerialists.

For the second successive year the circus will be at Kingshighway and Southwest avenue, instead of Grand boulevard and Laclede avenue. Four trains of 100 cars, bearing 1600 persons, 800 performers, seven herds of elephants and 1009 menagerie animals will arrive at dawn Friday on the Wabash line from Decatur, Ill.

The circus agents are particularly proud of three African pygmy elephants from the Belgian Congo and five midget wild jackasses from India, known as pongurs. One is believed to be 45 years old and is supposed to have a particular liking for shelled peanuts, but they must be shelled.

The pygmy elephants were cared for at first by six African boys who were brought here for that purpose. But because the boys beat the animals, they were sent home. Since then the elephants have become pets of the show.

The gib top accommodates 16,000 persons and has been nearly full many times this season, in spite of extreme heat at many places.

Two performances will be given each day, one at 2 p. m., the second at 8 p. m. Among the performers will be the Naitto troupe, with Nio Naitto, a Eurasian, said to be the only girl ever to do a somersault on a wire. An older sister formerly did that act but was killed in a fall.

The Royal Bokaras will do "acrobatic rallies on racing camels"; the Imperial Viennese, described as "beautiful bareback riding beauties," will give massed equestrian demonstrations. The Otaris are to fly "en masse from an aerial cross" and Mlle. Gillette will dive from the dome of the big top. Just when she appears to be about to strike the ground, her legs are caught by wires invisible to the audience. In New York one wire broke and gave her a bad jerk, but she was unhurt.

Dorothy Herbert, star reinless jumping horse rider and fire hurdler, will also be in the show. The Flying Concellos, best known of the aerialists, will be back with Antoinette Concello, who does a two and one-half somersault. The ever-present human projectiles, Hugo and Mario, will be shot the length of the big top from a cannon.

The self-styled "geatest show on earth" will require 31 tents. Concerts will be given a half hour before each performance by a band. Sideshows will be open daily from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m.

CARDS OF THANKS

WE wish to express our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the many acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings received from our friends and relatives in our recent sad bereavement in losing my dear wife and our beloved mother, Barbara Gratis. We would especially like to thank Revs. Bernard S. A. Stalte, Albert Weinig, and Paul Kurtz, for their kind and consoling words. We would also like to thank the pall bearers and J. L. Ziegenhein & Sons for their kind and efficient service.
FRANK GRATIS and FAMILY.

IN MEMORIAM

ARTHUR (FREVERT), MINNIE K.—In loving memory of our dear mother who passed away Aug. 17, 1935.
In our home she is fondly remembered,
Loving memories cling to her name,
Those who loved in life so dearly,
Still love her in death just the same.
Sadly missed by,
SON, DAUGHTER-IN-LAW and SISTERS.

DETTERMANN, WILLIAM A.—In loving memory of our dear husband, father. Greatly missed.
YOUR LOVING FAMILY.

HANNON, MATTHEW J.—In loving memory, who departed this life Aug. 16, 1929. There is a link that cannot sever; love and remembrance last fovever. Sadly missed by WIFE AND CHILDREN.

KOST, NORMAN—In loving memory of my dear son and brother, who died six years ago, Aug. 15, 1930.
There's a sad but sweet remembrance
There's a memory fond and true,
There's a home that is lonesome,
Norman; our hearts ache for you.
Sadly missed by broken-hearted
MOTHER, BROTHERS and all who loved him.

KRUSE, ELIZABETH D.—In loving memory of my dear wife who passed away Aug. 16, 1935.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, SISTERS AND FRIENDS.

NUGENT, WALTER J.—Memory of our dear son who passed away Aug. 18, 1934. Sadly missed by parents and sisters.

SCHEID, JOSEPH C.—In loving memory of my husband and our dear father who died Aug. 16, 1934.
It was sad, indeed, the way you died
One year ago today—
Without a chance to say goodbye.
Your spirit flew before we knew
That you from us had gone,
If you had raised a dying hand
And bid us all farewell
The blow would not have been so hard
To those who loved you so well.
Sadly missed by,
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

SUMMERS, R. LEE—In loving memory of our darling son and brother, who died Aug. 13, 1935.
MOTHER AND SISTERS.

SYMONDS, HERBERT W.—In loving remembrance of my dear husband, died Aug. 18, 1935. His memory is as dear today as the hour he passed away. Missed by all who loved him.

SALESMEN WANTED

MEN

If you really knew what this business has meant to other men, you would not pass up this ad as "just another one of those propositions." If you do, you are, in all probability, missing what, to a great many men, has been the opportunity of a lifetime. No matter what your present income is, no matter what your position in life, you ought to be sincere in your desire to improve it, to increase your income to properly provide for your family and give them the better things in life and to get into a permanent business of your own.

We have such an opportunity for you right now. Men in this business, from all walks of life, are big earners right here in St. Louis and nearby towns. When they learn this profitable business thoroughly, their incomes range around $2000, $4000, $6000, $7500 and more per year, yet they had no previous experience in this kind of work.

Our product is rapidly approaching in this country, the complete dominance of the market it has already secured in other countries, with five European and American factories continuously busy supplying our product. 1936 is our seventh consecutive record sales year.

Beginners may have to get along temporarily on $125 to $200 per month. However, you are placed on the same basis of compensation as the others, and make no investment or deposit of any kind. If you are selected for this opportunity, you will be given complete training at our factory branch at no expense to you. We will teach you this business, help you to real and permanent success, and will not ask you to make any investment.

This opportunity is open to you NOW because of the ever increasing demand for our product. If you are between the ages of 25 and 50, are willing to work and study conscientiously, to secure the success and large earnings possible in this business, this opportunity concerns you.

We are sincere in offering it to you, and you will find that 20 minutes spent in an interview with us will be the most valuable 20 minutes you ever invested. For a personal interview, apply 510-514 Paul Brown Bldg., 9th and Olive Sts., Monday, 9:15 a. m. to 1:15 p. m. only.

Visitors always contribute in some way to this carnival which provides the means for supplying nursing the year round for the community. Summer visitors as far away as Dennis and Hyannisport attended and joined the dancing after sundown.

Another festival of the week was the third annual Berkshire symphonic festival held at the estate of Mrs. Margaret Emerson between Stockbridge and Lenox, Mass. Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, who returned from Europe for the occasion, will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mrs. George C. Long of Hartford, a sister of Mrs. Eugene D. Nims, and her daughters, Miss Katherine and Miss Elizabeth Long of Hartford, Conn., who have been summer guests at the Nims' estate, the Larches, left Saturday to attend the festival. They are guests of Mrs. Bruce Crane of Dalton, Mass., a daughter of Mrs. Long, who lives on the Crane estate in the Berkshires near the estate of Mrs. Emerson. Preceding the festival Olin Downes lectured at the Berkshire Playhouse on the symphonies with Mrs. Crane at the piano. Mrs. Crane gave a large formal party before the festival for the many notables assembled for the occasion.

All the St. Louisans in Woods Hole gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Plant last Saturday to welcome Maj. Lloyd Stark, Democratic nominee for Governor of Missouri. Mrs. Leicester Faust assisted Mr. and Mrs. Plant in receiving the guests. Present from St. Louis were: Mr. and Mrs. Nims, Mrs. Thomas G. Ratcliffe, Mr. and Mrs Frederick Ewing, Mrs. Boyle B. Rodes, Mr. and Mrs Eugene Pettus, Mr. and Mrs. Peyton T. Carr and Mr. and Mrs. Gilson Gray.

The Woods Hole Yacht Club gave its annual dance at the Golf Club Saturday night. Commodore and Mrs. Murray Crane received the guests in the ball room.

Dr. John R. Caulk started on his 48-foot schooner "Lizzie," Wednesday to attend the New York Yacht Club races. Later he will go up the Maine coast on his boat for a more extended cruise.

Dr. and Mrs. Vincent Cowdry, their son, Vincent Jr., and their daughters, Alice and Margaret, will leave Woods Hole Aug. 20, for St. Louis following a summer visit at their cottage on Mildord street and Eel Pond.

Miss Dorothy Jean Coleman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Coleman of St. Louis, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Langley C. Keyes of Sippewissett in North Falmouth, where the members of the Keyes family assemble in the summer in several neighboring houses belonging to the family.

Truro, Mass.

INTERESTING summer homes at Truro were opened to visitors Thursday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock. The Edward A. Wilson house, of nautical design, attracted much attention as did the home of Phyllis Duganne, the author. The

Scavenger Hunt For Resorters in North Michigan

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

POINTE-AUX-BARQUES, Mich., Aug. 15.

THE Royal and Ancient Order of Scavengers, on vacation here, "in order to admit to our ranks some worthy new members," inspired 60 resorters to contest for a cash award and a certificate of membership a week ago last night at a hunt which lasted several hours.

The winners were St. Louisans, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Franciscus, with a total of 38 out of the 40 articles listed on pink handbills distributed to the hunters at the start. Their collection was minus only a white horse and a three-minute egg autographed by the President of Port Austin, Mich., and included a horned and unruly billy goat. Edward Gillette Hotchkiss Jr. of St. Louis and his partner were second with everything but the live stock. The booby prize, two loilypops and a sailor hat, went to Mrs. Stewart Carew of Cincinnati, O., the former Miss Marian Thompson of St. Louis, whose husband started the proceedings.

Further rules as set forth on the handbills, were as follows:

"The purpose of this gathering is to reimburse our fast dwindling treasury with such non-sensickle things as are enumerated below. The hunt is to be carried on under Marquis of Queensberry rules—no biting, scratching, hair-pulling or hitting in the clinches. No carful of hungry scavengers will be permitted to exceed 25 miles per hour on pain of punishment by disqualification and no dinner."

Under the caption, "Let's Go," the articles to be found included the left hind leg of a rabbit, one of Lake Huron's freshly caught fish, a hand bill advertising the Bad Axe Fair, a white hair from the tail of

Mary Albach Is Engaged to Connecticut Man

To Become Bride of Griswold C. Raetze—Announcement by Grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Cabanne at Party at Santa Monica, Cal.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN PIERRE CABANNE, formerly of St. Louis, gave a cocktail party late yesterday afternoon at their home in Santa Monica, Cal., at which announcement was made of the engagement of their granddaughter, Miss Mary Elisabeth Albach, and Griswold Coles Raetze of Stamford, Conn. The news was contained in a telegram written in verse and sent to the guests by Miss Albach's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ingram Albach, 531 Donne avenue, University City.

The party was given to celebrate the birthday anniversary of Mr. Raetze's brother, Robert Coles Raetze. Guests, who included several of the prospective bride's relatives now living or visiting in California, were Capt. and Mrs. William F. Saportas, Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Alex V. Levy (May Cabanne); her mother, Mrs. Gratiot Cabanne, and Mr. and Mrs. Christy Cabanne, Beverly Hills; Mrs. Robert Kayser, Washington; Mrs. William B. Leedy, Birmingham, Ala., and Mrs. Emilie Cabanne Jenkins, all former St. Louisans; Miss June Lindstom and Melvin W. Sheppard Jr., New York; Miss Mildred Morriss and James Moreland, Pasadena, and Miss Sally Swigart and John Swigart, Los Angeles.

Miss Albach, who has been visiting her grandparents since April, attended Mary Institute and the St. Louis School of Fine Arts at Washington University.

Mr. Raetze is the nephew of Mrs. Samuel O. Edmonds of Stamford, with whom he and his brother made their home after the death of their parents. He is also the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Darnall of Glendale, O. He received his A. B. degree at Princeton, and his M. A. in Fine Arts at Yale a year ago last June. For the last year he has been associated with Richard J. Neutra, architect, in Los Angeles.

News of St. Louisans At Fish Creek, Wis.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

Fish Creek, Wis., Aug. 15.

THE annual tennis tournament is again under way on the courts along Cottage Row, and, as has been customary in other years, St. Louis participants predominate. The tournament is not likely to be completed for another two weeks.

Archibald G. Douglas Jr. gave a buffet supper at his parent's summer home Friday evening for a party of St. Louis friends in honor of his guests, Thomas McGurl and Millard Tyson, who are leaving for their homes in the East today. Miss Joan Filley returned to her home in Greenwich, Conn., last week-end after spending a week at the Douglas cottage.

Mrs. John Tritle of Pittsburgh, formerly of St. Louis, entertained about 30 guests, most of whom were St. Louisans, at luncheon and bridge Thursday. The party was given at the Thorp Hotel in Fish Creek, where Mrs. Tritle is a guest.

Gilder Davis Jackson Jr., son of Lieutenant-Colonel and Mrs. Gilder Davis Jackson, and Larry Post, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Post, were among the younger set of Cottage Row who attended the circus at Sturgeon Bay Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McCarty of St. Louis are expeced to arrive this week-end to visit Mrs. Fanny Woodward Mably at her summer home here. Mrs. Mably's daughter, Mrs. Leonard Hall, has returned to St. Louis after an extended vacation in Fish Creek. Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schram with their children of Burlington, Ia., also are guests at the Mably cottage. Mr. and Mrs. Clark's daughter, Judith, is at Camp Meenahga for the season.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Graham Whyte entertained at bridge Tuesday evening. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schultz of St. Louis, and Mr. and Mrs. William Rodiek who are vacationing at the Thorp Hotel, in addition to a number of Chicago friends. Mr. and Mrs. William McHugh of Indianapolis, Ind., are visiting Dr. and Mrs. Whyte.

Festus Wade of St. Louis arrived Thursday for his son John's birthday. He was en route to St. Paul, where he will join Mrs. Wade and

INFORMAL GLIMPSES OF ST. LOUISANS AT VARIOUS RESORTS

WASHINGTON SCENE

By the POE SISTERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.

RESIDENTS of Washington who have attended the Texas Centennial report back that the most interesting character at that historic observance is a woman, Mrs. Pearl Tyler Ellis, daughter and only surviving child of John Tyler, tenth President of the United States. Mrs. Ellis, as an active member of the Daughters of the Confederacy, is keeping open house for visitors from many states in her home, Madison. Many writers and historians have gone to her recently for information regarding her father, who was President 95 years ago.

Mrs. Ellis is planning a visit to Washington at the time of the inauguration and, if she follows her usual course, she will come by airplane. Her mother was Julia Gardiner, of Gardiners Island, N. Y., whose charm was responsible for the first marriage of the President during his term in the White House. A life-size portrait of her in a heavy gold frame adorns the sitting room of Mrs. Ellis' home. One of 14 children, Mrs. Ellis, save for her own children, is the last survivor of John Tyler's descendants.

Naturally she is looking forward to her Washington visit with keen interest. No doubt she will be received with special attention at the White House, where the latch string is always out for the descendants of other Presidents. In appearance and graciousness, Mrs. Ellis measures up to all one might expect of an American princess.

In the whirl of political speculation in Washington just now as to possible changes in White House administration, is the usual one as to who will be the next White House social secretary.

It all hinges on the little word "if." If Landon is elected then, no doubt, Mrs. Landon will avail herself of the privilege of obtaining a social secretary from the Government to handle the business of the President's wife. Social secretaries to the White House usually are placed on the official pay rolls of the Department of State and then assigned to duty at the Executive Mansion.

Mrs. Mildred Creighton, the present secretary to Mrs. Landon, might come with her from Kansas should the Landon fortunes rise to victory in November. That would be following the precedent set by Mrs. Roosevelt who brought her secretary, Mrs. Malvina Scheider, with her from New York State, although she selected Mrs. James Helm to be in charge of the social section of her White House office. Mrs. Hoover had a bevy of girls and young women in her secretariat, most of them from California, although some of them were from the District.

The first Mrs. Woodrow Wilson chose for her social secretary the pioneer in White House social secretaries, Mrs. Norman James, then Miss Belle Hagner, member of an old and distinguished Washington family. Mrs. James established the post under a Republican First Lady, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt. Mrs. Harding and Mrs. Coolidge also took their social secretaries from the ranks of Washington society. Mrs. Harding choosing Miss Laura Harlan, daughter of the late Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court and Mrs. Harlan, now an active realtor of the city, and Mrs. Coolidge retained Miss Mary Randolph, who had been her secretary while wife of the Vice-President. Miss Harlan remained on for a part of the Coolidge administration and Miss Randolph also served as social secretary at the White House for part of the Hoover administration after the Coolidges retired from public life.

Washington visitors to Chicago return with glowing accounts of the Dewey collection which has been arranged in the headquarters of the Chicago Historical Society through the loan of various mementoes of the Admiral by his own son, George Goodwin Dewey, of that city.

There may be seen the jewel-encrusted sword awarded Admiral Dewey by Congress for his victory at Manila Bay, the great silver loving cup made of dimes, given by American school children in tribute to his valor; Farragut's flag and other historic trophies of this national hero. The final disposition of the Dewey collection has not been announced as yet, but Mr. Dewey is giving the public an opportunity to view the collection.

It is understood that all Admiral Dewey's letters, papers and manuscripts, including the famous Manila Bay diary, in which he describes in a vivid but simple manner the great battle from his own point of view, have been placed by Mr. Dewey in the hands of the Library of Congress for cataloguing and reviewing as to their historical value before he decides how they are to be preserved. The Admiral Dewey letters and papers, or course, are rich treasure for naval historians.

The women members of Congress are in the political arena this summer. Mrs. Hattie Caraway, United States Senator from Arkansas, soon is to take the stump for President Roosevelt on a motor tour to the West, it has been announced. Senator Caraway, as the only woman member of the Senate, always excites interest in political gatherings and she has a fund of good stories with which to entertain her audience.

Representative Caroline O'Day, of New York, is putting in a hard summer speaking for the national Democratic ticket and her own candidacy as well. In her first election, Mrs. O'Day had the advantage of being openly sponsored by Mrs. Roosevelt who made several speeches in her behalf. This year the First Lady is occupying the role of a spectator, politically speaking, and will not participate personally, it is said, in any political activities. In California, Representative Florence Pragg Kahn is in the heat of political battle with Townsendites springing up full-armed on one side and an active New Deal campaign going on for her Congressional seat on the other. But Representative Kahn is a valiant warrior and all social Washington, regardless of party, is hoping that she will win in November. Representative Kahn's witty remarks are frequently quoted. It was she who is said to have observed that if heavy Government expenditure continued the last alphabetical New Deal agency might be the "IOU."

While not a candidate, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, wife of Representative Bacon, of New York, from dawn to midnight and beyond is busy with political tasks as vice chairman of the Republican committee of New York. Mrs. Bacon is a member of the motor caravan of Republican women of the State which will go from door to door during the campaign to acquaint voters personally with their views on the candidates. The Bacons live in the old John Marshall house on F street in Washington, more recently occupied by Chief Justice Fuller and his family, and the famous old gardens are the scene of much entertainment before Congress adjourns each year.

Notes on Washington's Summer Activities

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.

A ROUND of entertaining is ahead for Vice-Admiral Lengo Yoshida, commanding officer of the Japanese training squadron, and the officers and midshipmen aboard the Japanese cruisers, Iwate and Yakumo, expected to arrive in Baltimore next Wednesday. The squadron is coming from Havana after a cruise across the Pacific with stops on the west coast and at Balboa and Colon, Panama Canal Zone.

Admiral Yoshida, Capt. Toshihisa Nakamura, skipper of the Yakumo, and Capt. Kakuda, commander of the Iwate, will come to Washington the day after their arrival in Baltimore. They will call on Secretary of State Cordell Hull; Secretary of the Navy Claude Swanson and the District of Columbia Commissioners.

Following return visits at the Japanese Embassy, the Secretary of the Navy will entertain at luncheon in honor of Admiral Yoshida and after that the visitors will motor to Arlington Cemetery to place a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier.

On Thursday, Admiral Yoshida and his staff, with officers and midshipmen of the two cruisers, will go to Annapolis where they will visit the Naval Academy and remain for luncheon, returning to Washington in time for a reception at which the Secretary of the Navy again will be host.

The following day the foreign naval officers will motor to Mount Vernon to lay a wreath on the tomb of George Washington and return to their ships at Baltimore.

The jovial German Ambassador, Dr. Hans Luther, who is taking a vacation with the diplomatic colony in Bluemont, a little resort set in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, comes to Washington all too infrequently to suit his many friends. But when his admirers chide him on his rustic mode of living, he explains, with a merry twinkle, that he has evolved a summer philosophy from a paraphrase of Benjamin Franklin's maxim on sleep.

Dr. Luther believes Franklin had the right idea about early retiring and early rising, but he didn't explain the consequences. So going him one better, Dr. Luther follows his own version of the adage, which reads: "Early to rise and early to bed, makes a man healthy, but socially dead."

Tarleton L. Redden Weds Texas Girl

THE marriage of Miss Josephine Wolff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wolff of Dallas, Tex., and Tarleton L. Redden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Redden, 5748 Bartmer avenue, took place July 18 at the Methodist Episcopal Church South in Hugo, Ok. Mr. Redden and his bride left immediately after the ceremony for a wedding trip on the West Coast, after which they will live in the Hillcrest Apartments in Wichita, Kan.

Mrs. Redden was graduated from Henderson-Brown College and has been teaching in Allen, Tex. Mr. Redden was graduated from the University of Missouri, where he became a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He attended Harvard University and is a member of the Harvard Club of St. Louis. Mr. Redden is in business here as well as in Wichita.

Edgartown, Martha's Vineyard.

ONE OF the gayest race weeks in years will be concluded tomorrow in Edgartown harbor. The New York Yacht Club fleet on the first of two visits the club will make here this year on its annual cruise was in Newport Thursday and Friday. Friday the Astor cup race was sailed out of Newport.

The climax of the week, however, will take place in Edgartown. There are 70 boats with the New York Yacht Club and hundreds of boats, large and small in attendance from which persons will observe the races. These boats will crowd the harbor and Vineyard Sound. Tonight a dance for all the visitors will be given at the Edgartown Yacht Club. At noon Sunday the club will give a buffet luncheon at the clubhouse for the visiting yachtmen and other guests. A golf tournament will follow in the afternoon and at 6 o'clock a cocktail party and reception will take place in the reading room of the Yacht Club. St. Louisans in Edgartown will be present at all these parties.

Mr. and Mrs. Theron E. Catlin, who have been at their summer home here since July 14, will attend the races. They will remain in Edgartown until the middle of September.

Mrs. Thomas H. Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Rensslaer Lee and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Perkins Brown have been entertaining friends and dining aboard yachts this week. Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Moore and her daughter, Miss Frances, have also been entertained by visiting yachtmen.

Dennis, Mass.

MR. AND MRS. CEVEDRA D. BLAKE have as their guest their daughter, Mrs. Harmon Green and their young daughter, Charlotte. Mr. Green will not visit them this season.

Marion, Mass.

JOHN SHEPLEY LIONBERGER who has been visiting his family now occupying the summer estate of Isaac Lionberger has returned to St. Louis.

Orleans, Mass.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD KENT of Whalewalk Farm, Orleans, and their daughter and son, Miss Margaret and Richard Kent, have returned from a visit to New York.

Nantucket, Mass.

THE sidewalk art show which for the past six years has been a popular feature of Nantucket's summer activities, will be held Monday. Paintings both in oil and water color will be exhibited and the colony of artists will be in attendance.

Wednesday the Jethro Coffin House, which dates back to 1686, will be open to visitors. This house was recently restored and is now in the possession of the Historical Association of Nantucket.

An exhibition of Hilda Scudder's portraits of bas-relief was held on Tuesday when portraits of three of the Supreme Court Judges were shown. Tea was served the visitors during the afternoon.

At a meeting of the Nantucket Neighbors, an organization of all residents of Nantucket, held last week, Frederick P. Hill talked on "Suitable Styles of Architecture for Nantucket." Nantucket is known for its simple gray shingle houses with their sea green or blue shutters.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hess of New York, Mrs. Gwynne Evans of St. Louis, mother of Mrs. Hess, landed this week and took a three-day motor trip on Cape Cod, making brief stays at resorts from Woods Hole to Provincetown.

The Nantucket regatta was held Saturday, Aug. 8, when boats from Martha's Vineyard and Cape Cod were contestants, with the fleet belonging in Nantucket Harbor. Before the ball given at the Yacht Club that night, Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson L. Lambert entertained at a mint julep party for the young people who were guests at the ball.

Firmin Desloge gave a luncheon aboard the "Nimrif," after viewing the races from the deck of his boat. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas White, Mr. and Mrs. Lynton T. Block and Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson L. Lambert were among his guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Lambert chartered the fishing boat "Kinglan," Wednesday for a party for nine boys in addition to their four sons. They went out to the shoals to fish.

Mrs. Charles E. Bascom and her daughter, Miss Nancy, who with Mr. Bascom and another daughter, Miss Elizabeth, are summering here, spent last week-end in New York.

Hyannisport, Mass.

THE summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fletcher Sparks has been filled with summer visitors. Mrs. Sparks' grandson, Nathaniel Reyburn of Fairfield, Conn., spent last week-end here. Her daughter, Mrs. Henry J. Kaltenbach Jr., and Mr. Kaltenbach arrived Sunday by motor from St. Louis. Mrs. Sparks' son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Valle Reyburn, left for their home in St. Louis, Wednesday. Their daughter, Miss Frances Reyburn, will prolong her visit here.

William E. Guy of Princeton, N. J., formerly of St. Louis, arrived here Sunday from St. Louis, where he spent part of the summer. He customarily spends his summers in Cooperstown, N. Y., where his sister, Mrs. Henry Fenimore Cooper, the former Miss Kitty Guy, has a summer home. Her husband is a direct descendant of the author, James Fenimore Cooper. Judge William Cooper, the novelist's father, founded Cooperstown with a grant of 40,000 acres of ground. Mr. Guy attended the weekly buffet supper Sunday at the Hyannisport Club, accompanied by a party of guests from the Sparks' summer home.

Mrs. Harry Hayward of Boston gave a cocktail party in her garden Sunday evening. The purple petunias massed before an old well and other summer flowers formed an attractive setting for the party. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coit Day of St. Louis.

Miss Betty Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Brown, is a guest of Miss Peggy Cutler at the summer home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. George Cutler. Mrs. Cutler is the former Miss Jessie Wright of St. Louis.

Mrs. Robert Blagden of Greenfield, Mass., formerly of St. Louis, has with her at her summer home her daughter, Mrs. Roger Farquhar of Mount Kisko, N. Y., and her young daughter, Ann. Mr. Farquhar will join his family later.

Mr. and Mrs. William Charles spent a few days here last week at Gables Inn.

Bernard S. Horne of Pittsburgh will return here this week to join Mrs. Horne and their daughters, Kathleen and Nancy, at the summer home of Mrs. Horne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen B. Sheldon of St. Louis. Mrs. Horne was the former Miss Kathleen Sheldon.

Mrs. Robert Kaime of New York, formerly of St. Louis, gave a luncheon Monday for her sister, Mrs. Charles Jenny of Brookline, Mass. Mrs. Jenny was the former Miss Martha Morrison of St. Louis. Mrs. Kenneth L. Green and Mrs. Edward H. Barstow were among the guests.

Mrs. Arthur G. Lambert of Washington, with her sons, Billy and Arthur Jr., are visiting Mrs. Lambert's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Caleb Sipple of Washington, formerly of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlton Messick arrived Monday and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coit Day. Mrs. Day was hostess at a luncheon Tuesday for her guests and the following day Mrs. Edward H. Barstow entertained at a similar party for Mr. and Mrs. Messick.

St. Louisans interested in flowers are attending the flower show given by the Horticultural Society of Cape Cod held at Osterville this week. Of special interest are gladioli, dahlias, Hawaiiain hybiscus and golden banded lilies.

Yarmouthport, Mass.

DR. Z. DE BARNEY PHILLIPS of Washington, formerly of St. Peter's Church, St. Louis, and Mrs. Phillips will arrive here in September to occupy their summer home. There now are their daughter, Mrs. Guido Perrara and her three young sons and Dr. and Mrs. Phillips' other daughter, Mrs. Wallace McClenahan and her son. Dr. Phillips, who is chaplain of the United States Senate, is now in Germany.

Mrs. Thomas Craig of St. Louis is visiting her sister, Miss Edith Souther at the Anchorage. Another sister, Mrs. Pendleton Tomkins of Lexington, Va., joined them this week. With Mrs. Tomkins, who was formerly Miss Sarah Souther, is her son, Souther Tomkins.

Mrs. Silas Lutrel, formerly Miss Ethel McCluney of St. Louis, who is now living in South Orange, N. J., is the guest of her aunt, Miss Mildred McCluney, at the Anchorage for two weeks.

Kent Ravenscroft To Wed Sept. 9

THE Episcopal Church of the Ascension, in Denver, will be the scene of the wedding of Miss Catherine Quentin Mitchell of Denver and Kent Ravenscroft, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Thornburg Ravenscroft, 23 Wydown terrace, Wednesday evening, Sept. 9. Mrs. Clark G. Mitchell, the prospective bride's mother, issued more than 500 wedding invitations this week-end.

The Rev. Dr. Foster, rector of the church, will read the service. A reception for about 300 will be held afterward at the Mitchell home.

Miss Mitchell has chosen her cousin, Miss Eleanor Van Schaack of Denver for her maid of honor. Her bridesmaids will be Miss Edina Newby of Denison, Tex.; Miss Edith Malo, Miss Martha Hardesty and Miss Mary Dickson Brown, all of Denver, the latter a niece of Mr. Ravenscroft.

Two St. Louisans have been chosen by Mr. Ravenscroft, Edmund Temple Allen, to be best man, and Edwin H. Wagner Jr., to be a groomsman. Other groomsmen will be Oliver Jackson Sands Jr. of Richmond, Va., a cousin; Joseph Barker Jr. of Omaha, Neb.; Leonard Aitken, John Mullen O'Connor and Quentin Mitchell, a brother of the bride, all of Denver. John Mitchell, another brother of Miss Mitchell, will give her in marriage.

Mr. Ravenscroft and his two St. Louis attendants will leave Sept. 3 for Denver to take part in the pre-wedding parties. His parents, who are on a summer trip to California, will arrive in Denver a few days before the wedding. The earlier part of their trip, starting in July, was spent in Alaska.

Miss Mitchell was graduated in June from Sweet Briar College, in Virginia, her engagement being announced commencement afternoon at a tea given by her mother for classmates. Mr. Ravenscroft was graduated from Yale University in 1929 and the Harvard School of Business Administration two years later. He is a member of the St. Louis Country Club.

CUBA ATTRACTS ATTENTION OF THE LATE VACATIONIST

For the late vacationist there are few trips more interesting than cruises to the territory that lies, so to speak, in our own front yard. Havana which is often referred to as the Paris of the Western Hemisphere, with its Spanish color and gayety, is a city of fabulous gayety.

Against a sky of intense blue the buildings take on a dazzling white and the tiny shops in narrow streets in the shadow of these brilliant palaces are filled with treasures from all over the world. The more sombre Spanish atmosphere is overlaid with French gayety to which the glittering casinos and cafes testify. The Prado is the favorite promenade of Cuban dandies. Clubs where exciting games of jai alai are played, the beach where the smart set gathers for its late afternoon swim are only part of the charm of the island.

For the visitor who has an historical turn of mind, the old weatherbeaten cathedral which has seen many powers vanish, and brooding Morro Castle are high spots as are the Tropical Gardens and the residential sections of the Vedado and Mariano.

Iceland Misnamed.

Iceland is situated at the tail-end of the Gulf stream and is therefore not as cold as its name would implify. Hot springs are numerous throughout the island.

KIRKWOOD

MISS VIOLA FRANZ, daughter of Mrs. Anna Franz, 406 North Taylor avenue, became the bride of William Harris Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Green, 219 Smith avenue, yesterday morning, at 10:30 o'clock, at the Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Hugh O. Isbell officiating. The chancel was banked with greenery and decorated with white gladioli in an informal arrangement. After the ceremony a reception was held at Osage Hills Country Club for the bridal party, members of the two families and the out-of-town guests, Miss Elizabeth Schwamb, of Atlantic City, and Mrs. Eleanor Harly of Champaign, Ill. Miss Schwamb is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Matthias C. Campbell, of 419 Way avenue.

The bride was gowned in a tunic dress of cream-colored lace, the tunic closing with tiny covered buttons over a dress with a round yoke. The sleeves were bell-shaped and the hat was a wide-brimmed natural-colored baku with a coral velvet band. She wore a corsage of talisman roses. Her only attendant, Mrs. William Bartlett ,of Webster Groves, wore a pale green crinkled crepe dress with a hip-length jacket fitted at the waist, three-quarter sleeves and a high round neckline. A corsage of Joanna Hill roses completed the costume. Mrs. Franz was gowned in dark blue chiffon with matching straw hat, and Mrs. Green wore flowered crepe with a white hat. Both wore corsages of gardenias.

Mr. Green had as best man Matthias C. Campbell Jr.

After a brief honeymoon the young couple will live at 406 North Taylor avenue.

News of St. Louis Visitors in La Jolla

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

La Jolla, Cal., Aug. 15.

A FAVORITE Sunday evening diversion for St. Louisans summering here is supper at the Casa de Manana. Sunday Marguerite Harrison, author of "There Is Always Tomorrow," was the speaker. Among the St. Louisans entertaining were Mrs. Lucia Sloan Hopkins, who was hostess to Mrs. Louis Egan, Mrs. Julian Glasgow and Miss Mary Lee; Mr. and Mrs. Guilford Duncan, who entertained for their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Phillips of Paris, France, who entertained in honor of Mr. and Mrs. James Crawford of St. Louis and Taylor Stickney, who gave a small party.

Mrs. Arthur Hillmer of St. Louis, Mr. and Mrs. Bunch Gilbert of Florida and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morris of La Jolla, Cal., entertained at a barbecue dinner for 40 guests at the Beach Club last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lockett Edwards were host and hostess at a cocktail party for 100 guests Saturday night, Aug. 7. Mr. Edwards is a former St. Louisan.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Berry gave a cocktail party Sunday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson. The following St. Louisans were present: Mr. and Mrs. Guilford Duncan, Dr. and Mrs. Ellis Fischel, Dr. and Mrs. Omar Sevin, Mr. and Mrs. James Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Houser, Taylor Stickney, Mrs. Louis Egan, Mrs. Julian Glasgow, Mrs. Frederick Orthwein, Mrs. Bransford Hill, Mrs. Lida Bevis, Mrs. Anita Briggs, Mrs. Lucia Sloan Hopkins, Mrs. Arthur Hilmer and Miss Mary Lee.

Monday, Aug. 10, Mr. and Mrs. Dozier L. Gardner and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Maloy gave a large party in the patio of the Beach Club. The guests were invited for cocktails at sundown. The following were among the guests: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Magnus, Mr. and Mrs. Boris Kitchen of San Mateo; Mrs. Birdie Mitchell of Los Angeles; Mrs. Warren Strong of St. Paul; Mr. and Mrs. George Gaylord of Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Shipley of San Francisco, formerly of St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. George T. Priest, Mr. and Mrs. James Crawford, Mrs. Sharp Ezell, Mrs. Frederick Orthwein, Mrs. Boyle Price, Mrs. Frances Knowles, Mrs. Anita Briggs, Mrs. Robert Otto, Mrs. Louis Egan, Miss Katherine Adams, Mrs. Lucia Sloan Hopkins, Mrs. Lida Bevis, Mrs. Arthur Hilmer, Dr. and Mrs. Ellis Fischel, Joseph Moon and Taylor Stickney.

Mrs. Morris Hopkins, owner of the Casa de Manana, gave a cocktail party Tuesday, Aug. 11, for the members of the St. Louis and Kansas City summer colony. Ninety guests were entertained in the patio.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lamy, who have the Beau Smith house, whose gardens adjoin the Country Club, gave a party for the St. Louisans in La Jolla for the summer.

George T. Priest arrived Thursday to spend two weeks with Mrs. Priest and their children, John and Susan. Mrs. Priest, her children and her sister, Mrs. Frances Knowles, have had a cottage here since early in June.

Mrs. Clarkson Carpenter has arrived to spend an indifinate time as the guest of Mrs. Boyle Price.

Louis A. Hager Jr. has joined the St. Louis visitors here for the rest of the season. He is stopping at the Beach Club.

St. Charles Items

FOLLOWING a honeymoon trip to Miami and New Orleans, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Faville are here for a two-week stay at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Ida Senden, 818 Jefferson street, before returning to West Palm Beach, where they will make their home.

Mrs. Faville, the former Miss Margaret Senden, was married Aug. 2 to Lawrence Faville at Amasilla, the cottage of his cousin, Mrs. L. Phillips Clark, on Lake Worth, near West Palm Beach. The attendants were Miss Alberta Thompson and Aubrey Burse, and only immediate relatives of the family were present. The Rev. Robert L. Lail of the Redeemer Lutheran Church of West Palm Beach read the marriage lines.

A linen shower was given by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Julia Klippel, on the lawn of the family home, 818 Jefferson street, last Sunday evening. There were tables for bridge and a luncheon during the evening. Some 45 relatives and friends attended.

Miss Cora and Miss Florence Waye, 1121 Madison street, left yesterday on a 10-day trip to Quebec and Toronto. They will return by way of the Thousand Islands and Niagara Falls. Miss Cora Waye is connected with the business department at Lindenwood College.

The Rev. and Mrs. Taylor Clark of Fayetteville, Tenn., arrived Tuesday evening for a week's stay to visit old friends and former schoolmates of the Rev. Mr. Clark. A graduate of the St. Charles High School in 1917, he left this city shortly after and is now pastor of First Presbyterian Church at Fayetteville. Among affairs in his honor was the reunion picnic supper held at Blanchette Park Thursday evening, which was sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Heck.

Miss Blanche Gauss of Miami is spending August with her mother, Mrs. C. H. Gauss, 701 Tompkins street.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice T. Martin, 207 North Fifth street, entertained their dinner club Tuesday. Tables were placed for contract bridge following the dinner. Mrs. Sigvald Udstad, a visitor from Berwick, Pa., was a guest.

The Garden Club held a picnic supper on the lawn of the home of Mrs. Howard Gass Sr. at Cottleville Friday. Francis C. Becker spoke on outside fireplaces.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Allison and their two children of Fort Peck, Mont., are visiting Mrs. Allison's parents, Judge and Mrs. Warren R. Dalton, 416 Jefferson street.

The Rev. John C. Inglis, 556 Jefferson street, left Tuesday for Columbus, O., to join his wife and twin sons, who are visiting relatives there. He expects to return with his family after several weeks.

The American Legion Auxiliary elected officers at its business meeting in Memorial Hall Monday evening. They are: president, Mrs. Ed Buse; first vice-president, Mrs. Frank Wyhs; second vice-president, Mrs. Walter Horst; treasurer, Mrs. Clara Shenck; secretary, Mrs. George Dierker; chaplain, Mrs. Della Schone; historian, Miss Wilma Jeck; sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. Walter Poser. The Auxiliary completed its plans for serving a supper at Blanchette Park this afternoon for the annual American Legion picnic.

George Wallenbrock and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kansteiner and the Kansteiners' two children, Margot and Beau, all of 1019 South Main street, left early this week for Boston, where they will join Mrs. Wallenbrock as guests at the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. J. Schulz in Wellesley Hills. Mrs. Schulz is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallenbrock and a sister of Mrs. Kansteiner.

Mr. Gladstone to McElhiney, her baby son and her brother, Charles Freeman, arrived here by automobile from Boulder, Colo., Monday night. Mrs. McElhiney is visiting Mrs. George W. McElhiney Sr., at Sixth and Jefferson streets. She will be joined by Mr. Gladstone McElhiney who is on a business trip in Kentucky. Mr. Freeman has just completed a course in the summer session of the state unversity at Boulder, Colo. He is visiting at the home of his father, Dr. Will L. Freeman, 205 North Sixth street.

Many are returning from summer vacations, although some are waiting until early in September to come back. Mrs. Ben L. Neubeiser of Sibley road, her two children, Janet and Roger, and Mrs. O. V. Hough of St. Louis motored here from Ephraim, Wis., where they have been vacationing. John H. Steinbrinker, 1508 Watson street, and John L. Mudd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mudd, 800 North Fifth street, will arrive tomorrow from Whitefish Bay, Wis. Mrs. Steinbrinker plans to return from Whitefish Bay in about two weeks. She was joined Friday by her daughter, Miss Phoebe Steinbrinker, and Mr. Vick Schwentker of St. Louis. Dr. B. Geret Gossow, 1810 Watson street, left early this week to be with his wife and two sons who have a cottage on Whitefish Bay, for a 10-day stay. Ray Oliver Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Oliver, 127 North Fifth street, returned this weekend after a summer in the East, most of which was spent at the summer home of Mrs. E. L. Mountfort at Damariscotta, Me. Harlan Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ray Richardson, 130 Lindenwood avenue, and Wilfred Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Richardson, 239 Houston street, returned after several months' tour of Colorado and California. They visited Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Schnatmeier at Glendale, Cal., for several days.

Miss Elizabeth Campbell of Louisville, Ky., is a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Stevens, 1022 Clay street.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hackmann, 533 Jefferson street, and their daughter, Margaret, and Miss Verna Ehlman left Wednesday for a trip to Detroit. They also will go to Saginaw and Bay City, Mich., to visit relatives.

Miss Bertha Hindersmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hindersmann, 2020 Moore avenue, and Henry J. Rau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Rau, 1026 Clay street, were married at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening at the Lutheran Church with the Rev. Frederick Niedner officiating.

The bride wore white lace with a long veil that was clasped to the head with a crown. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley. Attending the bride was her sister, Miss Clara Hindersmann, who was dressed in green lace and carried yellow gladioli. William Schiermeier was best man and the ushers were Harold Meyer and Milton Rau, both of St. Louis.

Members of the bridal party were guests at dinner at the Hotel St. Charles following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Rau left that night on a trip east. They will return in a week and make their home at 726 North Sixth street.

Miss Arabelle Foster, assistant dietitian at Lindenwood College, left Thursday for a fortnight's trip to Duluth, where she will visit relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Barklage of Omaha, Neb., are visiting relatives in St. Charles. Mr. Barklage attended school here as a boy.

Miss Susan Lindsay To Be Wed Aug. 22

THE engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Susan Lindsay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben C. Lindsay, 5321 Savoy Court, and Robert von Bernuth of Chicago and New York has been announced.

They will be married at Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago, Aug. 22, and, following a honeymoon in Wisconsin, will live in New York after Oct. 1.

The bride's parents, her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Boeckmann, and their young son, Arthur Boeckmann Jr., will accompany her to Chicago for the ceremony.

Guilford-Biston Wedding at Church

THE wedding of Miss Jane Marie Biston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Biston, 6434 Cecil avenue, and Vivian Greenaway Guilford of St. Louis, formerly of London, England, took place at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Church of St. Michael and St. George. The Rev. Frank Maples performed the ceremony. White vases of lilies of the valley, baby's breath and white asters decorated the altar and there were two large urns of white gladoli and orchid shaded asters near the choir stall. The chancel was banked with greenery.

The bride was gowned in white chiffon, designed on close fitting lines, with a cowl neckline, long full sleeves sheered into a tight band at the wrist and a train formed by the skirt. Her tulle veil was simply arranged with a few orange blossoms and fell in straight folds at the back. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white rosebuds.

Miss Byrdie Biston was her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids were: Miss Madge Guilford of Rochester, N. Y., sister of the bridegroom, Miss Margaret Lambert and Miss Georgine Cox. The maid of honor was in orchid chiffon, fashioned on close fitting lines with a cowl neckline, cap sleeves and cascades of the chiffon at the back which fell in a slight train. She wore a starched white linen hat trimmed with the chiffon and carried an arm bouquet of white gladoli and asters with a few sprays in an orchid shade and tied with green ribbon. The bridesmaids wore similar costumes in pale green organdy and carried bouquets which were predominantly orchid with touches of white. Mrs. Biston was in aquamarine lace with a natural lace hat, and Mr. Guilford's sister, Mrs. Robert S. Guilford of Rochester, N. Y., was in embroidered pink organdy.

Mr. Guilford's best man was William Turner of Chicago, and his ushers were A. W. Willert Jr., E. M. McGrath, George Irwin, Carl Irwin and H. B. Mothersill.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the Biston home for the bridal party and close relatives.

Mr. Guilford and his bride left last night for a wedding trip in the East after which they will make their home at 1012 Harrison avenue, Kirkwood.

The bride was graudated from Washington University and is a member of Delta Gamma sorority. Mr. Guilford also was graduated from Washington University and is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity. Until recently he made his home in Rochester, N. Y., with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Guilford. He is a nephew of Sir Percy Greenaway, former Lord Mayor of London.

Funeral of Ferdinand M. Ludwig.

Pacific Affairs Sessions to Be Covered by Radio

OPEN forum discussions by men and women of standing from 10 countries, at the Institute of Pacific Relations conference in Yosemite Park, Cal., will be broadcast on the WEAF and WJZ networks daily from next Thursday to Aug. 27. There will be half-hour daily broadcasts at 3 p. m. on the WEAF net and 15 minute summaries at 7:45 p. m. Thursday and 8:45 p. m. Aug. 21 to 25 on the same chain.

Among those expected to take part in the discussions are Newton D. Baker and Ray Lyman Wilbur, of this country; Lord Snell, of Great Britain; Gen. Sir Kenneth Wigram, of India; Dr. V. E. Motylev, of Russia; Dr. Hu Shih, of China, and Yusule Tsurami, of Japan, and representatives of Australia, Canada, New Zealand, the Philippines and Holland.

The main round table topic at the conference will be the international effects of American, Soviet, Chinese and Japanese policies in the Pacific.

During the series there will be a radio description of the "Fire Fall" in Yosemite Park, where nightly a bonfire is built atop Glacier Point and its embers are pushed off to fall 3100 feet to the floor of the valley.

Construction of the new 64-foot tower transmitting aerial for WJZ, New York, key station of the WJZ network, is under way. It is planned to have the aerial ready for use by Nov. 5, the tenth anniversary of the NBC. More than 300,000 pounds of concrete will go into the tower base. The weight of the tower and the downward pull of the guy wires will total 230,000 pounds downward thrust on the porcelain insulator on which the structure will stand. The ground system will consist of 90,000 lineal feet of copper strips buried in trenches radiating from the base.

Among the artists who have not been signed as yet for Fall radio programs are Lawrence Tibbett, John Charles Thomas, Gladys Swarthout, Helen Jepson, Winifred Cecil, Conrad Thibault, James Melton and Donald Novis.

Richard Randelli, a New York tenor, has taken over Chauncey Parsons' Singing Neighbor programs on WLW. Parsons has departed for the Pacific Coast after singing a year and a half on the Cincinnati station.

ARTISTS SAVE OLD HOME FOR 86-YEAR-OLD BENEFACTOR

Miss Florence Griswold Keeps Residence at Old Lyme, Conn., Where Impressionists Worked.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Assurance that Miss Florence Griswold, now 86 years of age, may spend the rest of her days in the white pillared house at Old Lyme, Conn., where she nurtured the first impressionist school of American painting was given this week. The house is filled with paintings by artists, some of them now famous. Less than a month ago Miss Griswold, who acted as housekeeper, model and patron saint to Childe Hassam, Henry W. Ranger and other artists, was faced with the prospect of eviction. She often forgot the bills of the artists who boarded with her.

The house, built in 1818, in which she was born, was to be sold to satisfy an accumulation of debts.

A Florence Griswold Association was formed by Old Lyme artists and others who formerly resided there. Memberships which they took or sold to their friends provided a fund which on Tuesday enabled them to exceed a $15,000 bid for the Griswold home and the competing offer was withdrawn.

Only formal court acceptance of the association's offer remained to assure Miss Florence of continued occupancy and the association announced that additonal funds would pay off her other debts and furnish her with an annuity.

Radio-Airplane Traffic Guidance Test Again Today

WBBM, Chicago, plans to broadcast again, at 5:45 p. m. today, 15 minutes of the report of Chief Lester J. Laird, of the Sheriff's county highway police, as he flies in an airplane over the traffic jams on the highways in the Chicago district.

Last Sunday's inaugural of this attempt to give a new service to motorists was marred by violent static as the year's worst thunderstorm in the Chicago area blotted out virtually all ground-airplane communication and five important broadcasting stations were put off the air by lightning.

The WBBM broadcast today will be designed especially for motorists having radio sets in their cars, as an aid to them in avoiding traffic congestion or in getting out of it.

WBBM will pick up the report which will be made by Chief Laird, a. he attempted to do last Sunday, with a short wave transmitter in the plane. Chief Laird also will use the transmitter to direct the work of his 140 traffic policemen in trying to mitigate the effects of highway crowding.

Story of Prehistoric Man in America in Broadcast Today.

PART of the story of man will be told in a Smithsonian Institution broadcast at 9:30 this morning on the WJZ chain. It will be related in the form of a drama based on research and the findings of scientists sent out by the Institution, which has six expeditions in the field delving into the evidence of prehistoric man's existence in America from Alaska to Honduras. The drama will emphasize the belief that from 10,000 to 40,000 years ago men of Mongoloid type passed from Asia to Alaska, seeking game, fish and other food, and spread gradually southward and eastward until they penetrated into every part of the hemisphere.

Effects of sound in science, industry and entertainment will be covered in the United States Office of Education's "Have You Heard?" program at 1:45 p. m. Tuesday on the WJZ net.

A "Bughouse Rhythm" program, which has become popular on the Pacific Coast, is now on the WEAF net, at 3 p. m., Fridays.

Trade Notes

A new 12-tube radio set including "teledial" tuning, an 11-tube all-wave receiver, and a "teledial super twelve," which have just been added to the Grunow line introduced several weeks ago, will be shown to dealers at Hotel Statler Tuesday, and Wednesday by the Brown Supply Co., the distributor.

All three additions to the line have the new patented "violin-shape" cabinets which Grunow engineers assert reduce cabinet resonance to a minimum. The cabinets are of walnut with rare wood inlay. Other features include automatic aerial tuning, tone-tested resonator, color flash dial, clock-type tuning, the new "beam" power audio tubes and 12-inch speakers, and an "electric eye" on the new 11-tube model.

Following dealer showing meetings in Columbia, Mo., the Brown Supply Co. is equipping a caravan auto trailer radio set display which will be sent throughout the St. Louis trade area. It will carry movie and sound equipment as well.

Lanny Ross Back on KSD Show Boat

Program Greatly Changed —Voice of Experience to Return on Morning of Same Day.

LANNY ROSS is expected back from Europe in time to resume his role as master of ceremonies and soloist on KSD's Show Boat next Thursday night. But the Show Boat program will be almost wholly changed. "Cap'n Henry," "Mary Lou" and the Westerners have been dropped. Al Goodman and his orchestra will replace Gus Haenschen's band. Sam Hearn, the comedian who played "Schlepperman" with Jack Benny, will join the show as "Horace Nimble" and will share the fun-making with "Molasses and January." "Tiny Ruffner, the announcer; "Maria" and Ross Graham, the baritone, who will play the part of "Walker Willoughby," the young Southerner, will be retained. A soprano, a "blues" singer and soubrette will make their Show Boat debuts. There will also be a 21-voice mixed chorus and a male quartet. Winifred Cecil, the soprano, is still in Europe, and will not return to the Show Boat.

The Voice of Experience, for whom Jacob Tarshish, the Lamplighter, has been substituting, is to be back on KSD this week, beginning Thursday.

Action in the One Man's Family serial will center at 6 p. m. Wednesday around the return of "Claudia" from Europe with her explanation of the gossip in a newspaper column linking her name with that of a young Londoner. Her husband, "Nicky," will want the explanation to be a good one.

Quintuplets' Doctor On KSD Tomorrow.

DR. ALLAN ROY DAFOE, physician to the Dionne Quintuplets, will tell more anecdotes of his little charges, on Morgan L. Eastman's program at 8 o'clock tomorrow night on KSD.

The Saturday Jamboree variety program will be expanded to a full hour, beginning Aug. 22, and will be broadcast by the WEAF chain and KSD from 6:30 to 7:30 o'clock. Don McNeill will continue as master of ceremonies with Harry Kogen directing the orchestra, and will feature guest stars each week. There will also be serious dramatic skits and more musical and comedy acts.

A new noon program on KSD Mondays and Wednesdays, called the Noontimers' Revue, features a girls' harmony trio; Eddie Wacker, baritone; singing popular songs; Russ David's Swingtime band and Frank Eschen and Dave Ward as masters of ceremony.

Swanee Taylor, a noted aviator, will be the guest story teller on the Leo Reisman program Tuesday evening.

The South Sea Islanders, natives of the islands who play Hawaiian music and were among the old-time favorite radio ensembles, may be heard at 1:30 p. m. next Sunday on KSD and at 1 p. m. Sunday, Aug. 30.

Noble Cain's a cappella choir, whose singing from Chicago has been heard on KSD many a time, is scheduled on the Post-Dispatch's station at 1:30 p. m. Sundays, starting Aug. 30.

Gabrielle Chanel, the Parisian dress designer, will speak from France during KSD's Woman's Radio Review at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Ramon Navarro, the movie actor, will be interviewed by Elza Schallert on KSD at 8:15 p. m. Friday.

Fred Perry, the tennis star, and his wife, Helen Vinson, the movie actress, in a dramatic sketch; Charles Butterworth, the movie comedian, and Mitzi Green, the screen juvenile, are billed for Rudy Vallee's program on KSD Thursday.

KWK to Dedicate New Transmitter Aug. 23.

THE new 5000-watt transmitter, which for some months has been under construction near Chain of Rocks Park for KWK, will be dedicated next Sunday. Inspection of the transmitter, which KWK is licensed to use up to 5000 watts in the day time and with 1000 watts output at night, is set for 6:30 p. m. A dedicatory program will be given from 8 to 8:30 p. m. in the Crystal Room in Hotel Chase.

Starred in Broadcasts

HILDEGARDE (at left), the Wisconsin girl who starred in BBC broadcasts in England, in the London theaters and on the Continent and has been singing on Rudy Vallee and Frank Fay's programs, and SOPHIE TUCKER, who will take over Ben Bernie's program Tuesday night and have the "Old Maestro" as her guest.

What the Fall Will Bring

Numerous New Programs, Return of Favorite Entertainers and Time Changes on Networks and Local Stations.

SCHEDULES of programs definitely set for the networks and their member stations in St. Louis, starting late this month and in September and October, indicate that in some respects the coming fall-winter radio season will be the most entertaining that any year has offered to listeners. So far as lovers of the finer music are concerned, the outlook is not so promising, except on Sundays, and there will be more than enough of talks and serials broadcast too closely together.

New programs, return of popular entertainers to the air and changes in time for various series listed for the last few days of this month, through September and into October for the WEAF network, of which KSD is a member, the WJZ chain, in which KWK and the CBS net, including KMOX, is the St. Louis link, include:

Aug. 30.—Smiling Ed McConnell; Irma Glenn, organist, an orchestra and chorus, 3:30 p. m. Sundays on WEAF net.

Aug. 30—Goose Creek Parson, featuring Josiah Hopkins, preacher of the Country Church of Hollywood, CBS net and KMOX, 6:15 p. m., Sundays, 6:30 Wednesdays and Fridays, until Sept. 28, when time will change.

"Silver Mask Tenor" Sings Again on KSD.

JOE WHITE, "The Silver Mask Tenor" of years ago, is singing on KSD at 11:05 a. m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Another tenor on KSD worth hearing is Terri La Franconi, at 5:45 p. m. Thursdays, and with Lucille Manners, the soprano, at 3:45 p. m. Fridays.

An old-fashioned melodrama will be performed with flourishes by "The Great McCoy's" stock company with a variety show, community sing and music, in the "Wonder Show" on WGN and the Mutual chain at 7 o'clock tonight. Jack Smart has the role of "The Great McCoy."

The broadcasting by Graham McNamee of the finals of the All-American "Soap Box" Derby for boys who will guide their homemade "autos" as they coast down a hill at Akron, O., is set for 1 p. m. and 4:30 p. m. today on the WJZ net and KWK.

Operetta Series on Thursdays.

ANOTHER series of operetta performances by the NBC Light Opera Company will begin Thursday. The broadcasts are scheduled weekly at 2:30 p. m. on the WJZ network.

Jesse Crawford has added an organ recital period at 9:45 p. m. Wednesday on the WEAF chain. Gale Page is singing on the WJZ net at 1:15 p. m. Saturdays.

The Wilderness Road serial, dramatizing episodes in the steady press of colonists westward and their conflicts with the Indians, which was adjudged by the National Women's Radio Committee to be the best children's program, is carried by the CBS net at 3:45 p. m. Monday through Friday.

Betty Jane Holman Radio Soloist Tonight.

BETTY JANE HOLMAN, the younger of the two Holman Sisters whose two-piano concerts have been broadcast by KSD and national networks, is billed for her first solo broadcast at 9:45 tonight on KWK. She is to play music by Chopin.

The Happy Hollow serial is back on the CBS net at 12:15 noon Monday through Friday.

Jeannine Macy is singing again on WLW in the Summer Swingtime period at 5:45 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and on her own program at 8:45 a. m. Fridays. Paul Sullivan, WLW's news commentator, has changed his time on the air to 11 p. m. daily. Sullivan, formerly a KSD announcer, has been visiting in St. Louis. Harry Lang and Luise Squire, formerly on Broadway in musical comedy and the Follies and widely known to vaudeville audiences, are being featured in WLW's Follies at 9:30 p. m. Mondays.

Louis-Sharkey Fight on CBS Net.

THE Louis-Sharkey fight Tuesday night will be broadcast after all, at 8 o'clock on the CBS chain and, KMOX and WBBM.

A description of a fiesta on the Grand Canal in Venice, broadcast from a gondola carrying a short wave transmitter, will be rebroadcast on the WJZ chain at 2 p. m. next Saturday.

"Give 'Em the Heat," written as a satire on gangland and gangster stories by Don Becker of WLW, with music by members of the station's staff, will be carried by the WEAF net and KSD at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday. Becker has written a musical play, "Loves of the Southern Sea," with Virginio Marucci, the WLW conductor, which will be broadcast at 7:30 Tuesday night, Aug. 25.

LANNY ROSS, who is back from Europe to take over the Show Boat again next Thursday night on KSD and completely change the character and personnel of the weekly program.

Gossip From the Studios

FRED ASTAIRE, whose fall radio revue will open on KSD and the WEAF network at 7:30 Tuesday night, Sept. 8, flew East from the coast last week and sailed on the Normandie for a brief vacation in England. Although he expected to spend most of his time in London, he said, he would visit his sister and former partner, Adele, now Lady Cavendish, at her country place. Johnny Green, who will lead the orchestra for Astaire's series, also flew East, but will return to Hollywood in a week or so to begin organizing an orchestra and line up the music for the show. He plans to use only new and distinctive arrangements on the Astaire programs.

As was intimated last week, the Monday night Gypsies concerts will soon be of the past. The last of them will be that scheduled for the night of Sept. 7. These concerts, directed by Harry Horlick, have been a weekly half-hour feature on KSD and the WEAF network for years; in fact, are probably the oldest program now on the air.

"Tony Cabooch", an Italian dialect act that some years ago was featured by a St. Louis station and then went on a national network for several weeks, is now being broadcast on WBAL, Baltimore, after a season on WINS, New York. "Tony" is played by Chester Gruber, actor and vaudeville player who developed his many-voices program in St. Louis. . . . Jane Froman is reported all set for a part in Ed Wynn's fall radio show. . . . East and Dumke, the comedians who made "Sisters of the Skillet" a household phrase; Dick Ballon's orchestra and Gene Ramey, tenor, probably will be featured Tuesday and Thursday mornings on the CBS chain before long. . . .

The shift of the Tim and Irene and Don Wilson show, which will go into effect Sunday, Aug. 30, will be only to stations in the East and Middle West, among them KSD. Jack Benny's return to the program, which will be continued on KSD, is set for the fall. . . . KSD is to carry a program featuring impersonations of Tom Mix, at 4:15 p. m. Mondays through Fridays, starting Sept. 28. . . . B. A. Rolfe reports that he has proof of the waning of "swing" music, in that on his new programs nearly 80 per cent of requests from listeners are for slow waltzes and old-fashioned brass band marches. . . . Gladys George, through with work on the movie, "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie," has had offers of a couple of radio shows.

Joe Cook probably will do a guest appearance on KSD's Smith Ballew program next Saturday night . . . A radio "come back" for Jack Pearl, possibly in a revamped "Baron Munchausen" role, is again rumored . . . Burns and Allen's weekly Wednesday night programs the last two weeks of this month may come from Honolulu. If so, their fun-making will be put on the air by KGMB, Hawaiian Islands, for pick-up and rebroadcasting over the CBS network and KMOX.

TONY CABOOCH (Chester Gruber), old-time St. Louis radio comedian, now broadcasting his act in Baltimore, Md.

Alice Reinheart will be out of KSD's Friday night Court of Human Relations cast for several weeks because of the sudden death of her father.

Arthur Pryor and his band will play a typical oldtime band concert, as given on the boardwalk at Asbury Park, N. J., during the Cavalcade period Wednesday evening.

Edward Arnold, the Hollywood character actor, will play in episodes from "The Rise of Silas Lapham" during Rupert Hughes' program Tuesday night. Gertrude Niesen, the singer, remembered by St. Louisans for her Muny Opera appearances, also is billed for this period.

The broadcast of the unveiling of the "transparent woman," a figure made of transparent cellhorn and designed to show the functioning of the organs of the body, postponed from yesterday, has been set for 3:30 p. m. Wednesday on the WEAF chain. It will come from the New York Museum of Science and Industry.

"Lanny" Back on KSD

MARJORIE HANNAN (above), who plays the role of "Fay Perkins" in KSD's "Ma Perkins" serial at 1:15 p. m. daily except Saturday and Sunday.

Fr. Coughlin in Radio Speech This Afternoon

John Boles Billed For Radio Theater.

JOHN BOLES and Evelyn Venable in "The Vagabond King" tomorrow night, and Eddie Cantor in "Whoopie" Monday evening, Aug. 24, are the billings for the coming two Radio Theater broadcasts.

Sophie Tucker and her orchestra will replace Ben Bernie's dance band in his period Tuesday night. But Bernie will be her "guest" for the performance. His radio vacation as orchestra leader and master of ceremonies will be only for the one week.

Nine Autos Undergo 18,220-Mile Test for Best Fuel, Lubricants

$100,000 Spent on Run to Insure Scientific Record in All Kinds of Driving Conditions.

Nine motor cars ranging from the lowest priced to the thousand dollar class have just completed a test run of 18,220 miles under the supervision of Texas Co. engineers at a cost of more than $100,000.

It was conducted in the interest of the best fuels and lubricants for every driving condition. Details of the economy, endurance and speed tests were carried on in the most scientific manner.

Leaving Houston, Tex., early in March, the first part of the run consisted of a 5011-mile economy test back and forth over the highway to Laredo. The average speed of the nine cars which ran as a caravan was 47.96 miles per hour.

At this speed, the Pontiac 8, which was one of the nine cars, averaged 17.57 miles per gallons of fuel, and was exceeded by only one car, which is in the lowest priced bracket. Throughout the 18,220 miles the Pontiac maintained its second position in fuel and oil economy.

Endurance Run.

The second part of the trip, which covered 9754 miles, was an endurance run around the rim of the United States with Houston as the starting and finishing point.

With dust through parts of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona that caused drivers and observers to wear masks for four days, and with 50 inches of snow in Montana a few days later and the thermometer near the sub-zero vanishing point, opportunity was provided to observe the true performance of cars, oils and fuels. Average speed for the 9754 miles, which consumed 28 days, was 49.26 miles per hour. At this rate, the Pontiac 8 averaged 16.58 miles per gallon of gas, and on the last three days of the run its average went up to 18.32.

In the combined economy and endurance run oil economy on the Pontiac was 1769.42 miles per quart of oil.

Accurate mileage was recorded by the pilot car which had a fifth wheel and electrical speed recording device.

Accurate Checking.

All car speedometers were checked for accuracy over a 329-mile stretch, and the Pontiac was found to be only two miles off for that distance, which is less than one per cent. This the engineers in charge of run said, could have been due to differences in tire inflation.

Each of the nine cars was equipped with 11 thermo-couplings for recording temperatures at vital lubrication points.

Readings at these 11 points and 19 other observations were taken every 15 minutes throughout the test.

All electrical leads from thermo-couplings terminated at a table in the rear seat compartment where an observer made the readings.

The 11 temperatures registered by thermo-couplings were as follows: (1) Oil in crankcase; (2) oil vapor in top of crankcase; (3) water inlet to motor; (4) water outlet from motor; (5) motor block; (6) oil in transmission; (7) oil in differential; (8) fuel in gas tank; (8) fuel pump; (10) feed line from fuel pump to carburetor, and (11) carburetor.

No replacements of parts or adjustments of any kind were made or were necessary on the Pontiac from the time it left Houston until the end of the 18,000-mile run when the cars arrived in Detroit and were turned over to the engineering departments of their makers.

Warns Motorists Children Soon Will Be Swarming on Streets

"In a few more weeks, the streets will be filled with hurrying school children. Nothing else will place a greater responsibility upon motorists," says C. M. Van Epps, Goodyear manager of service.

"It is not enough to drive carefully, always on the alert to avoid possible accidents. Further insurance against accidentally striking an unwary schoolchild is to have tires completely checked.

"Most drivers do not consciously drive recklessly without regard for human life. But all too often smooth-worn tires, with resultant poor traction, fail to respond to a driver's pressure upon the brakes. Consequently, skidding not only endangers a pedestrian's life but the driver's as well.

"The most effective precaution against endangering our own and the lives of others is to have a car completely checked. Be sure that the brakes hold. Then be sure that the four points of contact with the ground—the tires—have sufficient traction to respond quickly to the brake. Lastly, drive carefully."

Three St. Louis Lads Winners in Body Craftsman Contest

Three St. Louis youths were adjudged winners in the State-wide Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild apprentice class model coach-building competition.

They were Joseph Egan, 15 years old, 4447 De Tonty, third place in the junior division; George W. Schlude, 15, 5388 Reber place, and Joseph A. Gutjahr, 19, 6437 Marmaduke. The latter two got honorable mention.

Names of winners were announced by William A. Fisher, president of the General Motors-sponsored educational foundation at its Detroit headquarters, where the judging of miniature traveling coaches submitted by boys in Missouri and neighboring states has been in progress since the close of the competition Aug. 1.

Skaters Classed as Vehicles.

Parking and traffic regulations in Amherst, Mass., now classify a person who walks in the streets as a pedestrian, but the same individual on roller skates becomes a vehicle.

Fred Weber Jr., sub-contractor on the job, reports that they have been moving 1100 tons of dirt daily and hauling it three miles north to the bank of the Mississippi River. The 11 Fords in this fleet were delivered to Weber by the Riefling Motor Co.

Second Year Pins for 1200 Cadillac Certified Craftsmen

Meetings have been arranged this week by the service managers of Cadillac-LaSalle dealers and distributors throughout the United States for the presentation of second-year pins to more than 1200 charter members of the Cadillac Certified Craftsman's League.

The league was founded Jan. 1, 1935, by Nicholas Dreystadt, general manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Co., to make certain that Cadillac and LaSalle cars would be serviced and maintained with the care and skill employed in their manufacture. Activities of the league are under the immediate direction of W. A. Houser, general parts and service manager.

To qualify for membership in the league, service men submit to the factory service department written monthly examinations, each containing detailed answers to 25 technical service questions. The minimum passing grade is 85 per cent, although Mr. Houser states that many of the service men have achieved standings of more than 95 per cent.

Only those who joined the league at its inception and have submitted successful examination papers in each of the last 18 months will receive the second year pins. The membership of the league is over 2000. Several hundred additional members are expected to qualify for second year pins later in the year.

St. Louisan Winner in Regional Contest

T. W. Speicher, of Sidney-Weber, Inc., dealer in St. Louis, was the winning salesman of the week for the St. Louis region in the Dodge and Plymouth "Election Sweepstakes" campaign, according to P. A. Jerrue, regional manager. P. A. Harris, of the Ruprecht Motor Co., St. Louis, finished third, and Frank Rukivina, of Crosby Motors, received honorable mention.

The "Election Sweepstakes," a national midsummer contest for Dodge and Plymouth dealers and salesmen, began at midnight on July 1, and will continue until midnight Sept. 1. Points are scored for sales of Dodge and Plymouth cars, Dodge trucks and for used cars and trucks.

The insignia of the two major political parties is being used in the campaign literature. Campaign managers, "platforms" and other factors of a political campaign are much in evidence in the promotion of the contest.

First-Aid Highway Stations.

To provide emergency care to the injured on highways, the American Red Cross set up 900 first-aid stations at gasoline service stations, tourist inns, rural police stations and fire departments last year. Similar units, numbering 3500, will soon be set in operation throughout the United States. Meanwhile, trucking firms, state highway police departments and other organizations which have vehicles constantly on the road, are training their personnel in first-aid.

Los Angeles Car Production Center.

Los Angeles now is the second largest automotive production center in the world, ranking next to Detroit.

Ford Domestic Sales Over 100,000 Units for 4 Consecutive Months

For the fourth consecutive month domestic sales of Ford V-8 cars and trucks totaled more than 100,000 units, it is stated at the home offices of the Ford Motor Co. This continuation of high-volume sales into mid-season is a reversal of the trend in former years, it was said.

The demand for Ford V-8 units has been so well maintained into the late summer, it was said, as to make necessary the abandonment of plans for a general vacation shutdown of the Rouge plant. The plant was partially closed the past week. Production of current models will be continued when the plant resumes full operations Aug. 17.

The unusual volume of July business can be partly attributed to the recent announcement of new Ford V-8 passenger car interiors and the addition of de luxe equipment for Ford V-8 trucks, it was said.

Ford production in July in the United States and Canada totaled 115,137 units.

Tourist Trailer Rental Agency Established Here

T. L. Jones, 4942 Lansdowne, has organized the Trailer Rental Co., to rent factory-made trailer units on a weekly basis.

This is the first time here that modern, new trailers have been offered for rent. The units are complete with two full-sized beds, kitchen, stove, ice box and electricity and the rental fee includes insurance.

Jones has just completed a seven weeks' trip by trailer along the Pacific Coast, visiting all national parks and covering 7800 miles.

Recently White has been connected with one of the St. Louis automobile financing companies on Grand boulevard.

80-Year-Old Motorist Has Driven Studebakers Continuously Since 1904

Eighty-year-old Simeon A. Cruikshank of Plainfield, N. J., has been adjudged the motorist having "the best record of continuous ownership of active Studebaker automobiles for the longest period of time. He has owned Studebaker cars continuously since 1904, when the factory turned from electric autos to the gasoline car.

He drove his first car 10,000 miles which in those days was a record to talk about. He bought his second Studebaker in 1905, and drove it 30,000 miles, then in 1906 purchased a four-cylinder Studebaker touring car which still runs well and can do 40 miles per hour. He now owns four Studebakers and, on his record, the Studebaker factory has just awarded him a 1936 Studebaker President touring sedan.

H. C. MERRY

General manager of the Merry Auto Co., which he has organized to be a Packard dealer at 5802 Delmar boulevard. The quarters leased at the Delmar address by the firm give it 14,000 square feet of floor space. Extensive alterations have been made and complete special equipment installed for servicing Packard cars, including a Stromberg motoscope and exhaust analyzer, with a force of factory-trained mechanics. The firm is already displaying Packard cars. Merry is widely known in this territory, having been active in distributing as well as retailing automobiles and in brake and other car servicing.

GEORGE HUTCHINGS NOW TERRAPLANE, HUDSON DEALER

GEORGE HUTCHINGS,

WHO has formed the Motors Distributing Co., Inc., with headquarters at 2329 Locust, corner of Jefferson, which has been appointed a Hudson and Terraplane dealer by W. S. Milton, zone manager for the Hudson-Terraplane Sales Corporation.

Hutchings, who is widely known among motorists and in automobile retailing circles here, is president of the new firm, which also has a used car display at 2608 Locust street.

Hutchings will give a special service to Hudson and Terraplane owners, who may leave their cars for servicing on their way downtown and have their cars delivered at their convenience.

In addition to a full display of Hudson and Terraplane cars, the firm has installed special tools for service work and a complete parts stock.

Surveying Used Car Markets

C. J. Flanagan (at right), a Chevrolet central office executive, who came to St. Louis the past week on a used car survey in major cities, and C. C. Schelp, city retail manager. Flanagan said that country-wide sales of used cars by Chevrolet dealers in the first six months of this year amounted to 158 per cent of their used car volume in the same period of 1935.

One U. S. Air Line Flies More Miles Than All of British

United States' supremacy in commercial air transportation was emphasized today by comparisons of domestic operations figures with reports of the Exchange Telegraph Co., Ltd., of London, made public by C. R. Smith, president of American Airlines, Inc.

On the basis of the British reports, Smith said, American Airlines, Inc., largest of the domestic air transport companies, alone flew 50.6 per cent more miles than all the British companies combined—internal, continental and empire—and carried 24.3 per cent more passengers, 57.6 per cent more passenger miles.

"The Exchange Telegraph Co.'s report leaves no doubt as to the United States' margin of leadership in commercial air transportation," he said. "This report shows that all British operated air lines flew a total of 7,637,000 airplane miles in 1935. This compares with the 11,504,400 miles in the same period by American Airlines, Inc., alone.

"This report also states that 143,400 passengers were carried on British planes during the year, which compares with 178,200 transported by our own one line in 1935. Even greater is the contrast in passenger miles flown, where American exceeds by 64,749,000 to 41,090,000 passenger miles for the year."

Smith also said that the average cruising speeds of commercial transport planes now operated in the United States were considerably faster than those in Great Britain. Night flying, virtually unknown abroad, has been perfected here to the point where it comprises nearly 50 per cent of the operation of the major companies.

Unique Device Tests Sound Deadening Value Of Auto Body Materials

Seeking a yardstick to measure the relative efficiency of sound-deadening materials for automobile bodies, Lincoln Motor Co. engineers devised apparatus set up in a solid brick vault with double steel doors in the Lincoln plant in Detroit.

The device is an electric vibrator for body sheet metal. A piece of standard body metal is clamped at four points and placed under tension by movable weights. A large electro-magnet, suspended on the cross bar, alternately pulls and releases the metal sheet. The rate of vibration, up to 4000 vibrations per minute, is controlled by a make-and-break device located outside the vault to do away with interior noises. As the rate of vibration rises, the humming panel of steel gives off a sound almost exactly like an automobile gaining speed.

With a decibel machine, the operator measures the noise, then lays the sound-deadening material to be tested on the sheet of body metal and takes the noise reading again. The comparison shows if the material is worth trying in a test car.

Graham July Sales 18 Per Cent Over 1935

Factory sales of Graham motor cars in July increased 18 per cent over the corresponding month in 1935, according to F. R. Valpey, general sales manager of Graham-Paige Motors Corporation.

"Not only did factory sales increase last month, but actual retail deliveries were 20 per cent ahead of those in the same month a year ago, and reports show that the final ten days of last month produced a peak in retail deliveries, marking the highest 10-day period since 1930," Valpey said.

A. Stengel.

Art Stengel has been appointed service manager for the Modern Auto Repair and Reconstruction Co., 4601 Olive street.

Stengel formerly was service manager of the retail divisions for large firms handling the more expensive makes of automobiles.

So he has seen a great deal of automotive service and rebuilding work from the viewpoint of motorists.

Pierce-Arrow First Manufacturer of Cars To Make Auto Trailers

Competitive with Lowest Priced Tourist Type—George Gruet's Firm Will Distribute It Here.

A wholly new type tourist-trailer, made by a newly established division of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Corporation, of Buffalo, N. Y., will be distributed in this territory by the Pierce-Arrow St. Louis Co., of which George Gruett is president.

Produced with an all-steel chassis and body frames and paneling and roof entirely of metal, this trailer is declared to be the first to be designed by automobile body and chassis engineers and built by automobile workmen under automobile building conditions.

Production will be concentrated on three sizes, with prices competitive with the lowest priced trailers on the market today, it is stated.

Called the Pierce-Arrow Travelodge, the trailer has a new type of independent wheel suspension, Bendix hydraulic brakes and Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers as optional equipment, a new type safety hitch, floor construction sealed against seepage of dust or air and full-sized wheel housings.

The interior provides comfortable sleeping accommodations for four persons, complete kitchen and dinette, refrigerator, running water and shower bath, electric lights, adequate heating arrangements, cupboard, drawer and wardrobe space and other home conveniences.

Forged Aluminum Alloy in Chrysler Brake System Pistons

Forged aluminum is being used by the Chrysler Corporation, for the pistons in the hydraulic, brake system.

These pistons, which are of forged Bohnalite alloy, have the advantage of all of the strength possible through the use of a forging plus the advantage of lightness due to the use of the aluminum alloy.

It is highly important, Chrysler engineers point out, that the brake mechanism respond instantly to the pressure on the pedal. Consequently reciprocating parts used in the hydraulic brake system must be as light as possible yet have extreme reliability and strength.

The Bohnalite forging has been found to answer these two requirements.

Night Class Started On Plane Mechanics

The Robertson Aviation School at the St. Louis Municipal Airport is to open a night class in airplane and engine mechanics.

The course will cover aerodynamics, sheet metal, engines, assembly and rigging, air laws, welding, fabric and finishes and woodworking.

An evening course in meteorology and navigation will also be given. The night school will be under the supervision of Lieut. J. W. Geppert of the United States Naval Air Reserves.

The MOVIE WHIRL

By Margaret Niemeyer

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 15.

PARTIES, parties, parties. Hollywood needs only some sort of excuse to start the invitations off and this week saw several sufficient excuses. First there was the opening, downtown, of Tallulah Bankhead's new play, "Reflected Glory", which Mr. Lee Shubert sent 'way out here for a trial. Hollywood gets so few stage first nights —so few stage plays with original New York casts in fact—that this was a real event. Then, too, Tallulah had a fling at the movies a few years ago and while she scored no real hit and quit Hollywood in something of a huff, she made a lot of friends here so everyone turned out to give her a big hand.

The dinner parties preceded the show and turned right into supper parties and dances immediately afterwards. Of course, the preliminary events made some of cinema's favorites just a little late in arriving at the Belasco Theater and the show didn't wait for them as the movie premieres do. The late commers attracted plenty of attention, which, after all, may have been in their minds all the time, but the already seated part of the audience didn't seem to mind the distractions clothed, as they were, in the newest ermines and silver foxes.

—o-o—

Among the multitudinous dinner parties before the play's opening was one given by Director George Cukor, who is still rather fresh from his triumphs in movie-staging "Romeo and Juliet." Among the guests were the Irving Thalbergs (Norma Shearer), Marc Connelly, Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Gibbons (Dolores Del Rio), the John Considines Jr. (Carmen Pantages), the Gene Markeys (Joan Bennett), Merle Cheron and B. P. Schulberg. Josephine Hutchinson and Harold Hurley, Buddy Rogers —without Mary Pickford, Gail Patrick, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Dinehart, the Lionel Atwills and Francis Lederer.

This party stirred up considerable interest when it arrived at the theater, largely becasue it had been announced that George Kaufman would be one of the guests. But the crowd didn't see him.

—o-o—

● ANOTHER AFFAIR was given by Joan Blondell for Dick Powell, whom she is likely to marry almost any minute now, Dr. and Mrs. Joel Pressman (Claudette Colbert) and a few others while the Basil Rathbones entertained for Mrs. Eddy Duchin, Rufus Le Maire, Mr. and Mrs. George O'Brien (Marguerite Churchill) and the John Emersons (Anita Loos), Patricia Ellis and Fred Keating.

The music crowd turned out for the party which Lily Pons and Andre Kostelanetz gave at the Trocadero following their joint concert at the Hollywood Bowl. Mostly present were Los Angeles' foreign set but the movies were well represented by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Tibbett, Gladys Swarthout and her husband, Frank Chapman, Rosa Ponselle and Margaret Sullavan.

—o-o—

Which ought to be enough, for now, about social events. Let's get around to the studios and among the real studio folks for a bit. Just today I saw Virginia Bruce in the lunchroom on her lot where she had been making some new stills. I did not recognice her at first as she was wearing her dark glasses, but as she removed them to glance at the list of calories, I saw who it was and went over to speak to her. She was in a suit of printed silk in tones of red, a blouse of white handkerchief linen and a large black hat and red sandals. As she gave me her hand I noticed that she was wearing a platinum ring, studded all the way around with sapphires and diamonds, which she blushingly assured me meant absolutely nothing but that she happened to like it.

—o-o—

● ONE PERSON with whom married life certainly agrees is Myrna Loy, for although she was always lovely, she is now positively radiant. A few nights ago she was dining at the Trocadero with her husband, Arthur Hornblow, and I never saw her more beautiful. Myrna's gown was of black net over black crepe and was made with a two-tiered skirt having a short train. The low corsage was caught over the shoulders by narrow black straps and massed all across the front was a wide band of white tube roses. Her hair was done in regal style with a coronet braid across the front but brushed up into curls at the back. There were large flat pearl earrings in her ears and on one arm, almost hidden by a pearl bracelet, she showed me a brand new one, a charm bracelet formed of a slender

Grace Moore, who writes her own life story.

LIFE HAS BEEN EXCITING

Famous Singer Writes of Her Early Struggles and of Her Ambition to Follow in Footsteps of Mary Garden.

by Grace Moore

Miss Moore as she appeared in a recent talking picture.

JUST before I stepped into the choir stall of the First Baptist Church of Jellico, Tennessee, to sing my first solo, the minister noticed my very apparent nervousness and whispered to me—

"Grace, child, the Father above has given you a voice; sing today to His glory and don't be afraid..."

That understanding, kindly voice has rung in my consciousness ever since, and, in many dark moments, those words have saved me from discouragement, despair and defeat. I remembered them when I was penniless in New York . . . when, seemingly, I had lost my voice and never would sing professionally again . . . when I was tempted to throw overboard my greater ambitions and commercialize my career . . . when, lacking adequate background and training, I made my debut at the Metropolitan Opera House. . . .

I have always remembered them, and I have always sung from my heart. To that face, rather than to any profound technical skill, I owe success.

To most people, perhaps, my success lies in the actual achievement of the high places in my field—in the fact that I am an opera star, a screen star. In my estimation, those concrete achievements are, in themselves, only the tangible evidence of success. To me they are less important than the faith and courage which carried me through in the face of repeated disappointments. God gave me a voice—and the Metropolitan stood ready and waiting. I supplied the resolution and the effort which, combined, eventually took me there. I have cause to be grateful for many things, but for none am I more deeply thankful than for the right to say, truthfully:

"I have found stimulus in setbacks and joy in struggle—life has been exciting!"

I was a 16-year-old student in Ward-Belmont College of Nashville, Tenn., when I first decided that some day, somehow, I would be "a great opera singer." The ambition was born in my admiration for Mary Garden, who was then —and still is—my idol.

A national magazine—which one, I have forgotten—printed her autobiography. It was a vivid account of a glamorous career. Reading it, I felt her personality. It sparkled and flamed—and fired my own active imagination. She was a brilliant goddess, and the world in which she reigned, a place of almost incredible—and very desirable —romance. I was hungry for romance; for escape from the prosaic. Formerly, I had dreamed of going to China as a Baptist missionary; now, I began to sing to vast audiences in my day dreams.

● This is the first of three installments by Grace Moore, opera, screen and radio star, in which she traces her career from a choir singer in the First Baptist Church at Jellico, Tenn., to her present high place in the musical and entertainment world. The second installment will appear in next Sunday's Women's Magazine Section.

One memorable day, it was announced that Mary Garden would give a concert in Nashville, and that Ward-Belmont's music class would be taken, en masse, to hear and to meet her. I have never been more excited.

Finally, the great night arrived, and, during her concert, I sat spellbound, completely enthralled by the glory of her voice and the magic of her personality. I think no other artist has ever been able to "reach" an audience so effectively.

After the concert, we were escorted—some 20 of us, dressed in our primmest frocks—back stage, to meet Miss Garden. We were cautioned to be very quiet, not to talk to the great diva, not to crowd too close.

But, when I saw Mary Garden, I sensed her innate friendliness. I forgot every warning, broke away from the group, rushed to her, threw my arms around her and exclaimed:

"I love you, Miss Garden. Some day, I'm going to be a great singer, too!"

She looked at me quizzically and laughed, but her voice was very sympathetic:

"I hope you will be a very great singer, my dear. I'm sure you're pretty enough to sing."

And I walked back to the school in a daze. It was somewhat disconcerting to have one's day dreams so suddenly crystallized into a definite, all-consuming ambition.

To Mary Garden, of course, the however, it meant the dawn of a incident meant nothing. To me, new and purposeful life. Had she been less gracious, I would have been deeply hurt, and, in the hurt, my ambition might have died at birth. Instead, she was kind.

—o-o—

HOW often lives are influenced and their courses changed by such contacts. Young ambition, almost invariably, is inspired by hero worship. Certainly, those of us who already have won success should always be careful not to dash the enthusiasm of those who are dreaming of success.

During the following summer, my father and I quarrelled. Ostensibly, our argument was rooted in the choice of a school. He wanted me to attend one of the excellent colleges nearby. I was determined to go to the Wilson-Green School of Music in Washington, D. C.

Actually, I was fighting, not for one certain school, but for my first step toward the realization of my ambition. I had set my heart on the stage and the opera, and wisely, I kept my own counsel.

Jellico, Tenn., with horizons limited by the mountains that encircle it, did not approve of the stage or of anything akin to the stage, and my father, though more broadminded than most, shared that particular prejudice.

One evening, our argument flared so high that I decided—with proper enjoyment of the melodramatic—to run away. After the others of our family had retired, I packed my

The STYLE PARADE

By Sylvia Stiles

HOW to keep cool and look smart at the same time is no small task in the summer time in St. Louis, but there are many women who seem to accomplish this dual achievement. In August their problems are increased because they are thinking about autumn and becoming a little bored with their warm weather clothes. Dark fashions have a distinct appeal and there's something about the alliance of navy, brown or black with white which gives the wearer a very chic appearance.

With more people back at home after early summer vacations, the various gathering places of well-dressed folk have become more interesting. Even the shopping centers are emerging from their coma as smartly attired shoppers are preparing for a new style season.

Always well groomed and beautifully costumed, Mrs. Adalbert von Gontard has returned home and is contributing to the fashion importance of any event which she attends. She was seen on a recent evening in a most becoming navy and white ensemble that looked quite cool but at the same time was very flattering. Her frock was a simple model of navy crepe dotted with white, over which she wore a short white jacket, fitted at the waistline and having cape-like sleeves. Her hat was navy dotted with white, the sailor brim at the back by a bandeau covered with navy and white dotted quills Her gloves were white and her bag navy, while her tailored bow-trimmed pumps and hosiery were of the London tan shade.

BLACK LINEN is being worn extensively by those who are exponents of the late summer chic of black, but who also want to be comfortable. Mrs. E. M. Connor, for example, has a shirtwaist frock of the black linen which is very good-looking. She wore it a few days ago with a black and white dotted scarf tucked into the neckline. Her black hat had the forward, square-cut brim which designers are using so much for autumn. Pleats at either side of the brim give it added distinction.

There is the navy sheer dress which also is a favorite with St. Louis women to bridge the season, I saw Mrs. Joseph L. Weiner in a cleverly styled one that will look as smart in September as it does in August. This had some features of the shirtwaist frock but added certain dressy details. It was scalloped from the front of the neckline to the hem of the skirt and fastened with flat, black buttons. Narrow Valenciennes lace was gathered quite full to edge the scallops and also the scalloped collar. Sleeves were set into a shaped yoke and were quite full, giving a cape appearance to shoulder line. An inverted pleat at the center of the back was released at the knees and there were pleats at either side of the front. Rhinestone ornamentation enhanced the belt. A navy felt hat with the new high crown and navy pumps did their part toward emphasizing the smartness of the costume.

OBVIOUSLY NEW and a forerunner of the autumn season was the black satin frock which Miss Florence Louise Carter chose for dancing at the Hotel Chase roof a few nights ago. The fabric was dotted with white and trimmed with white grosgrain. The white ribbed silk finished the high neckline and was tied at the front, where a rhinestone clip held it in place. The kimono sleeves, which were short, had turned-back cuffs of the silk. The skirt was made with a short and slightly flared tunic with a tight fitting foundation. Miss Carter's black ribbed silk beret was quite large and trimmed with four bows held with rhinestone circles. Her pumps were of black patent leather.

THE CANDLELIGHT House has been a popular spot for summer luncheons and almost any day an attractively dressed group or two will be found there. One foursome included Mrs. A. L. Knudstad, whose white wool challis frock was interestingly trimmed with dubonnet, the deep red shade forming a fringed edging extending over the shoulders and around the hemline. Her panama hat had a dark banding and her footwear was white.

Mrs. Philip Sandell, who was in the same party, had on a peach-colored shantung dress, quite tailored in style but given a sports-like flair with a dotted scarf at the round neckline and a wide belt of the same dotted material. Square buttons fastened the front of the blouse. Sleeves had that familiar peaked top which is synonomous with style this summer and the skirt had two pleats at the front. All of the accessories were white and included a white felt hat with

by Martha Carr

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advise on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE read your column every day and have gotten much good out of it. I cannot solve my own problem and hope you will help.

A certain married man and I have been very much in love for years. But there has only been a friendship between us, but not a close friendship as we just met too late in life. We both understand this. He has a lovely family and, so far as I know, he is a loyal father and husband. And I respect him the more for it. But I did not know his real feelings for me until lately. I recently met a nice man and started going with him. Then this other man met me on the street and told me how much it hurt him, that I must not go out with anyone else, though I do not go out with him.

I do not think I should be asked to give up this other man; which may lead to marriage. I work hard for a living, and a home and congenial companionship would mean so much to me. Many thanks.

B. K.

Unless you are willing to bury, absolutely, the feeling you have for the married man, and keep entirely out of the way of temptation, you have no right to accept this man's offer of marriage as a mere matter of convenience. The man who is married doesn't think it necessary to sacrifice anything for you; yet he coolly asks you to give up everyone else.

To me, both of you are very calculating and I should not say you are actuated by the highest motives ever known.

—o—o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

● I am going to come right to the point, because I need advice more than something to eat. I am, as usual, in love. That seems always to be my problem—but this is real, real love; so real that it is making a lunatic out of me. And the boy is such a real person, so straight and so honest. The worst of it is I have no right to be in love with him; he gave me no reason. He only wanted to be my friend and go out frequently together. But I had to spoil it all by falling in love with him.

Mrs. Carr, I don't know how to tell you this without using up the whole writing tablet. The truth is, this boy says he was once in love and he "threw it away;" now he has only memories. She is dead. He feels he wants the companionship of girls and friends among them. But I cannot be just a friend because I love him. I am not asking you how to win him, but how to forget him. His face is always before me. Mrs. Carr, can't you help me? I am 19 and he is 25.

SILLY GIRL.

Judging from the beginning of your letter, being in love is your chronic state and, that being the case, you probably will not pass away because of this man. Someone else will come along and if he it not too easy to get, he will distract your attention from the young man you now adore. But, stranger things have happened—the young man's friendship may turn to love, if you do not try to make such haste. Why cannot you show yourself a good friend first and await developments? Men have been known to make resolutions before that, gradually, have been swept away by the admiration of some new woman friend whom they grew to love.

Show that you have some versatility and self-possession. Let him alone about love for a while!

—o—o—

Dear Martha Carr:

I am secretly married; have been for two years. My husband is at home with his mother and I with my folks.

Now, Mrs. Carr, I am thoroughly displeased with this arrangement, as we are both forgetting our rights and the sacredness of marriage. The trouble is that his mother won't let him leave, so he can make a home for me, which I think I am entitled to.

What would you suggest doing, fighting for my happiness, which means everything to us or let it go as a bad bargain?

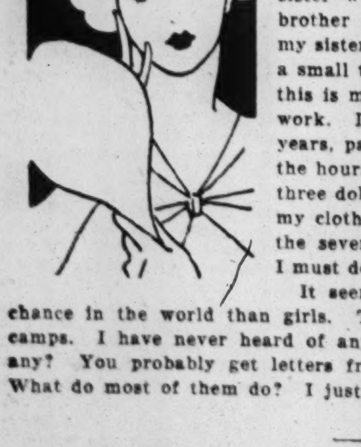
MRS. B. C. O'R.

And does it happen that your husband's mother is supporting him? If so, and he has not the backbone to get out and make a living for himself and his wife, or if he cannot do the fighting for your sake and is just a weak-kneed "mamma's boy," I think you would better count it a bad bargain.

—o—o—

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

● I have been wanting to write you for some time to see whether you can help me or solve my problem in some way.



I am a girl 17 years old. My home is on a farm. I have two brothers and one sister who are staying home now. One brother is older than I. The other and my sister are younger. I do housework in a small town near home. But, Mrs. Carr, this is my problem: I do not like housework. I have done it for the past three years, part of the time in St. Louis. But the hours are longer, for one thing. I get three dollars a week here, which just buys my clothes and that is all. It is through the severe drouth and consequences that I must do this work.

It seems to me boys have a lot more chance in the world than girls. They can join the Army or CCC camps. I have never heard of any such place for girls. Is there any? You probably get letters from other country girls my age. What do most of them do? I just have an eighth grade education.

S. M. G.

There is no reason why you cannot find things to interest you and work to do in your spare time which will have a bearing upon your future. If you expect to remain where you are, I suggest that you try for more education through a correspondence course. And you will have more time for study there, doing the sort of work you are doing than in a city. You would not be getting so much more in city work and would not live as well. If you would like my suggestions, "Occupations for Women," send me self addressed, stamped envelope.

There are no CCC camps for girls.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

FROM AD WRITER to STAR COLUMNIST

Alice Hughes Makes Her Knowledge of Women and Styles Pay Dividends Through Her Newspaper Work in New York.

By DOROTHY COLEMAN

ALICE HUGHES

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.

ALICE HUGHES, whose column "A Woman's New York" appears in the Post-Dispatch, may not know the difference between boiling and poaching an egg but she certainly knows her New York, and furthermore she has her own idea of what the "new" in it stands for.

Into the boiling water she slid another egg for her sick husband who had asked for poached ones, and elaborated on how she had just picked up a usable tid-bit for her column. It was on her way home from luncheon, the first courses of which were taken with a fashion group on whose fall show committee she is serving, and the last courses with the style editor of a national weekly, a big yarn company executive, and a jewelry salesman. She had her copy to write and deliver to a newspaper office before she took off for a showing of new fur styles. And the tid-bit went into "A Woman's New York" for the next day.

It was about how real, mounted butterflies were going to be worn this fall in the hair and on the shoulders. And she got the news from a wholesale florist friend, whom she happened to meet when she was bound, hot-footed, for her apartment at Park avenue and Thirty-eighth street. But for human interest she tied the butterflies up with the bettle scourge which caused her hostess no end of misery last week-end in New Jersey.

"I get out of New York every week-end," said Miss Hughes, with a suspicion of fatigue in her small voice, "but when I'm here my days are hectic. You want to know what a typical day is like? Well, you've had a glimpse of one already."

—o-o—

WE had met by appointment at 5:30 at a wholesale jewelry concern, where she talked to the salesman about the importance of jewelry with this season's styles, and then we rushed across town to her apartment where a young soap sculptor, Lester Gaba, formerly of Hannibal, Mo., was awaiting her on business. Miss Hughes had been up since 7:30.

"The mailman wakes me in the morning," she said. "Incidentally, a good deal of my material comes in by mail. This morning I worked on some syndicate copy and delivered it. Then I had to go way down-town to answer a summons in police court for parking overtime."

She drives a small coupe now, with a broken mixing bowl, green, on the back ledge.

Usually she goes to the harbor to meet incoming celebrities and swap stories with the captains, "like a regular little sand-piper."

The day may finish with a round of the night clubs, because she has to see what people are wearing, and also because she likes it. Or she may go to the theater with her husband, Leonard Hall, former dramatic critic on the New York World-Telegram, now writing for national magazines. Or she may even feel obliged to attend a society function, as painful as they are to her.

This evening, however, she was just to be at home, in her gray and chromium apartment, which seemed as remote from New York as the back room of a Portland place mansion. A gray carpet silenced footsteps, the photomural of snow flowers above the white mantelpiece gave the illusion of coolness, heightened by indirect lighting, and the closed piano showed no signs of ever having jiggled to chopsticks. The constant ringing of the telephone for "Alice" was the sole reminder that we were in the center of the city of skyscrapers. A tiered stand of blue grass, and a cigarette set to match were the only colors in the living room, until Miss Hughes brought in a long-necked blue vase to hold an African daisy which Gaba had brought her.

We had supper of tomato juice, baked ham, stilton cheese packed in port, and fresh peaches, in the kitchen—the three of us.

Lester Gaba is a good friend of Miss Hughes' and friends are the only hobby she has time for. Some of them are newspaper people, many of them are in trades related to her work, and several of them are artists and writers.

"I have to rely on them for my culture now, second-hand," she said, making another trip from the refrigerator to the cupboard. "I believe that you can imbibe learning through them just as we used to in college through books. By the time I get through all the city papers and trade journals I have to keep up with, I haven't time to do the kind of reading I would like. Perhaps when I am old and doddering. I can go back to books."

It is hard to visualize the columnist as anything but perennially young. "A fifteenth century Madonna" someone has called her. And she is precisely that in appearance, with raven-black hair rolled back high off her forehead and ears, in the latest coiffure. Her eyes are as black and shiny as shoe-buttons. When we exchanged personal descriptions to facilitate our meeting, she said there was nothing distinctive about her. But that's not true. She was by far the smartest woman, in size 14, that we saw that day among thousands of smart women. Her chic hat would have set necks to craning on any Main street. It was of Kelly green wool draped with a knot in the crown which looked like a cross between a Phrygian cap and something a Venetian doge might have worn to a ceremony in the cathedral. The green of her turban picked up the color in her green and red-figured dress of black wool challis, and was repeated in the green and black leather bag she carried. Even her gloves of a multi-colored net harmonized with her outfit, which was completed by black lizard strap slippers.

Miss Hughes believes stoutly that a woman who makes proper use of cosmetics is rendering a real service to this ugly old world, but uses few herself. Carmen rouge on her thin lips relieves the pallor of her white face, with its high-cheek bones, and interesting shadows which no camera has caught, either to her satisfaction or to that of her editors.

One of her friends up at the wholesale jewelry office called Miss Hughes "a symbol, that belongs in a museum, because she is an expert in so many fields and because she is the kindest person in the world." and because she is the dean of women columnists."

—o-o—

WHEN they were skeptical about women writers in general and free advertising in particular, Alice Hughes sold the editors of the New York World-Telegram on the idea of a column for women. That was in 1928. She carried on there until two years ago, then went to work for Hearst on the American and started to syndicate her copy. From time to time she has written articles on personalities in the fashion world or travel adventures for national magazines, and may some day write a book. With a little reticence, she confessed that she is working now on some short stories.

"Two will be finished after five or six more drafts; the third will take a few more. Then I hope to send them off and have them published. One is about a man, another about an old woman, and another about a young girl. Yes, you might say they are actual characters, at least composite ones, with some of myself thrown in." But as for allowing her columns to be collected and published—no, emphatically no. There's no use, she believes, in perpetuating writings that were meant to be transitory.

She talks with as much ease as she appears to write, and with a knowledge of many subjects. One minute she will cite you the population of Manchester, N. H., her birthplace, before and after the collapse of the textile industry, and the next she will explain how the "Roosevelt revolution" is doing for this country what the rebels, or the Loyalists, or whoever it is, are trying to accomplish in Spain.

—o-o—

AMONG many thrills on her round-the-world travels, the most exciting interview she ever had, she believes, was with Trotsky, who was then in exile from Russia on the tiny island of Prinkipo off Turkey. She was the last newspaper person he saw before Turkey exiled him to France. He gave her a corking good story, in French, with a sarcastic estimate of what would happen when the world powers got together in the London Economic Conference opening that day. "The thing that made it exciting was that I was headed for Russia to do a series of articles, and everyone told me that I wouldn't get past the border if the officials found out I had been to see Trotsky. I had sent ahead a letter of introduction from Max Eastman, Trotsky's translator in this country, and when I arrived I telephoned his secretary for an appointment.

"I was sure there was spies all around me in the telephone booth and positive of it when I was cut off in the middle of our conversation. I was terrified. And so was the correspondent from a German paper in the next booth. He was also trying to get Trotsky's secretary and our calls had crossed."

Modestly Miss Hughes gives "the friends who have befriended her" credit for the ace-high position she holds now. The fact that she is a graduate of the Columbia University School of Journalism may have something to do with her ability to hang onto it in spite of increasing competition.

As an undergraduate she fell under the spell of the spell-binding Walter Pitkin, of "Life Begins at Forty" fame. She even helped him index some of his previous books and read copy on several. Otherwise, she says, she did not distinguish herself in the university.

—o-o—

WHEN she was a youngster in Manchester, one of Col. Frank Knox's editors encouraged her to write stories for the local paper, and first interested her in journalism. But because there was more money in advertising, she started in that branch of writing as soon as she received her Columbia degree. For five or six years she turned out fashion copy, and then became chief fashion copy-writer at Macy's. "It was really my friends who forced me into doing a column after that, because my stories about what went on behind the scenes in that incredible store amused them so. It got so that I felt as if the only reason anyone asked me anywhere was to hear more Macy stories." Then came the job on the World-Telegram, where eventually she started "A Woman's New York."

Miss Hughes would have one think that she has no taste for anything any more, because there can be no selection in her activities. It's not that she is blase, because there is as much spirit in her personally as there is in her writing. It's just that it's a little hard to analyze fall jewelry trends; sample the latest perfumes; advise a corsetiere about the season's new lines; inspire a young painter; find a different job for a friend who owes her present position to Miss Hughes; arrange to make things pleasant with the ship's captain for another friend who is sailing for Europe—it's a little hard, she says, to do such a variety of things with enough leisure to enjoy any one of them.

"Periodically I make a stab at living a normal life with some order to it, but I always end up in the same hodge-podge. Last winter, for example, I tried to adopt a little boy and that didn't work. He didn't belong in this sort of environment. He is a dear child, four now, a kind of distant relative of mine. I still take care of him financially, but he stays with a family in Massachusetts.

"I own some land on Martha's Vineyard, but I've never got 'round to building a summer home on it.

"I can't even have pets, because I think it is cruel to confine a dog or cat in a New York apartment. Besides, Beatrice Matthew—B. M. of the New Yorker—cured me of that. She stayed with me once on her return from Paris, and brought her three Scotties along."

Fringe Trimming For Fall Dresses

CAN you remember when everything from lampshades and draperies to sashes of daytime dresses had to be trimmed with fringe to be considered stylish?

The lampshades and the draperies haven't shown any decided return to the vogue but the dresses for autumn have. A stunning and most sophisticated evening gown seen in an advance collection in a St. Louis shop has a deep flounce of black fringe circling the skirt of black dull crepe while fringe that is equally as wide outlines the low cut back of the bodice. Another uses knotted fringe to trim a deep cape which gives the dress a certain Spanish flavor.

Daytime dresses, too, are including the fringed theme in their decorations. One tunic model of black satin, for example, has narrow fringe at the edge of the tunic and another touch of it at the neckline. Another has it running from the center front from neckline to hem to suggest a fluffy vestee.

Changing Themes

The creators of women's fashions know that much of their success depends upon their inconsistency. As a result they take delight in turning the tables and presenting daytime themes for evening and evening themes for daytime. One of their achievements for autumn is the presentation of formal evening clothes made of woolen materials.

Included in the list of woolen evening fashions are dinner frocks of jersey in jeweled tones such as gold and amythest, quite strikingly trimmed with suede. Broadcloth is another of their popular materials. It appears in very sheer weights so is suitable for draped gowns as well as for luxurious full length wraps.

Discarded oilcloth makes a splendid wall pocket to hang on the door of the broom cupboard, to hold dusters, cleaning cloths, brushes and so forth. Make good, big pockets with a plea at the bottom of each, bind with cretonne and nail upon the door.

ST. LOUIS' only relic of the days of the horse car is stored in the car barn at Jefferson and La Salle streets. It is so well boarded up that only pokes and peeks give you ideas on transportation in other days. We saw longitudinal seats (each with an eight-person capacity) lining the car's interior . . . saw that it was a one-horse (or mule) car and was built with a rear entrance directly opposite the conductor's box.

Pokes and peeks, we decided, may give you ideas, but they don't give facts. So we headed toward the Public Service Co. office at Thirty-ninth and Park streets to learn more about it.

We were directed to the information department. No information there, so we continued on to the reference department. Again nothing, so on to the mechanics' department. And from there to the research office of George Owen, where we finally got our material. Material that amounted to the fact the car is stored.

Why is it being kept? Because it is the only one left of the number operated in the latter part of the last century in St. Louis. All others were junked.

This one, being saved, is of the "bobtail" design; called so because it has no platform. Passengers boarded at the end door, walked to the front to deposit their fares. If the car were crowded, the nickel was passed from hand to hand, the last person on the end seat dropping it in the box.

Built in 1875 and used until the last horse car routing in 1895, on Jefferson avenue, it is brought out only on special occasions. The last time was in September, 1926, when the dusty corners were dug out, polish spread and wheels oiled—all for the Greater St. Louis Exposition at Forest Park. It was locked up for another day and hasn't shown its front since!

STIRRING episode in the life of a housewife:

At Manchester and Jefferson the other day the street car stuttered into a stop and, after two passengers boarded, a frantic woman, portly and red-faced, called up the steps to the conductor:

"Any pocket book, black, reported on your car?"

A "No, lady," sent her into a mumbled explanation about her house key being in it, supper to get, etc., etc. He closed the door and proceeded. I got out at the next corner, just to see what housewives do when they don't have keys. We've often been without ours—but we're no housewife, either.

Walking back to her, I stood in the background, and for the next few cars heading from town toward City Limits, she repeated her act.

A final mumble, hardly discernable, about "my husband will complain about no supper again," and off she started, hoofing it home minus the key. But before leaving she tossed off an eloquent remark:

At Manchester and Jefferson the other day the street car stuttered into a stop and, after two passengers boarded, a frantic woman, portly and red-faced, called up the steps to the conductor:

"Any pocket book, black, reported on your car?"

A "No, lady," sent her into a mumbled explanation about her house key being in it, supper to get, etc., etc. He closed the door and proceeded. I got out at the next corner, just to see what housewives do when they don't have keys. We've often been without ours—but we're no housewife, either.

Walking back to her, I stood in the background, and for the next few cars heading from town toward City Limits, she repeated her act.

A final mumble, hardly discernable, about "my husband will complain about no supper again," and off she started, hoofing it home minus the key. But before leaving she tossed off an eloquent remark:

CLOSE-UP of ST. LOUIS FASHIONS

Black Suede Shoes Smart For Fall Wear

Already Beginning to Make Their Appearance in Fashionable Sets.

BLACK SUEDE shoes are already registering and will be seen frequently when early autumn clothes are worn. For daylight dining on a smart roof, one woman wears an open sandal made of strips of black suede with one horizontal strip of the suede over the other wise open heel. Another shoe has straps of black antelope joined to black patent. It has a T-strap.

—o-o—

DAYTIME DRESSES, destined for first autumn days, are already in stock. A smart model is in gray, red and green-plaided woolen, in a soft, light weave. The skirt has the plaid worked on the bias. The belted blouse is on jumper lines, trimmed with velveteen which edges the gauntlet cuffs and makes an Ascot scarf. Another frock is a coat-frock model done in gray crepe frosted with rabbit's hair. High revers, jacquard vestee pockets and flaring sleeves are other details.

—o-o—

SLEEVES HAVE received much attention from fur coat and cape stylists and designers, so this year's crop of fur garments shows a radical change from any preciously shown. Although the swagger coat still registers, there is a greater emphasis on the fitted coat. An advance model is in natural brown Persian lamb with deep armholes marked by tucks and seams of the fur. The fitted tunic-like silhouette is beltless. A high upstanding collar shows the dropped shoulder line.

—o-o—

MIDSEASON millinery includes some very wearable brimmed hats in felt, satin and heavy-ribbed silk. A smart model is in stitched black satin, the brim cut and dipped in back, conforming to the triangular crown. There is a rickrack edge to the brim. Another hat is of black felt, the brim faced with cobalt blue suede, which is the color of the quill. This model is one of the new long-front bretons. Very colorful is a red felt turban, trimmed with purple grapes, and a veil which ties in a big bow in back.

—o-o—

AT ALL fur fashion showings capes seem to be more important than fur coats. Capes in every type of fur, flat and fluffy, costly and cheap, long and short, are in the mode. And every woman seems to be determined to add at least one model to her wardrobe, judging by the reports from the fur people. Ermine capes are always beautiful and popular, but now the snowy ermine has a rival in the sleek, white broadtail cape. A charming model, hip length, is of white broadtail with very shirred shoulders that are squared, and a little upstanding collar caught by a jeweled chain. All ermine cape is split in back and worn in radiating effect in back where it is tied with casual ends made of ermine.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

"He can't blame it on bridge today!"

—o-o—

NO WOMAN who has passed the Laclede Gas and Light windows on Olive street, with the foods display, has failed to wonder just what does happen to the cakes, cookies, puddings, and other cooked stuff, when they are replaced with fresh delicacies.

Mary Louise Hurster, director of the test kitchen where the foods are prepared, distributes them to the five Negro women who work in the building. No food is too stale for them. If cakes are terrifically hard, the women remove the sweet icing, use it in their coffee, and make a sauce for the cakes. Even the waffles are spoken for.

So in case you are moved to ask the same question we did, here you are—with the answers.

—o-o—

HEARING IT rumored they were, we decided to investigate ourselves. No, sir, those anteriums are not out of the fad line yet. In fact, one of the larger department stores has reordered a gross . . . for the third time this summer.

The anteriums, you know, are encased ant houses, got up like framed pictures, only glass on both sides. They come in various sizes, beginning with the 5 by 5-inch size.

Originating at the Educational Laboratories in Denver, only two or three months ago, they've taken the country.

Fed daily quantities of sugar and water through a pinhole in the top of the frame, the ants build up and tear down tunnels in their homes, work incessantly—for what, we don't know. And there is no possible means of escape. Packed and sealed safely in Denver, the frames are removed from the crates immediately when they arrive here. The ants are then fed and set up, ready for action for St. Louisans.

A lot of them are sold to doctors for their offices; to mothers with restless children; to restaurants; to young people on the look-out for new hobbies, and just recently, to teachers who are making out play and nature study schedules for their pupils of this coming year.

COSTUME BLOUSES for FALL WEAR

By PRUNELLA WOOD

WITH a new suit season coming along, new blouses are flooding the shops. The drawing, top right, suggests a new ensemble diversion worked out in the shops, which is to combine a gay colored blouse with a tweed skirt which is flecked with color to match the blouse.

—o-o—

AS MOST flecked tweeds carry more than one color in their pattern, a variety of blouses will make quite a wardhobe when worn with one basic skirt. The herringbone gray tweed skirt shown, for instance, has red and yellow flecks as well as the green, and blouses can be got to match all three colors.

—o-o—

SUCH a trick will come in handy for city women who go to business, for it offers the ideal way of turning a fall topcoat into a good ensemble. But the other two blouses sketched show the proper thing to wear with afternoon suits. We'll be seeing much of the black suit, made with lots of fur, treated as a fabric, or of wool trimmed with fur. Either the black satin or the bois de rose satin are bent for alliance with such suits, a variant of the lame blouse which will shortly make its appearance, if history remains faithful to us.

ST. LOUIS STYLE PARADE

a high crushed crown and a jaunty feather, white bag and white shoes.

Another attractive color scheme was displayed by Mrs. Robert Blessing whose pink silk frock had a pastel blue yoke. The tone of blue was repeated in the wide revers which adorned her pink jacket. White hat, gloves, bag and shoes were the most suitable that could have been chosen for this ensemble.

Mrs. Ralph Randall, the guest of honor at the luncheon because she is moving from St. Louis to Oklahoma City, looked cool in a becoming frock of printed batiste in which a green and white alliance predominated. The yoke was fagotted and trimmed with lace. Sleeves were gathered full at the shoulders and ended above the elbows. A brown hat and brown and white footwear were noted.

—o-o—

ANOTHER exponent of those lovely imported, printed batistes that have returned to popularity this summer after an absence of several years was observed in another luncheon party. This was Mrs. Walter Bode whose flower tones were vivid. Her dress showed fine handiwork in the form of embroidered batiste and Valenciennes lace although it was of the shirtwaist type. A dark straw hat repeated a tone of the flowers.

Observed among the well-dressed women downtown shopping for early fall attire was Mrs. James E. Harris of the Park Plaza. Her two-piece boucle frock had a very lacy overblouse and a corded sash which tied at the side with long tassel ends. Her white felt hat had a becoming high crown and a casual brim turned up at the side back. It was trimmed with brown as were her white spectator sports pumps.

—o-o—

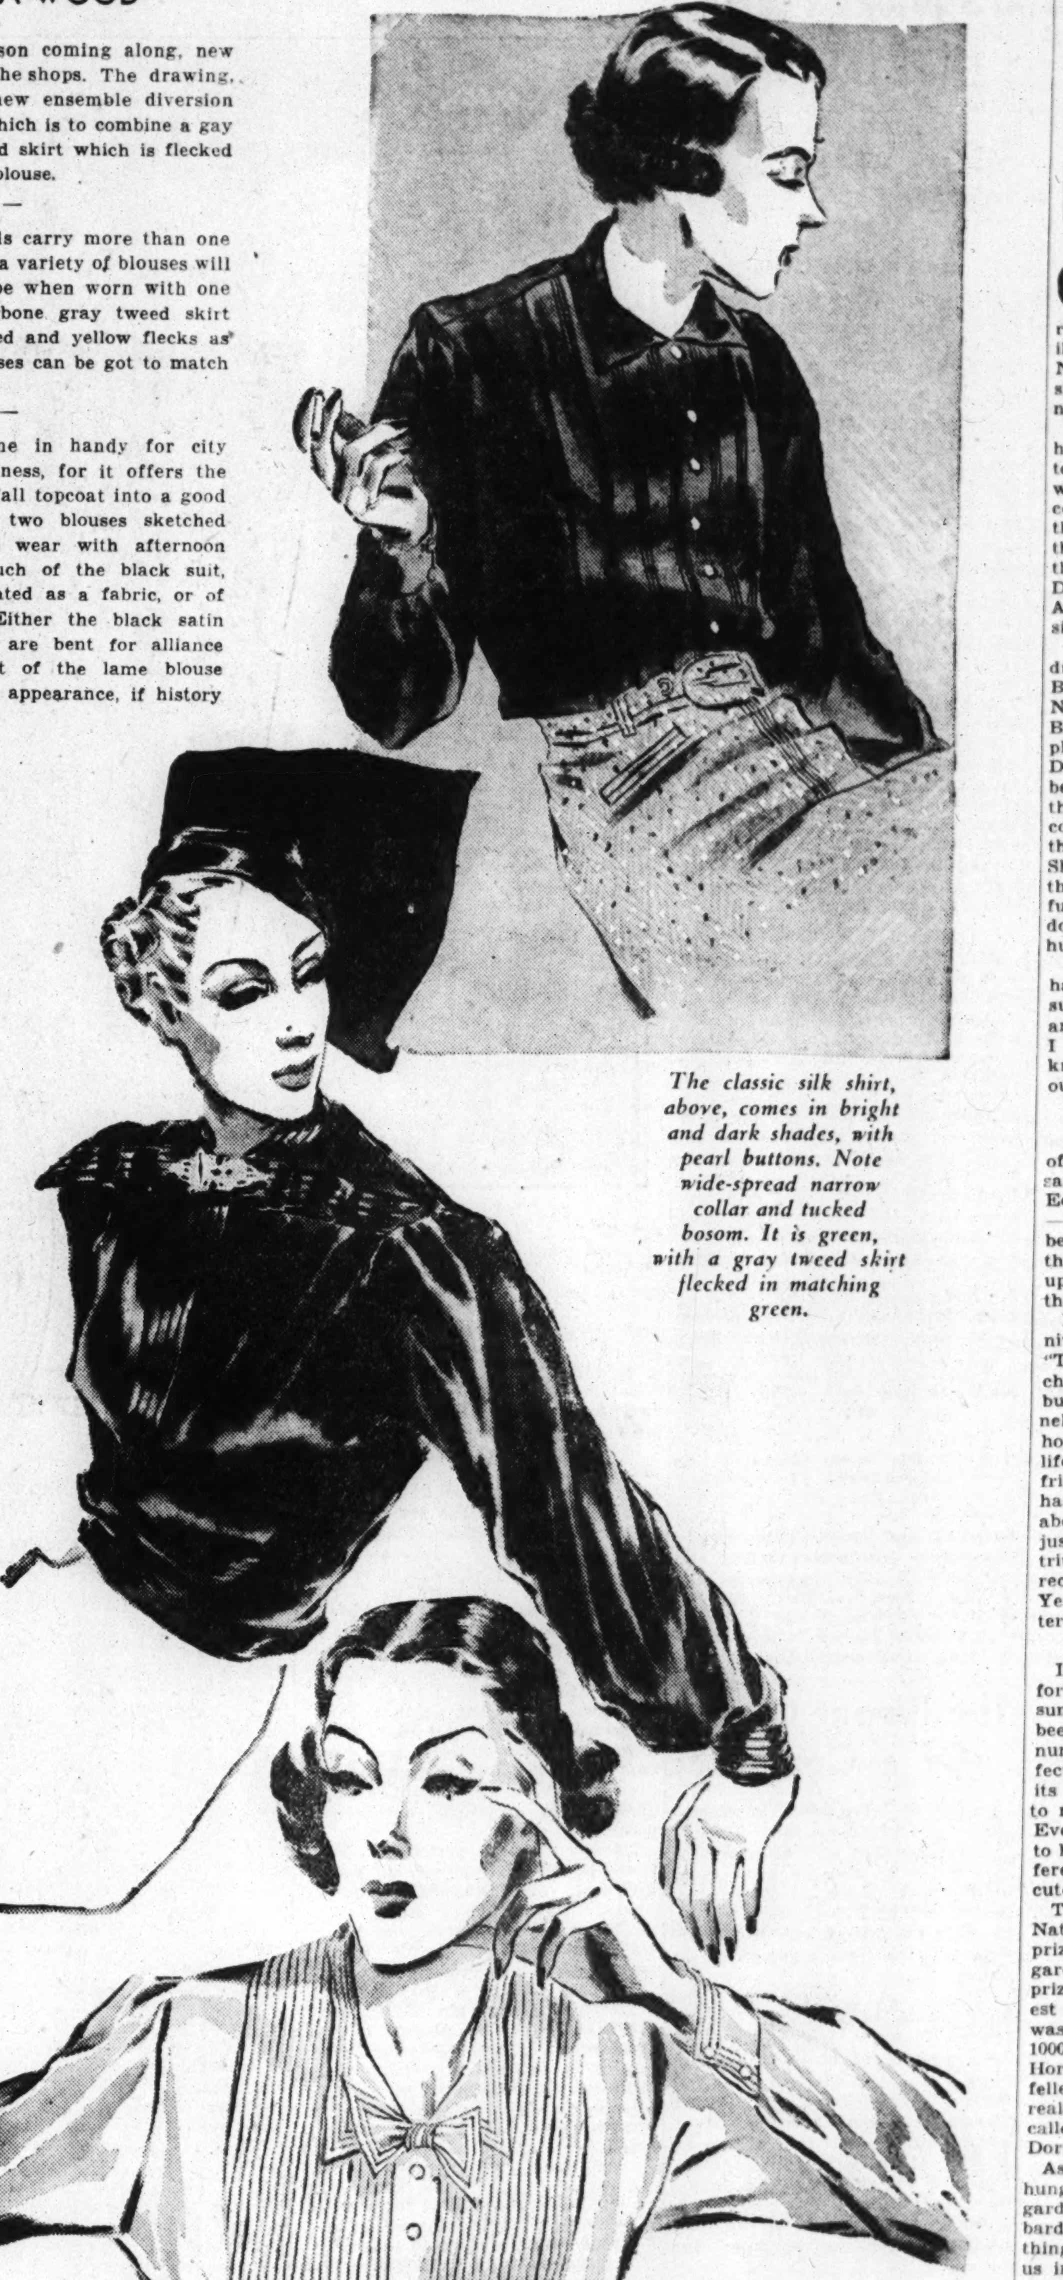
AND LAST, but not least, the most dramatic evening frock of the week, combined royal blue moire with American beauty velveteen. Miss Amelia Jackson appeared in it at the Chase roof. The frock was made with a lingerie type of bodice the top of which was finished with a four-inch bias flange. Four tiny straps went over either shoulder. The skirt stressed back fullness and added a tiny bustle effect made of varicolored flowers, poppies the most dominant. A short cape of the American beauty colored velveteen was quite military in appearance with its square shoulders and standing collar stitched allover. Slippers matched the tone of the dress.

Fur Capes

A fur cape which is knee length and has a very wide shoulder line is one of the smartest wraps to appear in the advance styles suggested for next winter. The shoulders are padded so that there is a slight upward curve over the top of the arm, thus giving height as well as width to the silhouette.

A little collar which may be worn standing to frame the face or turned down in a soft Peter Pan roll is a chic feature of this wrap as is the large metal button fastening with a corded loop. Several different furs are recommended for this model, among the most striking being mole and sealskin.

Celery which has become wilted may be freshened by standing in a jug of water to which a pinch of bicarbonate of soda has been added.



The classic silk shirt, above, comes in bright and dark shades, with pearl buttons. Note wide-spread narrow collar and tucked bosom. It is green, with a gray tweed skirt flecked in matching green.

The blouse, center, is formal black satin with cording details at wrist and front, at upstanding collar, and forming the wide neckline bow. Above, a bois de rose color satin blouse with finely pleated bosom and pearl button trim. Note the deeper V neckline.

Blouses

If you are looking for a conservative autumn blouse consider the vogue of tie silk types which have high colors and interesting color schemes. If you want something that is arresting, don't overlook the vogue of waistcoats in contrasting fabrics. The style of waistcoat which has a back of silk material and the front vest section of a bright colored woolen is one of the sensations of the new fashion season. The sleeves do their part toward the novelty of the garment by being designed with livery technique.

Thin Blacks

Thin blacks are expected to register for town wear during September, when days are very often as hot as any in July or August. So choose your thin sheer with care, making it a tunic model if you would be in the fashion picture. A dress that is smart is a short-sleeved model in tucked black net with bandings of black satin, a wide black patent belt and rhinestone buttons. A charming model for afternoon wear is of tucked marquisette with white lace applique making the collar, marking the deep armholes and stretching down the front of the skirt.

Satin Bands On Fall Skirts

ALTHOUGH women have decided to be strictly feminine in their choice of styles for autumn they cannot resist the theft of a few fashion points from men's clothes.

An outstanding one is the use of the satin stripe which appears down the side of men's evening trousers as a trimming on fall skirts. The satin band appears on skirts of dull crepe and also on those of woolen which is smooth finished and suggests old-fashioned broadcloth.

To make the theme less mannish, some of the frocks carry the stripe through the blouse as well as the skirt, making it an outstanding trimming note. The top of the sleeves often has a contrasting section running from the shoulder to the wrist as does the center front of the blouse.

When next you buy suet, melt it in the oven, and then pour into jars. When cold it is more easily shredded, and will keep much longer.

If you burn your fingers, or wrists while cooking—as what woman doesn't occasionally, when she is in a hurry—dab the burned spot generously with butter or lard.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.

ONE of the most perfect movie stories that ever happened to a couple of young folks has just reached culmination here—and it illustrates so well the traditional New York point of view that it should be preserved in one day's newspaper copy.

William Moegelin had a sweetheart named Florence. They went to the same high school, and they were so much in love that they just couldn't live without each other, so they up and ran away together. By the strangest of possible chances, they bought a movie raffle ticket in Denver—and won a $25,000 house! And what has happened to them since?

Just the other day the two children moved into a tiny flat in Brooklyn—the sort that most young New York married folks inhabit. Bill has a job now, and the two plastered a $5000 mortgage on the Denver establishment until it could be sold. When it is, they will have their little flat and a nice bank account—and each other, which was the main idea in the first place. She gets his orange juice ready in the morning, and then dusts and fusses around the house, while he does the daily duties of a young husband.

Such a story couldn't possibly happen—but it did. And the results have been just as perfect, and as amazing, as the event itself. I think people always ought to know how these mad things turn out—if they do!

—o-o—

ONLY THE OTHER day a few of us celebrated the tenth anniversary of the day that Gertrude Ederle—our "Trudy" of the Bronx—swam the English Channel and became the most famous girl of the hour. Her ticker-tape welcome up Broadway set a new high for the time.

But how different the tenth anniversary of that record feat. Now "Trudy" sits all day in an armchair, crippled by a fall. The cruel buffeting she received in the Channel deafened her. There is little hope or pleasure in big Gertrude's life. An occasional visit from old friends, and the big scrapbooks she has kept devotely, these things about make up her existence. And just a decade ago she rode in triumph in a cloud of ticker-tape to receive the freedom of the city. Yes—life does strange, and even terrible, things to people!

IT NEVER seems to be too hot for poets in New York, and this summer the sweet singers have been at it again in unprecedented numbers. The notion that the confection of poetry is neglected and its practitioners unrewarded seems to me to be an old-fashioned idea. Every time I turn around I seem to hear or read of a new reward offered for the sweetest sonnet or the cutest quatrain.

This summer, for instance, our National Poetry Center offered a prize for the best poem about a garden, and although the first prize was but $25, certainly a modest offering for the lyric muse, I was amazed to find no fewer than 1000 entries pinned to the wall of Horticultural Hall in Mr. Rockefeller's Center. The winner was a really beautiful two-stanza poem called "Transition," and writen by Doris Taft of Minneapolis.

As I looked at that huge hall hung with a thousand pooms about gardens, all submitted by living bards, I was sure that one of the things that foster beauty among us in far from dead. The thought of that great crowd of hopeful and beauty-loving writers made me a little ashamed, too. They'd have to hang up a stiffish prize to get me to attempt even a limerick, these days. But that's probably just metric stiffness in my old joints.

—o-o—

A NEW HIGH in parties was recently tossed by my friend Cora Scovil, the major mannequin maker who is so colorful a woman that her name and affairs often find their way into this space. Her good friend O. N. Bernuth, a banker, was about to celebrate a birthday, and as lady guests Cora invited Greta Garbo, Carole Lombard, Marlene Dietrich, Myrna Loy, Merle Oberon, and Joan Crawford, and they all turned up, to the last beauty, as girl friends for Mr. Bernuth, his Princeton sons, and their chums. Alas, or hey-dey, they were only Cora's mannequins made in the images of the stars, the only two flesh-and-blood women at the festal board being Mrs. Scovil and Mrs. Bernuth. And the young men of old Nassau reported afterward that never had they been less bored by the idle prattle of their dinner partners!

EVERY FEW months this town elects a new reigning beauty—whose reign is usually, alas, all too brief. This summer the crown of love and beauty seems to have fallen on the lovely brow of Eleanor Bunker, a youngster from Vassar's

LET ME SUGGEST

by

Josephine Walter

THIS is the time of year when husbands of wives who have been bitten by the antique mania quietly go mad, especially if they have been foolish enough to take them on a motor trip. Instead of watching the map and announcing at the right moment that "you turn to the right at the next cross-roads" these antique hounds are very apt to spot a sign and cry out, "Oh, darling, there's a little antique shop just five miles down this little lane. It really wouldn't take us five minutes to drive by and just look at what they have."

But that isn't by any means the worst of it. It's when they come out laden with an odd assortment of boot-jacks, butter churns, and old fire buckets, when there wasn't even room in the car for a thermos bottle, that husbands begin to question the joys of the marital state. And yet there truly are many objects to be picked up in these spots that with a little effort and ingenuity may be converted into charming accessories for any home.

Descriptions of the new uses to which some of these old objects may be put may prove helpful in explaining to hubby just what made you buy that Confederate saddle-bag. In fact, it might make you see the possibilities of many items which you might formerly have passed up.

—o-o—

I wasn't being facetious when I mentioned such objects as butter churns and fire buckets. One of the most effective lamps I ever saw for a child's room was made from an old butter churn. The tub part was left in the natural wood except for bands of checked gingham placed at the top and bottom. The long pole formerly used to churn the butter supported the lighting fixture and the shade, which was of plain parchment with an applique design in the gingham.

—o-o—

● OTHER LAMP possibilities are numerous. Of course, there are innumerable coal-oil lamps, carriage lights and such which may readily be wired and used today. However, there is now quite a tendency to use lamps of the hurricane type with candles on the dining room table, instead of regular candlesticks. A very attractive lamp I once saw and one that looked terrifically expensive had been made from a glass jar which had formerly graced the front window of an apothecary's shop.

—o-o—

THERE ARE innumerable odds-and-ends of things to be found in these little wayside antique shops which look utterly useless but which may easily be converted into charming objects for the home. There is hardly a shop which does not offer one of those old-fashioned condiment stands to hold oil, vinegar, salt and pepper. With these curets and shakers removed and tiny plants set into the spaces designed to hold them you may readily have an inexpensive and yet attractive center piece for your table at home, to take the place of cut flowers. In line with this type of conversion was the very lovely wall bracket for a figureine which I once saw. It had been made quite simply from an ornate brass stirrup taken from an old saddle.

—o-o—

There are, in addition, a great number of objects which can be picked up for a song and which can be used as is. Some of the grandest wooden salad bowls I have ever used have been gleaned from little shops along the roadside; while a glass mortar and pestle is ideal for mixing salad dressings.

—o-o—

AND MY PET tale is of the friend of mine who, on one of these shopping expeditions, acquired a string of sleigh bells which had formerly graced some horse's bridle during a cold New England winter. At first slightly non-plussed at her husband's query as to just what she expected to do with them, she solved the problem quite charmingly, I think, by using it instead of a door bell for her house in the country.

—o-o—

● THE ONE THING to keep in mind when making these purchases, aside from the question of just how much the lord and master will stand, is that they will be appropriate to the place where you intend using them. A wagon wheel might make a grand chandelier for a country house but it would be a little out of place in a modern penthouse and an old fire bucket could be an effective waste basket for an early American interior but it would stick out like a sore thumb in Louis XV drawing room.

—o-o—

QUESTION: I am planning to repaint my kitchen this fall but in several spots part of the plaster has been chipped off. Will it be necessary to re-plaster this wall before painting it? G. N. W.

Answer: Sandpaper the entire surface where the plaster has been removed. Then apply a priming coat before the finish coat and you will probably have a fairly smooth looking wall. Of course, patching the plaster where it has cracked or chipped off would undoubtedly give you a better looking job.

The House You Live In Science Helps To Make Home Livable Place

Designers Have Contrived to Hide Scientific Aids and Materials.

By Eleanor Ross

MORE and more is science entering into the construction of the home, and the average home now being built contains many of the elements and ideas embodied in commercial structures of the skyscraper type.

Cleverly the designers and builders have contrived to hide all the scientific aids and materials, so that the essential charm and beauty that should pervade the house is not only left intact but often intensified.

For instance, instead of radiators, which aren't very lovely at their best, even when covered with ornamental grilles, there are small metal grilles placed high in the wall to serve as outlets for the heat. This idea also gives more space to the room.

The building materials now being employed are of the type used for giant buildings, materials, guaranteed to give many years of unimpaired use. Then there is expert insulation to keep the heat in during the cold weather and to keep it from entering the house when summer comes.

—o-o—

AIR CONDITIONING soon will be a standard specification for the quite moderately-priced house, so that air will be cleaned and humidified or dried according to season. Thus windows will soon be just ornaments, but just the same, steel casements of the type that crank to open or shut windows are also becoming popular.

Actually, building materials are as efficient as science can manage it, fireproof, crack-proof and termite-proof. All these things have the advantage of keeping repair bills down, and also lessening doctor's bills. All these scientific building features are designed to aid in maintaining health. These hidden values and improvements are built into floors, walls, attics and cellars, as your builder will tell you if you go deeply into the question of specifications.

Today there is more than ever a tendency to build according to one's requirements, if the local builder isn't going in for those marvelous houses that are being designed and financed by utility companies. These houses are the last word in scientific achievement and are priced exceedingly low, despite the equipment and their design which is by the leading architects and builders in the country.

The Proper Care Of a Comforter

A GOOD eiderdown comforter is a real friend, but it needs proper care and attention. It is nice to be able to send these quilts to a professional cleaner, but if lack of funds prevents that, there is no reason why the eiderdown cannot receive good care at home.

The good old summer time is the best season in which to launder them. Choose a nice day, not too hot, with a spanking breeze to liven things and start to work. It isn't a very difficult job. There should be a good lather of tepid, soapy water and the eiderdown should not be rubbed but carefully squeezed and pressed. The rinsing must be thorough. For best results put a cup of vinegar in the final rinsing water to brighten the colors.

—o-o—

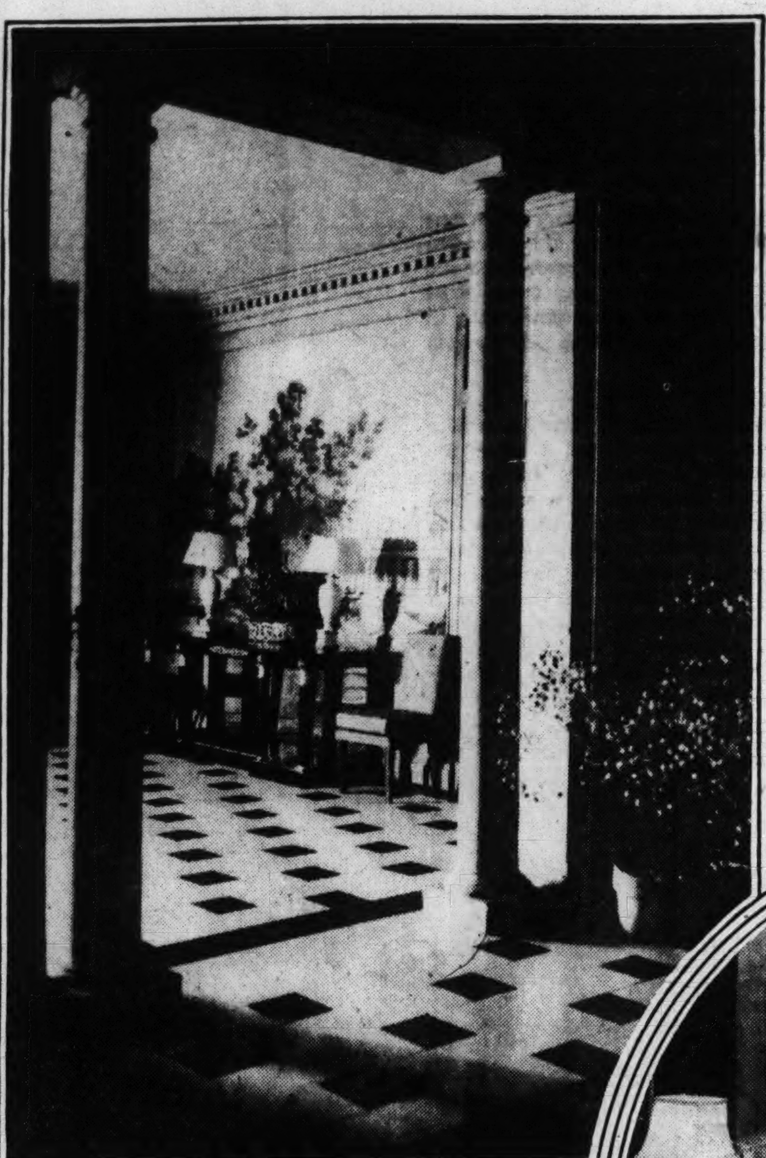
THE WASHING is simple enough, but the drying offers difficulties. The best method we know is one our laundress uses. She sews four or five cotton tabs to the sides and hangs the eiderdown on the line by the tabs. It should be dry by evening. All the comforter needs then is a shaking to fluff it up as good as new. The covers should be pressed with a moderately hot iron through a damp cloth. After that, hang it out in the air again. When aired, shake vigorously.

Some people like to put the eiderdown through the wringer after squeezing it with the hands several times. It is best to slack off tension from the rollers, then gradually to increase the tension as the eiderdown becomes drier. If the drying has to be done indoors, hang the quilt in a room with a good current of air. While it is drying it should be taken down several times to prevent the down from lumping.

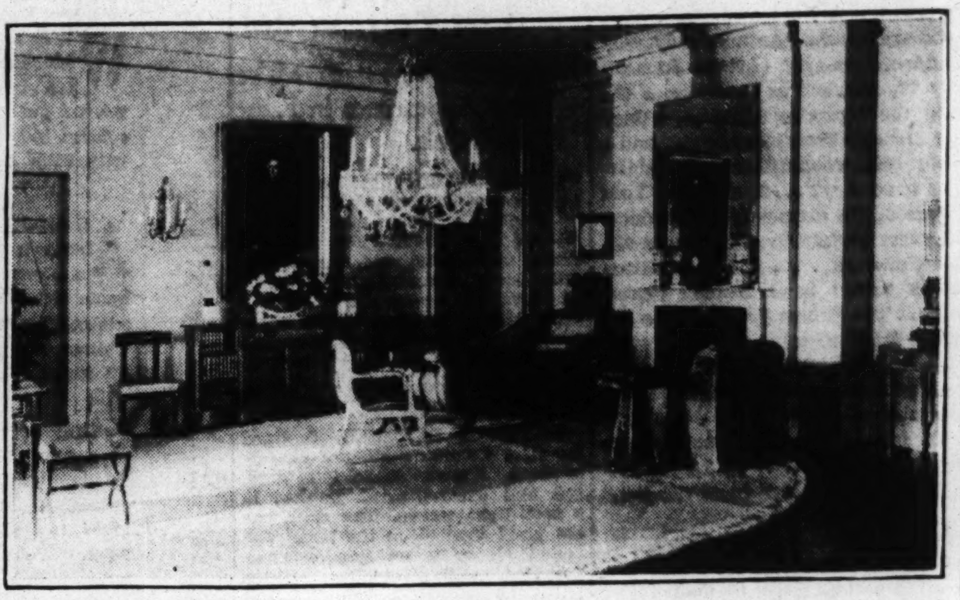
Climbing Plants.

Copper wires about eight inches long, looped and laid in the cement of a stone or brick wall as it is being built will be very useful as well as inconspicuous for the future climbing plants. Put in plenty of them so that you will have enough to tie your roses, clematis and wistaria if the reaching tendrils won't naturally hang on to the loops.

MODEL ROOMS in MINIATURE

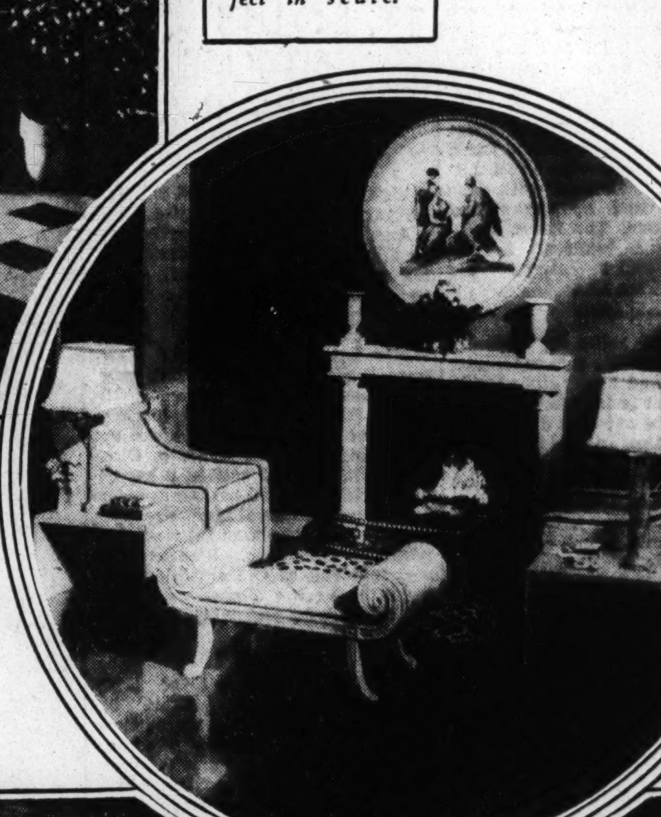


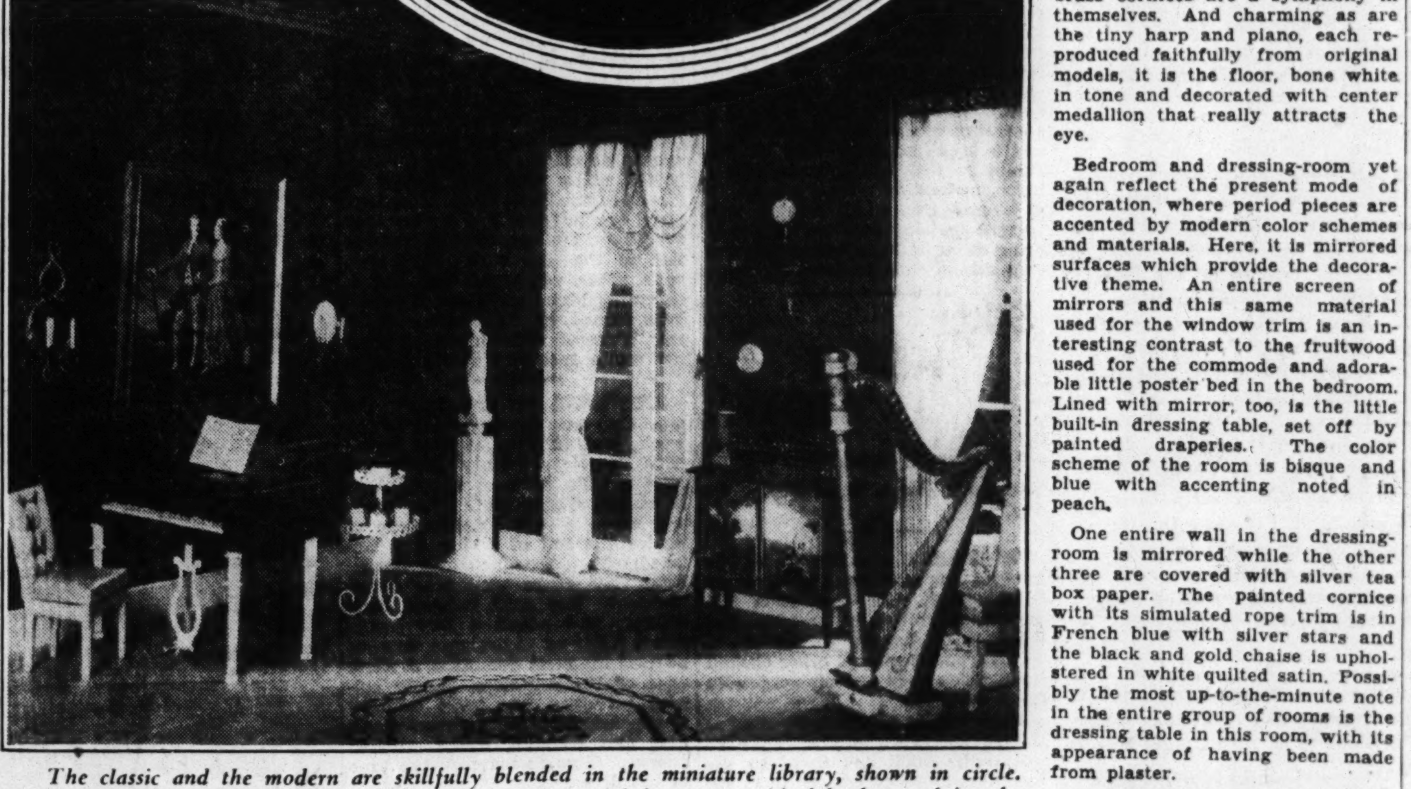
The columns between the entrance foyer and the hall are about a foot high.



All the details of this Empire living room above are perfect in scale.

Interiors on Exhibition Here Built Over a Period of Three Years by New York Architect.





The classic and the modern are skillfully blended in the miniature library, shown in circle. Laurel green walls and bone white inlaid floor, pictured below, are an ideal background for the tiny harp and piano which are authentic copies of old ones in every detail.

THE land of Lilliput is with us once again in an exhibition of eight miniature rooms which opens tomorrow at a downtown department store. And Mr. Gulliver's little people, while they might feel quite at home in these rooms from a standpoint of size, would undoubtedly open their eyes wide in amazement at the beauty of the present styles in decoratiion.

Indeed, most of those who view these model rooms will find their size, executed at one and a half inches to the foot, the least interesting feature about them. We have seen too many Dolls' Houses miniature rooms, and exhibits of small curiosities, to gape in astonishment at pin-head electric fixtures that actually light, tiny windows and door trims that are authentic copies of actual moldings, and furniture that is perfect in its proportions. Interesting as these features may be, it is the fact that these rooms might well serve as models for real rooms, executed in the contemporary manner that gives them practical decorative value.

Executed over a period of three years by Otto Zenke, New York architect and decorator, these rooms, which include living and dining rooms, downstairs and upstairs halls, library, music room, bedroom and dressing room, are a tribute, not only to his manual dexterity, but to his decorating genius as well. Traditional in inspiration but modern in interpretation, these rooms reflect the clean-cut designs, the striking color effects, and the elegant simplicity of arrangement in vogue at the moment.

ASSUMING that these rooms represented the interior of an actual house, one would naturally first glimpse the classically beautiful hallway with its tiny entrance foyer set off by foot-high Doric columns. The white painted walls are an excellent background for the exquisite wallpaper panel, a copy of a hand-blocked Dufour paper called "The Cid." The classical console table and flanking chairs done in a brilliant rust tone rest upon a black and white simulated marble floor. Tiny sculptured figures stand on mirrored pedestals and miniature flower pots filled with "babies'-breath" decorate the foyer.

The most impressive room in the group is unquestionably the Empire living-room, handled in a completely contemporary manner. Walls and oval rug of soft dove-gray provide a neutral background for the other striking tones used in the room. Swag valances of green and white taffeta hang at the circular bay window above white net curtains, the same green taffeta being used to upholster an armchair. The Recamier type sofa is of a flame-red tone, while a little cross-legged stool is done in canary satin. Furniture is mainly executed in fruit woods and the Regency commode, flanked by tiny laquer side chairs, is of unusual interesting design. Decorative accessories include a perfectly executed full-length portrait hanging above the commode and a handsome chandelier made of thousands of tiny crystal beads strung together.

A symphony in blue and white is the English Regency dining room. Regency blue walls are set off by white taffeta curtains with valances and bindings of blue. Incidentally, through these windows one obtains the illusion of a charming little garden beyond. Furniture in this room is mahogany except for the white-painted chairs, upholstered in white leather. The only patterns in this room are the hand-decorated screen and the white lines on the highly polished black floor. The crystal chandelier is an exact copy of an authentic old Regency one.

Most original in conception and unusual in effect, is the library with its color scheme, furnishings and decorative details derived from classic sources. Etruscan red walls and sand-colored woodwork, draperies and upholstery are perfect foils for the classically columned mantel-piece and the Greek key over-door decorations. But to prevent the room, with its antique mahogany furniture, from being too "perfect," Mr. Zenke has introduced such modern notes as mirrored window corniced, hand-tufted rugs, and simple, unadorned, built-in bookcases.

BUT the room that retains a completely fairy-tale quality in spite of being perfectly practical is the music room. Here laurel green walls and sheer silk gauze draperies hung from old pressed brass cornices are a symphony in themselves. And charming as are the tiny harp and piano, each reproduced faithfully from original models, it is the floor, bone white in tone and decorated with center medallion that really attracts the eye.

Bedroom and dressing-room yet again reflect the present mode of decoration, where period pieces are accented by modern color schemes and materials. Here, it is mirrored surfaces which provide the decorative theme. An entire screen of mirrors and this same material used for the window trim is an interesting contrast to the fruitwood used for the commode and adorable little poster bed in the bedroom. Lined with mirror, too, is the little built-in dressing table, set off by painted draperies. The color scheme of the room is bisque and blue with accenting noted in peach.

One entire wall in the dressing-room is mirrored while the other three are covered with silver tea box paper. The painted cornice with its simulated rope trim is in French blue with silver stars and the black and gold chaise is upholstered in white quilted satin. Possibly the most up-to-the-minute note in the entire group of rooms is the dressing table in this room, with its appearance of having been made from plaster.

In viewing these rooms marvel, if you wish, at the patience and skill which have gone into the fashioning of these minute interiors, the loving care with which each perfect detail has been executed; but do not overlook their decorative significance nor fail to gather ideas from them which might readily be applicable to your own home.

Copper Kettles Returning to Popular Favor

ALONG with the bright, shining kitchen has come a demand for copper kettles. Copper combines the best of the past in kitchen utensils with the best of the modern. It brings to mind the huge kitchens of older days, where cooking was done in great quantities. The silver-lined copper vessel is always demanded by the blue ribbon chef de cuisine, for he insists that food tastes the best in such a vessel.

Jam is especially good when made in a copper vessel, for it is not porous and retains the flavor. Of course, the other vessels are also good, but if you want the ultimate in flavor, see to it that your kitchen equipment contains at least one or two copper cooking vessels. The manufacturers make copper pots and pans in sizes to fit the kitchenette as well as the large kitchen.

—o-o—

A PIECE OR TWO of copper in the kitchen is bright and cheerful, but to keep it so you will discover that the methods for cleaning are different from those used for other vessels. One can buy copper polishes which are very satisfactory, or one can mix up a batch.

A good formula is two tablespoons of common salt to one cup of vinegar, with enough flour stirred in to make a smooth paste. This mixture will keep nicely in a glass which can be placed near the sink so that the copper vessels can be polished easily each time they are used.

Just put a spoonful of the paste on a damp cloth, rub all over the vessel, then rinse off well with cold water. Sometimes this application has the effect of turning the copper quite a bright pinkish tone, but the lovely copper shade will soon return.

If flame marks still persist after the use of the paste, they should be removed with the aid of a fine abrasive. And remember that solid copper vessels can stand harder scouring than plated ones.

Coral is easily cleaned and polished in this way: Soak in very hot water to which a small quantity of soda has been added. Polish afterward with a soft piece of an old kid glove.

Taking Vacation From the Garden

AFTER a hard summer of caring for your flower gardens and bringing them through safely, it is a shame to let them dry up during the vacation trip. A mulch of peat moss will do the work of a gardener while you are gone.

Weed the garden thoroughly and soak with water, and when the top inch or so has dried sufficiently, cultivate deeply. Then spread a layer of granulated peat and water it down carefully. This second watering is important, because the absorbent peat will take water from the ground under it to hold unless given some.

Tuck this rich brown coat around all your plants for complete garden protection—flowers, shrubs, trees, evergreens, roses, vines, and it can even be raked into the lawn. No more weeding or cultivating need be done in the garden this year, and the rains that are due this month and next should take care of the watering problem.

Garden Walls

Have you tried brick walks and terraces in your garden? They are much less conspicuous than the usual white stone, and are a much better background for creeping plants and flowers. Another advantage besides the low cost is that delicate gloved hands can handle and lay them with ease. The simplest method is to set them in rectangular or herringbone pattern in sand.

From the Ground Up

GREAT homes at the turn of the century were often situated in parks—cultivated, well-tended and quite extensive. Because of the great distances between the beauty spots of these estates, the owners would often have the main drive from the road to the house take a circuitous route; so that guests could view the wonders along the way. It was often disconcerting for those guests who were making a hurried visit to meander and weave in and around the property before arriving at their destination.

Such indirection is now frowned upon, and has resulted in the rule that all drives or walks, to either small homes of large, take the most direct route possible or show good cause for doing otherwise.

Some of these good causes may be large trees directly in front of the house, steep grades to one side of the property, or the desire to keep the plot of ground at the front intact. If a walk is straight, there should be no circles around which a detour must be made before the house is reached. And if the walk, is to one side of the property the curves should be long and graceful with no unnecessary twisting and turning.

—o-o—

THE MAJORITY of homes in St. Louis are on property not more than 50 feet wide, which presents certain problems in laying the walks or drives. The straight-throught-the-center type bisects the lawn and leaves two tracts which are more difficult to treat than one expanse. If there is a driveway up one side of the property, and not too steep in ascent, this often takes the place of the walk for at least half the distance to the house. Any methods of walks entering from the side leave a large area for lawn and plantings that is far more interesting to plant than the central walk.

If there is a fine old tree immediately in front of the house, the walk should enter to one side of the property and curve around it to the entrance. Almost 50 feet of walk is necessary, to get ample swing to the reverse curves. This side entrance is far better than a straight walk with a circle around the base of the tree.

The most comfortable approach to a house, both for walk or drive, and the easiest to plant is the flattened half circle with two entrances. One is not conscious of the cement because the curves are on our eye level, and it can be easily planted to give great breadth to the house and lawn.

—o-o—

REGARDLESS OF what your walk or drive arrangements may be, planting will break the harshness of the cement and soften the sharp angles. Barberry is the most popular and useful shrub for corner plantings (where the walk or drive intersects the street), but these groups can be vastly improved by combining other shrubs or evergreens with the barberry for contrast in color of foliage and texture.

The usual three shrub group should be only the beginning of the corner planting, and can be added to each year as the budget permits. These groups must be considered a part of the front planting, and treated in the same manner as the foundation planting. Of course the street groups should never overbalance the house planting either in the amount or conspicuousness of the stock used. The eye should be carried from the one to the other with no difficulty.

IF THERE is a straight walk to the street down the center of the property and a drive down one side, the plantings can be in groups at either side near the street, or along the full length of the walk or drive if the width of the property permits all the straight lines. The groups at the end can be the less formal, as they can be made up of a variety of shrubs or trees.

If the lawn is left unbroken with the walk and drive to one side, there is a grand opportunity for an unusual planting. There will be no need for exacting symmetry, but the groups should balance and beautify each other. This type of planting can be curved from a walk to form a screen for a favorite front porch. The taller growing shrubs such as mock orange, althea, or forsythia; or small trees such redbud, dogwood, or flowering fruit trees; and of course the useful and always lovely pines, spruce and fir can all be used for the screen.

Blue Annuals

A garden of blue annuals can be very attractive and quite unusual after noticing the color mixtures in most flower beds. A list of easily grown blues will include: cornflower, love-in-a-mist, larkspur, blue morning glories, browallia, anchusa, azure fairy, lobelias, ageratum, chinese forget-me-not, and viscaria.

SAUCE for the GOOSE

by

Irma S. Rombauer

SEATTLE, Aug. 15.

IF YOU live in Seattle and wish to be in vogue you go on Mondays to lunch at the Olympic Hotel. I found myself with several hundred other persons in the beautifully appointed dining room of this hotel, listening to a white uniformed orchestra and positively goggle-eyed in order to see as much as possible.

One taste of the food was enough to tell me that the cuisine was French and consequently luscious. My order was for fish. Basically the dish was like one I prepare at home which I am going to give you because I find it the most satisfactory way I know of cooking fish quickly.

Baked Fillets of Haddock in Cream Sauce

Six servings.

Place on an oven-proof plate:

Four haddock or other fish fillets.

Prepare two cups cream sauce*. Season the sauce well, add: One teaspoon Worcestershire sauce or two tablespoons sherry (optional). Pour it over the fillets. Bake the fish in a moderate oven 350 degrees for about 25 minutes or until it is tender. Remove it onto a platter. Sprinkle over it: One cup or more fresh boiled or canned shrimp. Place the dish under a broiler until the shrimp are heated. Sprinkle it with: Chopped chives or parsley.

*Cheese sauce may be substituted.

The fillets are good without the addition of the shrimp.

—o-o—

● THIS DISH is capable of many variations. It may be made with different sauces, tomato, mustard, etc., and the result is always good.

On days when time is a factor I eliminate the sauce and pour melted butter over the fish. Then I sprinkle the top well with corn flakes dotted with butter.

My order at the hotel proved to be sole in a delicate sauce, a concoction that made me long to go the whole length, BE French, and dip up the remaining drops with a piece of bread.

A few days after my visit to the Olympic, Shirley Temple, minus one tooth, ate at the same place and was nearly mobbed. The cause of the commotion, however, remained unruffled, and ate spinach!

I hope it was properly prepared for there is no product that is more thoroughly mishandled. It is worth while giving a recipe for it, in its florified form, in case there are still some unenlightened people about who serve it as "greens" only.

Creamed Spinach

Pick over:

One-half peck of spinach (two pounds) (when cooked one and one-third to one and one-half cups).

Wash it.

If the spinach is old, cook it for 20 minutes in:

One quart of boiling salted water (one and one-half teaspoons salt to the quart).

—o-o—

● IF THE SPINACH is new, lift it from the water with the hands and place it moist, but without additional water, in a saucepan, cover it and cook it for six minutes, or until it is tender. Drain it well. Chop the spinach, old or young, until it is as fine as puree, using a board and a knife, or a chopping bowl and a knife, or put it through a coarse strainer or ricer. Melt in a skillet:

Three tablespoons butter

Add and cook for one minute (or if preferred until brown):

One tablespoon or more very finely chopped onion (optional).

Stir in until blended:

Two and one-half teaspoons flour.

Stir in slowly:

One cup hot cream, top milk, stock or diluted evaporated milk. When the sauce is smooth and boiling, add the spinach. Stir and cook it for three minutes or until it is thoroughly blended. If the spinach seems too thick it may be thinned with additional cream or milk.

Season it well with:

Salt

Paprika

Nutmeg (very good but optional)

Serve it garnished with slices of:

One hard cooked egg.

The French recipes call for one teaspoon of powdered sugar and the grated rind of one-half a lemon. These ingredients and the onion are optional. The flour is sometimes browned before it is added to the butter. Evaporated milk is delicious in spinach. Stock, cream or milk may be used in combination.

"Bright Black"

To refer to the leading shade for early fall as "bright black" may seem inconsistent but that is the term which many style authorities are using. The descriptive adjective is used to let women know that there is a decided difference between the black which has a cheerful finish and the black which has a dull, drab look.

The bright black of the new season is achieved by using glistening surfaced materials such as satin and cire or by combining them with dull crepe. It also is made possible by the addition of glistening trimming including braids and beads.

So when choosing your first autumn frock, you will be stylish if you purchase a black one with certain bright qualities.

Delicious and Easy-to-Make Jellies and Jams

Recipes Compiled Especially for Housewives With Small Kitchens.

CAN you recall your grandmother's preserve closet—deep, roomy shelves with trim rows of sparkling jellies fairly glowing with color; jam jars in odd and fascinating shapes, all carefully and neatly labeled? And her pride when, after strenuous weeks of jelly making, she finally filled her preserve closet, even to the last shelf?

Since then many daughters and granddaughters have experienced the same pride and pleasure in making their jellies and jams. But unlike grandmother, they have not had to spend many weeks in jelly making, nor have they had the discouraging experience of putting hours of hard work into jellies that did not jell or were tough and gummy. For, in making all jellies, these daughters and granddaughters use pure natural-fruit pectin, now sold bottled in liquid form or packaged in powdered form. And their jellies not only jell, but have better flavor, color and texture because the cooking time is shorter.

—o-o—

OF COURSE, not all of us have the spacious preserve closets of grandmother's day. In fact, in some apartments it is difficult to find enough shelf space for even a small number of jellies.

Housekeepers with small families often have a problem, too. They long to keep a variety of home-made jellies on their shelves. Yet most jelly recipes yield such a large amount that, in making several kinds, housekeepers are apt to acquire a larger supply of jelly than they need, and have no room in which to store it.

With just such a problem in mind, we set about evolving jelly recipes so simple that even the kitchenette housekeeper could easily make them, and so small in size that they yield only a few glasses.

You will note that most of our recipes call for such ready-to-use fruit juices as canned pineapple, grapefruit, or tomato juices, bottled grape juice, or lime juice, canned peaches, etc. These ingredients are always in season, and you can make up the jellies as frequently as you wish, and at any time of the year. Of course, at this season you also have a variety of fresh fruits from which the juice may be extracted for jelly.

—o-o—

MOST OF our jelly recipes make only from three to four eight-ounce glasses each. But smaller glasses may suit your purpose better, and if so, you can buy dainty shapes. The tiny glasses are particularly nice for the family of two, for tray meals, for the gift basket, or for one-plate meals. But in making them be careful to use a small enough pan—the prepared fruit and sugar should take up about one-third of the pan capacity.

Cinnamon Candy Jelly.

Two and one-half cups (one pound two ounce) granulated sugar.

One and one-quarter cup water.

One-quarter pound small red cinnamon candies.

One-half bottle liquid fruit pectin.

Combine sugar, water and cinnamon candies in a saucepan. Bring to a boil over hottest heat and at once add the liquid fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard one-half minute. Remove from heat, skim and pour quickly into clean, hot jelly glasses. Cover at once with a one-eighth-inch layer of hot paraffin, and when cool, cover each glass with a tin cover or tightly pasted paper. Makes about 24 ounce jelly.

Grape Jelly.

Three and a half cups (one and one-half pounds) granulated sugar.

Two cups (one pound) bottled grape juice.

One-half bottle liquid fruit pectin.

Measure sugar and juice into saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest heat and at once add liquid fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard one-half minute. Remove from heat, skim and pour quickly into clean, hot jelly glasses. Cover at once with a one-eighth-inch layer of hot paraffin, and when cool, cover each glass with a tin cover or tightly pasted paper. Makes about 32 ounce jelly.

Three cups (one and one-half pounds) canned grapefruit juice.

One three-ounce powdered fruit pectin.

Four cups (one and three-quarters pounds) granulated sugar.

Measure the juice into a six-quart saucepan. Add the powdered fruit pectin, and stir until dissolved. Bring to a full rolling boil while stirring. Remove the heat, add the sugar and stir over a low heat until dissolved. Bring to a full rolling boil again and boil for three minutes. Then dip cold knife into boiling mixture. If jelly sheets but does not drop from knife, remove from the heat, skim and pour quickly into clean, hot jelly glasses. Cover at once with one-eighth inch layer hot paraffin; when cool, cover glass with tin cover or tightly pasted paper. Makes about 32 ounces jelly.

Pineapple juice jelly: Substitute three cups (one and one-half pounds) canned unsweetened pineapple juice for the grapefruit juice in grapefruit juice jelly.

Grape jelly. Substitute three cups (one and one-half pounds) bottled grape juice for the grapefruit juice in grapefruit juice jelly.

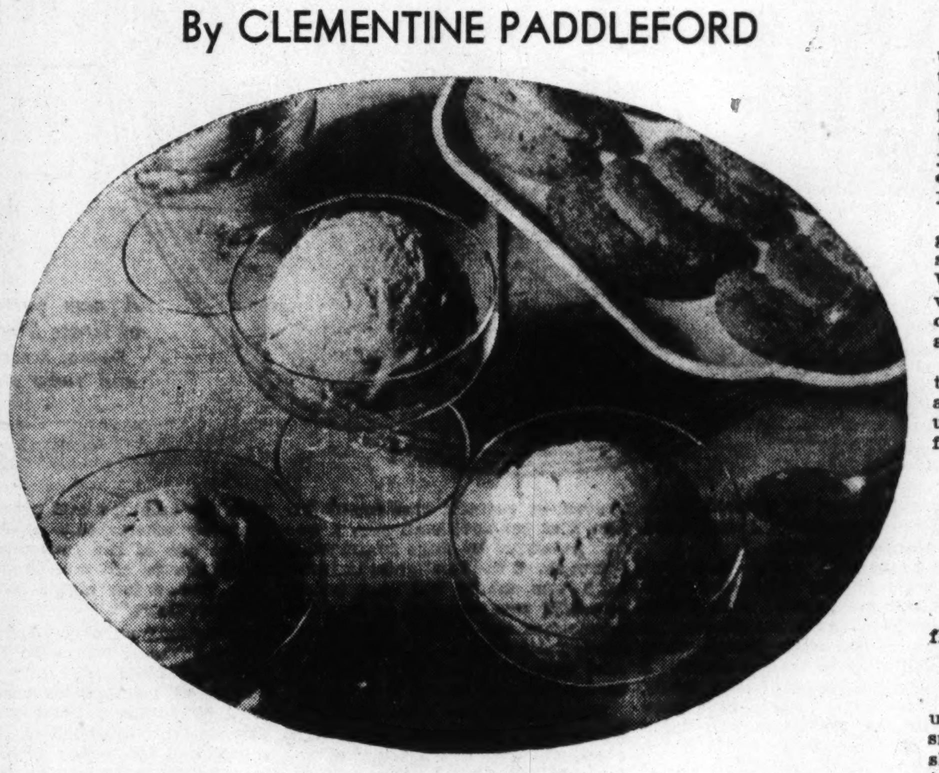
From California comes a recipe for delicious Plum Surprise.

The PLUMS Have It

We Mention Today That Delectable if Little Talked of Fruit, the Plum, Which Makes Fine Dishes When Cooked.

By CLEMENTINE PADDLEFORD



Try plum sponge in your automatic refrigerator.

THE common plum, of all our important fruits has the smallest American literature. Only one book is devoted to the plum and this, a treatise on its culture, was published almost half a century ago.

In a large part of the country, plums still grow wild and orchard varieties are only wild plums domesticated. In sections where plums are commercially raised for market, their culture is still in the experimental stage.

Plum-cookery, on the other hand, has developed to an art, with recipes traditional to the section of their origin. Since Colonial days, native plums have done almost an apple's part in supplying the fruity side of the country menu. For plums grow everywhere. No other tree succeeds in so wide a range of soils under so great a variety of climatic conditions.

There is a plum tree that endures the rigors of Canada, another Georgia's heat. Plums thrive on the Atlantic seaboard and on the windswept prairie with its extremes of hot and hold. And plums have become very much at home on the Pacific Coast.

In city markets at any time from early June to October, one may discover from two to six kinds of plums. Yet it is in great cities that the plum remains an unappreciated, unsung fruit.

My first introduction to the mysterious sweetness of cooked plum flesh was through the plum dumplings for which my town-raised grandmother won local cooking fame, when she came to Kansas from New England to be a farmer's wife. These she made of sand plums—the most anemic and uncivilized of the plum tribe, but carrying an indescribable wild sweet tang.

From the moment spring appeared on the plain, we children watched the plum thickets for the first leaf buds. When the peach put forth her bitter tinted pink-and-red bud, then the plum thickets burst into a shower of white that signaled the bees from miles away. Patiently we watched the small green fruit enlarge, watched the green shade to yellow, then to a burnished red that under the Kansas sun soon became a wine-like purple.

Busy days followed while the sand plums were canned and jammed, preserved and jellied, and fresh plum pie, plum tarts or grandmother's dumplings were as regular as diner.

But it was dumplings we started to tell you about. Here is grandmother's recipe made with a "City-Slicker" plum by the name of Eldorado.

Kansas Plum Dumplings

Four cups plums, halved and pitted.

One and one-half cups water.

One-half cup granulated sugar.

One cup all-purpose flour.

Two teaspoons baking powder.

One-half teaspoon salt.

One-half cup milk.

One egg, well beaten.

Combine plums, water and sugar and cook until soft. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Combine milk and egg and mix lightly into dry ingredients. Drop by spoonfuls into hot plum sauce and cook, covered, about 15 minutes. Serve at once. This recipe yields six portions.

Threshers' dinner was the acid test of housewifery in my growing-up days and many a woman failed, as far as her social prestige as a cook was concerned. Women saved recipes all summer against thresher time. Many were the special jars of jellies and jams they set aside to wait this important event. Women put their men folks through a third degree as to what had been served at neighbors' tables and secretly each vowed in her heart that she would outdo the rest. My mother relied on lemon plum pie to see her through the threshing ordeal. It was always served the first night the crew arrived for supper—a teasing promise of what the morrow might bring forth. If the thresher broke down at some other farm and kept the men from reaching our house on the day planned, we ate the pies ourselves and on the next day baked a fresh batch.

Lemon-Plum Pie

One and one-third cups sweetened condensed milk.

One-fourth cup lemon juice.

Grated rind of one-half lemon.

One cup plum pulp, cooked.

One baked pastry shell.

Whipped cream.

Blend together sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice, lemon rind and plum pulp. Pour into baked pastry shell and chill. Top with whipped cream before serving. This recipe yields one (8-inch) pie.

The neighborhood choral society and the quartet from the village church met regularly at Ida Pringle's to practice during the winter months. After we sang ourselves hollow, Ida would disappear into the kitchen and whisk out sandwiches and a stuff she called plum sponge. The sandwiches were of the hearty baked-ham-and-bean type, styled to our country-aired appetites. But it was the plum sponge, light and airy fluff, that stood always at the top of our preferred list.

Plum Sponge

One and one-half tablespoons gelatin.

One-half cup cold water.

One cup plum juice, heated.

One-half cup plum pulp, cooked and sieved.

One-half cup granulated sugar.

One-half cup orange juice.

One egg white.

Soften gelatin in cold water and dissolve in hot plum juice. Stir in plum pulp and sugar. Stir until dissolved. Add orange juice. Chill until mixture begins to set, then beat until foamy. Beat egg white until stiff, but not dry, then fold in. Chill until completely set. This recipe yields four portions.

For summer company dinners Ida served plum ice cream. This isn't the recipe but a modern version styled for freezing in the automatic refrigerator.

Frozen Plum Pudding

One package prepared vanilla-flavored pudding.

Two cups milk.

One-half cup confectioner's sugar.

One cup whipping cream.

One cup plums, cooked and chopped.

One-fourth cup nuts, chopped.

Cook vanilla pudding in milk in a double boiler, stirring frequently, until thick and smoooth. Cook about 10 minutes. Remove from heat, add sugar and cool slightly. Whip cream until it begins to thicken and hold its shape, then fold in plums and nuts. Pour into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator and freeze with temperature control set at coldest point. Stir once or twice during freezing. This recipe yields six portions.

Another neighborhood favorite was iced Plumade, enjoyed on Wednesday afternoons in the summer when the Ladies' Circle met to sew in Nellie Phillips' parlor.

Every year come plum time Nellie Phillips put up 10 gallons of juice for making plumade. The recipe is a sort of glorified lemon-organade, yet plum in flavor.

Plumade

One and one-half dozen plums.

Six cups water.

One and one-fourth cups granulated sugar.

Two (two-inch) sticks cinnamon.

Grated rind of one lemon.

Juice of three lemons.

Juice of three oranges.

Wash, pit and quarter plums. Cook until soft in water. Strain off juice. Add to it the sugar and cinnamon and heat until sugar is dissolved. Add grated lemon rind and cook about three minutes. Strain. Add lemon and orange juice and serve in tall glasses with chipped ice. This recipe yields eight to 10 portions.

Plum muffins are little mountains of goodness, evenly crusty all over the outside. Within, they are light and fruity. We were in Ohio visiting a farm woman who was known as the best cook in her county and who served us such muffins as we never remember eating before.

"These ought to be everywhere and there all the time," we told the lady, and she gave us her recipe. Here it is, used with the kind of red plums you will find on the market now.

Plum Muffins

Four plums.

One egg.

Three tablespoons granulated sugar.

Five tablespoons shortening, melted.

One and one-fourth cups milk.

Two and one-fourth cups all-purpose flour.

Four teaspoons baking powder.

One-half teaspoon salt.

Cook plums in boiling water 10 minutes. Drain, remove pits, and cut into small pieces. Beat egg well, add sugar, shortening and milk. Mix and sift dry ingredients and combine with liquids. Stir in plums lightly. Pour into greased muffin pans and bake about 25 minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees F.). This recipe yields eight large or 12 small muffins.

Go to San Francisco in the summertime and almost any hotel menu will offer you fresh plums lightly poached, seasoned in sherry. The blue Italian plums are used for this, each cut in half into two rosy hemispheres. They are lightly cooked and then soaked in sherry about 12 hours until each piece exhales the delicate sherry flavor. California, too, is the home of Plum Surprise.

Plum Surprise

Two large oranges.

Twelve plums.

One-fourth cup honey.

One-half cup coconut.

One cup whipping cream.

Peel oranges and cut in one-half inch slices. Cut plums in quarters, removing pits. Roll sections in honey, then in coconut. Arrange a slice of orange on each of four dessert plates. Over this place two of the plum sections. Whip cream until it begins to thicken and hold its shape. Top plums with a layer of whipped cream, then cover with another orange slice. Top with whipped cream, garnish with plum sections. This recipe yields four portions.

At a cocktail dining room overlooking the Pacific, plum hors d'oeuvres are an everyday occurrence. They are served with a collection of spicy meat appetizers and those of cheese assembled together in a great company.

One of the best of these combined plum butter with finely minced green pepper which was spread on rounds of bread toasted on one side. Over this went a thin strip of cheese. Just before it was served, this savory concoction was placed under the broiler just long enough for the cheese to melt anl brown lightly.

Meal Finishers

WHEN you've finished your entree, the delectable desserts below are just the thing to top off luncheon or dinner.

VANILLA COCOANUT ICE CREAM.

Two-thirds cup sweetened condensed milk.

One-half cup water.

One-half cup shredded cocoanut, finely chopped.

One and one-half teaspoon vanilla extract.

One cup heavy cream.

Blend the sweetened condensed milk, water, finely chopped cocoanut and vanilla. Chill. Whip cream stiff, and fold into chilled mixture. Pour into the freezing tray of an automatic refrigerator. Freeze to a stiff mush, then remove from refrigerator. Scrape mixture from sides and bottom of pan. Beat two minutes with a spoon. Smooth out, and replace in freezing unit, leaving it there until mixture will hold its shape. Serves six.

PEACH ROLY-POLY.

Baking powder biscuit dough.

Two cups sliced peeled peaches.

One cup granulated sugar.

Four tablespoons butter or margarine.

One and one-half cup water.

One tablespoon flour.

Prepare the standard recipe for baking powder biscuits, using two cups flour as the basis; or make up 2 cups of the prepared packaged baking powder biscuit mixture. Roll the biscuit dough on a lightly floured board into receptable one-quarter inch thick. Cover the dough to within one-half inch of the edge with the peaches. Sprinkle with one-quarter cup of the sugar and dot with two tablespoons of the butter. Then roll up like a jelly roll, and cut into one and one-half inch crosswise slices; arrange cut side down in a shallow baking dish about 12 inches by eight inches by two inches. Meanwhile, combine the water and three-quarters cup of sugar, which has been mixed with the flour; boil for one minute. Add two tablespoons butter and pour over the peach rolls. Bake in a hot oven of 425 degrees F. for 35 minutes. Serves six. To serve two or three, make one-half this recipe.

When buying casseroles it is wise to soak them before use in cold water; then bring the water gradually to boiling point, and again allow them to cool. This toughens and tempers them and prevents cracking.

A Menu With Braised Beef And Spaghetti

Fresh Corn and Green Pepper Soup Furnishes the First Course.

By Gladys T. Lang

Fresh Corn and Green Pepper Soup
Braised Beef
With Savory Spaghetti
Chopped Beets in Beet Green Ring
Waldorf Salad
Peach Short Cake

Fresh Corn and Green Pepper Soup

SCALD one quart of milk with a slice of onion, outside stalks of celery, a blade of mace and two tablespoons of minute tapioca. When vegetables are tender rub through a colander. Cut the tops from eight ears of corn and scrape the milky juice from the cob. Cook in a double boiler for 15 minutes. Reheat th emilk mixture and stir in the corn, adding three tablespoons of butter, one cup of scalded cream, one-half cup of scalded and minced green pepper, with salt and pepper to taste.

Braised Beef With Savory Spaghetti

Choose a four-pound piece from the shoulder of beef. Sear all over in salt pork drippings. This should take about 20 minutes. Place in a Dutch oven, dredge with salt and pepper mixed with a little flour, and in the pan place water on stock to reach one-fourth of the way up the roast, adding one tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce and two tablespoons, of horseradish. Cover closely and let simmer for an hour and a half. Add one quart can of tomatoes rubbed through a colander, one-half cup each of ground carrots and onions, one-fourth cup of ground turnips, one cup of ground celery, a bay leaf, one teaspoon each of paprika and kitchen bouquet, two teaspoons of salt, one minced clove of garlic and one-fourth teaspoon each of pepper, ground cloves and nutmeg. Continue cooking slowly, turning the meat frequently so that it will all be cooked in the liquid for about two hours longer, or until tender. Remove meat to a hot platter and in sauce in pan mix one box of cooked spaghetti. Place around roast.

Chopped Beets in Beet Green Ring

Cut greens from young, tender beets. Cook the beets until tender, skin and chop coarsely. Blend with creamed butter and salt. Surround with the greens which have been cooked in the water left on the leaves from washing, adding a couple of strips of bacon, salt and pepper while cooking. Remove the bacon before serving.

Waldorf Salad

To one cup of diced apples, add one-half cup of cut up celery, one-half cup of chopped English walnuts and one-half cup of highly seasoned mayonnaise. Mix ingredients together. Arrange a bed of chicory and place the salad in the center. Top with a dash of paprika.

Peach Short Cake

Four egg yolks.

Four egg whites.

One cup of sugar.

One cup pastry flour.

One scant teaspoon of baking powder.

Two tablespoons of lemon juice.

One-half teaspoon of salt.

Beat the egg whites until frothy, add one-half of the sugar gradually and continue beating until mixture will hold its shape. Add the remaining sugar to the egg yolks and beat until thick and lemon colored. Combine the egg mixtures. Sift the flour, salt and baking powder together and fold in lightly. Turn into a Mary Ann shell pan which has been well greased, and bake in a moderate oven from 30 to 35 minutes. Invert on a cake rack and allow to cool. Place on serving platter and fill center with sliced peaches, sprinkled lightly with lemon juice and powdered sugar. Top with sweetened and flavored whipped cream.

Gleam of Gold In Accessories

A GLISTENING gold leather belt or a metal kid flower may be the means this autumn of bringing an old costume up to date. The metal kid theme is so pronounced in accessories of the coming season that every woman will want at least one costume accent that has the gleam of gold. Belts are shown, most extensively, but the collection of flowers and bags also is noteworthy.

Next to the leather as a means of introducing the new popularity of gold are the various wire and mesh ideas. Belts which are made of an intricately woven wire have bright colored sets placed at intervals to enhance their impressivness while pins and clips are beautified in a similar manner.

There are gold flecks on prystal buttons and clips, gold buckles and gold bracelets to prove that the metal has acquired a high fashion standard.

STAMPS · Styles for Men · DOGS

OFF the LEASH

by
H. F. Owen

TODAY we will teach our dog to "roll over." In teaching this trick we must make him roll over fast. The trick does not look nearly so good if the dog leisurely lies down and rolls over slowly.

Your command should be given in a quick excitable tone. Get action. If he likes to chase a ball have one ready to throw just as he is on his side. He then will finish the roll in a hurry so that he can go after the ball.

Call your dog and take him out on the lawn if possible, or if you teach him in the house, do it on a thick rug. Have him stand in front of you and if he is a small dog you can easily and quickly roll him over as you give your command, by stooping and placing your hand on his shoulder, pushing him down and over at the same time. Throw the ball with the other hand at the same time you push him down. He will naturally roll over the way you wish him to in his eagerness to go after the ball.

If you get him into the spirit of this new game he will do it better. After you have shown him what you want a few times you will only have to make the motion of pushing him down as you say "roll over." He will think you are going to push him and will probably beat you to it. If he does he has learned the meaning of your words "roll over" and you can eliminate your hand motions.

Now if your dog is a large dog it is sometimes hard to push him quickly after he is down. In this case you grasp the front leg that is closest to the floor, and using his leg as a lever, you can easily roll him over, doing something to make him spring up quickly. Do this until you find it is no longer necessary. Remember, your dog executes your commands in the same manner in which you give them. A quick, eager command gets excitable response and a slow toneless command is responded to by the dog in like manner, if at all.

● THE MOST ROMANTIC history of Dogdom is probably that of the St. Bernard. When this dog was first put to use at the famous Hospice in the Swiss Alps is not known, as the Hospice was destroyed by fire in the sixteenth century and all its records were lost. But in 1707 there was known to have been remarkable rescue work done in the St. Bernard pass by dogs brought to the Hospice from the valleys below the pass. The monks took these dogs with them on their errands of mercy and they proved helpful in finding persons lost in the snow. And for the past three centuries St. Bernard dogs have saved thousands of persons from death in the Alps.

Recent years have brought modern means of travel through these mountains and the need of these wonderful animals is not so great as formerly, but they are still going about the duty of saving lives as they have been for centuries.

The work these dogs do is not developed by training. It is the natural instinct of the St. Bernard handed down from his ancestors, who used to patrol the mountain pass after storms in search of lost persons. When they would find some one in the snow one or two dogs would lie down close to the wanderer to warm him and would lick his face to bring him to life while another dog would go for help. They always had restoratives fastened to their collars for victims who were able to help themselves.

—o-o—

● BEFORE 1830 THE St. Bernard was a short haired dog, after which the crossing of the Newfoundland with the St. Bernard strengthened and enlarged the breed. It was not until 1880 that the name of St. Bernard was definitely given to him and in 1887 the standard was perfected. The St. Bernard Club of America adopted this standard in 1888.

The St. Bernard stands a little more than 27 inches at the shoulder with a strong powerful body and large head. His eyes are brown, set deep, and of medium size. His back is broad and his coat should be very thick and lay smooth on his body, growing longer and thiicker on his tail, then becoming shorter at the tip. His color may be red and white or red with white spots. The red may be any shade.

His short, straight muzzle is broader at the top than it is long. White markings are necessary as follows: White muzzle, blaze on head, chest, legs, and tip of tail. A collar of white or a spot of white on the back of the neck is desirable. He is never a solid color or without some white.

We see very little of the noble St. Bernard here, possibly because of his size. Too, the extreme hot summers would make it very hard to keep him comfortable.

New Coat Style

There's a new coat style for winter which has been named the "half-and-half" because it is made up of cloth and fur in almost equal proportions.

The fur is applied in wide panels extending the full length of the coat and almost covering the front. There are narrower panels at either side of the back and the sleeves are given their encrustations of lovely pelts as is the collar.

Flat furs such as Persian lamb or caracul moire or Hudson seal are used in the creation of the fashion which is quite dressy as well as slenderizing.

Gabardine May Be Worn Into Autumn Season

It Is an Ideal Cloth, Says Esquire, for Indian Summer Days.

By Esquire

GABARDINE is an ideal summer fabric but, unlike most summer clothing, it may be worn far later in the year. For the warm days of Indian summer when it is too early for heavy country suits, gabardine is an ideal cloth.

It is especially popular among university men and may be worn as late in the year as the weather permits. Gabardine may be worn in natural tan, dark tan or chocolate brown as well as in the light champagne shade. It is also appropriate in gray and the greenish-gray known as "Uhlan." Gabardine suits are most practical when cut in single-breasted three-button notched lapel models or in double-breasted models. They are not, however, recommended in single-breasted peak lapel models. Eight-inch side vents and a plain back are recommended for this type of suit.

With the two-button natural tan gabardine suit the young undergraduate may wear a pair of brown calf monk front shoes with crepe rubber soles. His hat may be brown porkpie and his shirt a blue oxford with widely spaced white stripes.

A colored breast pocket handkerchief is the finishing touch to the smart ensemble. It may harmonize with either the suit, the shirt or the tie, but should not match too closely. A handkerchief of exactly the same pattern and material as the tie looks too studied. Handkerchiefs may be in foulard silk or linen or cotton.

The breast pocket handkerchief, while usually more ornamental than that which is carried in the hip pocket for utilitarian purposes, need not be regarded as entirely decorative. In the emergencies it may be used in the same manner as its more prosaic brother, and, if it is of good quality, it will not suffer thereby. Furthermore, it is of great value when a lady spills a cocktail, or suffers a similar accident. It may then be whipped out and presented to the lady in distress, secure in the knowledge that it is as fresh as when it emerged from the laundry.

A bouttoniere adds smartness to any type of costume, be it formal or informal, day or evening dress. According to the old adage a flower in the buttonhole takes 10 years off a man's appearance.

Bouttonieres may be of dark red, white or yellow carnations, blue cornflowers or gardenias. The bouttoniere may match or contrast with the tie or shirt to make a smart ensemble.

Painted Fabrics

Fabrics which have been painted with bright colors in very spectacular, splotchy designs are advocated for formal wear this coming winter. The more colors that are combined the better so that the dark colored satin surface looks as though a sign painter had been trying out his brushes.

Designs resembling Chinese figures are presented as are some all-over oriental patterns similar to those seen on Japanese kimonas. Geometric effects, quite modernistic in their treatment, do their part also toward creating sensational formal fabrics.

LIFE HAS BEEN EXCITING - - - By Grace Moore

most precious belongings in a bandana handkerchief and clambered out a kitchen window. To have carried a suitcase and walked prosaically through a convenient doorway would have been a sacrilege.

Once outside, however, the great melodrama became reality. I began to realize that I was embarking on a serious course. And, characteristically, I carried my problems to the summit of one of the high hills near our home. Until dawn, I lay on the topmost rock of that mountain, staring at the stars and thinking. . . .

And my efforts at logic simmered down to the unthinking certainty that, no matter what obstacles were thrown in my way, I had to follow my ambition. Lacking perspective, I visioned applause, fame, stardom, as one sees the peaks of a mountain range, projecting above a sea of clouds. I saw the lofty pinnacles but not the long, tortuous trails which must be climbed to attain them. Even today, I am blessed by the same blindness.

I did not run away—then—but that night on the hilltop near Jellico fixed my goals unshakably. Not once, in the years of varying fortune which have passed since that night, have they changed. I have attained many of these goals, and, with them, others that were then beyond my vision. In doing so, I have learned a truth which I could not have grasped at 16. It is this:

The struggle for success is infinitely more stumulating, more enjoyable and more worthwhile than the success itself.

I have had more joy and more profit in "getting here" than I now have in "being here." I would not exchange my vital memories of the often trying, but always exciting, journey to stardom for all of the rewards which actual success has given me or ever can give me. Lacking those memories, I would not have the perspective to enjoy, or benefit by, success.

Eagerness—that is the magic quality! It overwhelms fear and doubt, stimulates the mind and spirit, makes the impossible possible and life worth the living. I have always been eager; the trail upward has been a glorious adventure and its milestones are unforgettable. They have become part of me.

—o-o—

ONE of the earliest of those milestones was my concert debut in Washington, D. C. My father, probably because he found it less painful to consent than to continue hearing my pleas and protests, had finally permitted me to attend the Wilson-Green School. I had thrown myself whole-heartedly into my studies and had progressed so rapidly that, at the end of my first term, I was chosen to sing in public concert—an annual event sponsored by the faculty of Wilson-Green—with Giovanni Martinelli of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company!

Naturally, I was in a seventh heaven or ecstatic excitement before that concert; naturally, I was half paralyzed by stage fright when I first faced the footlights; naturally, I was out of bed long before dawn the next morning to read the verdicts of the critics. Some were kind; some were . . . well, critics. And one, who was locally considered a veritable oracle, wrote:

"Last night the Lion and the Mouse gave a concert. Giovanni Martinelli, celebrated tenor of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, was the Lion; Miss Grace Moore of Jellico, Tenn., a student of the Wilson-Green School of Music, was the Mouse. Her voice is excellent and she shows real promise." . . .

"She shows real promise"—those four words were sufficient to launch my great adventure. Washington suddenly became too small to contain my soaring ambitions, and, then and there, I decided that I must go on to New York. Knowing that my parents would instantly forbid such a step, I again determined to run away.

I succeeded in borrowing $300 from a friend who sympathized with my ambition and promised to keep my whereabouts a secret. I bribed one of the school's night watchmen to aid me, packed my bags, and, a few nights later, took "French leave."

Miss Moore and Franchot Tone in a scene from one of her starring roles.

A new portrait of Grace Moore, opera, screen and radio star.

Never was an elopement carried out with more dramatic flourish. Disguised by a wig and a long, heavy veil, I stayed for a full week in a Washington hotel while my parents, the authorities of the school and the police searched for me. Every train leaving Washington was watched. All of my friends were questioned. Surmises about my fate ranged from murder or kidnaping to secret romance and marriage.

After the first furore of the hunt had lessened, I telephoned Blanche Le Garde, a fellow student and my dearest friend, told her where I was and what I intended to do, and arranged to meet her in a certain drug store. To my amazement and delight, she insisted on accompanying me to New York. She, too, had dreams of a stage career.

In New York, I first of all soothed a guilty conscience by wiring my parents assurance of my safety. Next, I had Blanche, who knew New York, guide me to the Metropolitan Opera House. There, in a steady drizzle of rain, I stood with pounding heart, staring at the goal of my ambition. The great doors were there; I could reach out and touch them. And yet they were a million miles away. Fortunately, I did not realize, then, how many disappointments, how many setbacks, how many years of hard, hard work lay between me and the realization of my purpose. My feet were on the trail—but still I saw only the pinnacle.

"Some day," I told Blanche, with great conviction, "I'm going to be starred there!"

—o-o—

LOOKING back, at that memorable first day in New York, realizing the meager assets I had to offer in my quest for success, how can I, today, fail to sympathize with the many eager beginners who write to me and bare their own brave plans and golden dreams? Who will dare to discourage them? Who can discourage them, if they keep courage high and ambition aflame?

I possessed a good natural voice, an exaggerated valuation of the little training I had received, a wealth of self-confidence and a profound faith in the kindness of Fate. I had nothing more.

My life had been spent in a little mountain town, "a million miles from Broadway." The theatrical world, with its jealousies, its fierce competition and its sensationalism, was as unknown to me as it would be to a visitor from Mars. I had no influential friends. I had cut myself off from parental backing. I had only a few dollars. I had no practical experience in living, for even the schools I had attended, convent-like, prevented their students from brushing elbows with life.

Blanche and I found a little apartment in Greenwich Village — the "Sodom" of my Sunday school teacher's warnings. I was both delighted and afraid. The perils and pitfalls of New York had been dinned into my ears from childhood and my imagination had exaggerated them. I longed for friendship—and yet I distrusted people. In all probability, I was the most naive person in all New York.

The friendliness of the people I met soon disarmed me, however, and I quickly slipped into the stream of the Village's life. And a delightful, carefree, stimulating life it was!

I discovered that Bohemianism, my Sunday School teachers notwithstanding, is a state of mind, not a mode of misconduct. It is the extreme simplification of living, the worship of freedom, the glorification of the mental and the subjugation of the merely physical. It implies the elimination of every responsibility excepting the development of a talent.

Walter Pater, great essayist and philosopher wrote:

"Not the fruit of experience, but experience itself, is the end. A counted number of pulse beats is given to each of us. We have an interval in listlessness, some in high passions, but the wisest at least among the art and song. Art comes to you proposing frankly to give nothing but the highest quality to your moments as they pass."——

That, I think, is the philosophy of the true Bohemian. I made it mine. I began to understand that the trail I had undertaken might be long, but I also found the joy of toiling to develop a talent. Without losing sight of my ultimate goals, I learned to prize each day and each moment as a precious fragment of the whole—an interval to be spent in glorious living.

Soon there were four of us sharing that drafty, dank, half-furnished apartment. One was a dancer, one was a secretary, one was a sculptress, one was a singer. And I think that any one of us, hearing "Rudolfo" in La Boheme sing the aria, "Your Tiny Hands Are Frozen," will always think, instinctively, of that Greenwich Village apartment.

We were so poor that we lived from hand to mouth and counted ourselves lucky to exist at all. More than once, we had to dodge our landlord, and we learned all the tricks of cooking on gas jets and ironing on window panes. But we were in Bohemia, where poverty is no disgrace. If we could not give chairs to our guests, they were content to sit on the floor; if we could not serve them banquets, they were well satisfied to eat cheese and crackers. I learned the folly of false pride and the stupidity of pretense.

It is interesting to note, in passing, that all four of us have had interesting careers. The dancer became world-famous; the secretary married nobility and is today one of Europe's most famous hostesses, and the sculptress won an outstanding position in her art—and with it the love of many men, two of whom committed suicide because she could not return their love.

Of the four, then, I was considered the most fortunate, for I was assured of one full meal every day. I had a job! Every night I sang for my supper in the Black Cat Cafe. It was a dingy little place, reeking with odors of Italian condiments and cigarette smoke—but it is one of the important milestones of my career. It offered my first professional employment. It gave me confidence, for with it I crossed the line of demarcation and became a "performer," rather than an amateur.

Meanwhile, I haunted every casting office in New York, employing every argument that popped into my mind in the search for a chance on the stage. I had many chorus offers, but I rejected them all with hauteur. "I can sing!" I maintained.

I announced myself as "Miss Grace Elizabeth Moah of Jellico, Tenn.," and invariably the announcement brought smiles, for my Southern accent, in those days, was so pronounced that the average Yankee hardly could understand me.

For the benefit of one of the larger offices, I remember, I concocted an elaborate fable about my "professional experience."

"I was starred in California in 'The Lilac Domino'—I was very successful on the Pacific coast," I insisted—and, for weeks, could not understand why everyone in that office howled with glee whenever I made my claim. Then—imagine my embarrassment—I discovered that that very agency had actually supplied the entire cast for the Far Western road company of "The Lilac Domino."

—o-o—

FINALLY my persistence was rewarded by the ingenue lead in the touring company of "Suite Sixteen." To my joy—and hers—Blanche Le Garde also found a job with that same company. And what a tour we had. One night stands in the West were played before apathetic audiences in barn-like theaters only one degree warmer than the blizzards outside. Sometimes we traveled on jerk-water trains, sometimes we traveled by truck—but always we traveled.

And I hope I may recall without being accused of vanity that the outstanding hit of the show was my solo, an immortal gem entitled "First You Wiggle and Then You Waggle." Or did the waggle come first? I couldn't remember then and I can't now.

We seldom played to enough business to pay our salaries, but we all pulled together and made every sacrifice to keep the show going. And I was intoxicated with the thrill of being at last a trouper, able to accept cheerfully the hardships of a tour through "the sticks" and go on with the show.

Our manager, however, was less willing to accept hardships. One dreary morning in the snowbound hinterland of North Dakota, we discovered that he had absconded with all of the company funds. And there we were, stranded, until the Actors' Equity Association came to the rescue, paid our hotel bills and provided us with transportation back East.

THE STAMP REVIEW x x x By John Chamberlin

THE Department of Communications of Japan has issued national park stamps to introduce the beauty of Japan to the world. The first series is of four values and shows four different views of Mount Fuji of the Fuji-Hakone National Park. The 1½ sen shows an early dawn view of Mount Fuji, and the 3-sen depicts a distant view of Mount Fuji across Lake Ashi-ho-ko, which is formed by springs in an ancient crater. The lake is 2386 feet above sea level, and is famous for its reflection of snow-capped Fujiyama. Along the lake shore runs a road leading to the site of the ancient Hakone gate, where in olden times the passports of travelers were examined, and the purposes of their journey ascertained.

The 6-sen value shows a panamoramic view of Mount Fuji from the Mitsu Pass northeeast of the mountain, and the 10-sen is a winter view of Fuji as seen through the old pine trees on the Tokai-do road near Mishima.

The Japanese characters at both sides of the chrysenthemum at the top of the stamp read "Dai Nippon Teikoku Yubin," meaning "Imperial Japanese Post," and the characters at the bottom alongside the characters of value stand for Fuji-Hakone National Park.

Fuji, the national, and highest mountain of Japan, is known all over the world for its beauty. Its perfect cone rises 12,467 feet above sea level. In July and August some 100,000 pilgrims and visitors climb its sacred slopes to the summit, which command a magnificent view.

● The smallest postage stamp issued is a separate entity is the halfpenny stamp issued by Great Britain in 1870. Two of the German States—Brunswick and Mecklenburg Schwerin—issued stamps that were divisible into four portions, one of these portions being smaller than the British stamp, but these are really quarter stamps and are not individually considered complete. Spain also issued very small 1-4 centavo stamps, but these were printed in groups of four and could not be purchased individually.

—o-o—

MANY people wonder how the price of a rare stamp is arrived at, especially an airmail. About $30,000 is a leading average price for a rarity; that is, if there are 30,000 of the stamps issued, the stamp will eventually command a retail price of $1. If there are only 300, the price will be $100, more or less. But this system does not work out so well in the more popular countries. Of the United States 24-cent inverted plane, there were all of 50 copies on the market when the late Col. Green broke up his sheet of 50. Col. Green paid $20,000 for the sheet, and kept for his collection a block of eight, the bottom plate number block, also the centerline block, and two arrow blocks. The rest he sold at $250 apiece, through a dealer, donating the proceeds to the Red Cross. This stamp, according to "system" should sell for about $600, but it doesn't; it sells for more than $3000.

There is just one copy of this rarity used. Mrs. Green wished to send an airmail letter to her husband, and noticing some 24-cent airmails on his desk in his study, used one on her letter. Col. Green spotted the stamp as soon as he received the letter, removed it from the cover and had it inserted in a pendant which he wore on his watch chain.

The price of a rarity depends upon how many of the stamps there are available, and how many collectors, that can afford to purchase them, want them. Merely the old law of supply and demand.

—o-o—

THE errors of the Philippine Legislative series of 1926 are legitimate errors. All of the seven stamps of the set, issued to commemorate the inauguration of the Legislative Palace, were printed with the center in brown by the Bureau of Printing at Manila, and submitted as samples. These stamps were returned to the Bureau with instructions to print the center in black, but through error one value actually got into circulation through sale at the postoffice.

In the printing of the first set of airmails, the work was done entirely under the direction of the Bureau of Posts, and as soon as the stamps were surcharged, the plate for overprinting was destroyed. Neither the Bureau of Posts nor the Bureau of Printing was aware that a sheet of the 26c, perf. 12 was among the others. Neither this error not the 4c with inverted surcharge was discovered until many months after the date of issue.

—o-o—

THE most original gift that the Swedish Postoffice Department received on its 300 years' Jubilee was the Danish "Kugelpostvagn" (Ball Wagon). The name is derived from the ostrich-egg shape of the wagon. It is a true copy of the kind of wagon that was used from 1812 to 1865 to carry the express or courier mail from Denmark to Stockholm, Sweden. The wagon was sent from Fredirkshavn, Denmark, on the ship "Crownprinsess Ingrid" on July 1 to Gothenburg, Sweden, on the ship's maiden voyage. The wagon on its trip to Sweden was in charge of a Danish mail wagon driver. From Gothenburg to Stockholm, about 350 miles, the wagon was drawn by horses over the original mail route. On this last trip from Gothenburg the wagon carried several thousand covers bearing a special cachet of the last trip by "Kuglepost."

This New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.

THERE is scarcely a hotel in Manhattan but has as its star boarder an aged character who has contrived to be left behind by time and mutation, usually some lavender and cameo brooch belle dame, reliving the fragrance of the past in a suite complete with bronze electrolieres, gilt furniture and the tasseled piano shawls of a more "elegant" era. Often they are affluent to a surprising degree, family fortunes and estates probated in the spacious years having drifted to them, and as a rule they cleave to the older hotels, such as the Plaza, the St. Regis, the Ansonia.

One grandma of whom we know maintains a fabulously expensive apartment occupying a whole hotel floor overlooking Central Park and although she hasn't been out of the house in a dozen years, save for an annual safari on Newport, a beautifully maintained vintage Packard, with a footman on the box, waits every day against her chance whim for an airing.

Despaired of by doctors two decades since, she has outlived her ailments and her medical advisers, too, having recently achieved a garrulous and entirely competent 90 that rejoices in an elephant-size Manhattan every night before dinner.

"My son, he's 60 this week, warns me I'll die of drink," she tells her friends.

Two other old ladies live in a Fifty-eighth street hotel that is the last word in smart modernity, but they have health notions. They always wear gloves, even to bed, one suspects, and whenever a servant has entered their rooms they seize twin atomizers and whisk about the premises, squirting disinfectants and exorcising imaginary microbes.

Another octogenarian lady, from the deep South, still recalls the precepts of her Negro mammy and shuns the sunshine, with its consequent freckles, like the plague. No nice girl exposes her skin to the sun, she knows, so that, even in a time when tans and sunshine are almost a fetish, she is constantly veiled and gloved against its baneful effects whenever she essays the five-second trot across the sidewalk (and under the doorman's parasol) to her car. Edith Wharton folk to the very life.

—o-o—

THERE seems to be no stopping Jack and Charlie's "21" as one of the four or five most distinguished restaurants of the town and as its ace promenade for celebrities. Came repeal and every one ventured sadly that, they guessed that was the end of "21." But, in a word, no, for after a few weeks of savoring the thrill of drinking in great hotel dining rooms and other cafes, the patrons came right back to Fifty-second street and the familiar iron grill.

Then the Brothers Kriendler started an enlargment project and folk shook their heads, said the appeal of the place was in its old-time speakeasy atmosphere of intimacy and that this would never do.

The truth, of course, is that Mac, Jack and Charlie contrive to be all things to all people whom they consider patrons. There are a few unsolicited customers now and then, the undressed and the undesirable, but they are shunted into the back room upstairs, and heaven knows what they get to eat. Any knowing person shown into the doghouse would command a pistol and shoot himself right then.

But for friends of the house there is nothing that can't be had. If at 9 o'clock in the evening, as once happened, a group of eight sporty collegians decide they want to sail for the Grand National on the Berengaria at midnight, their clothes are packed and their passage waiting for them when they patter up the gangplank. If a patron is in the hospital fruit, flowers and condolences start rolling in from Jack or Mac. If somebody wants to chat with his sweetheart whom he thinks is dining in West Brook Street, London, but isn't quite certain, the "21" operator will find her if she's in fact dancing at the George V, in Paris, and the call is on your table phone in a jiffy. The place is not only a restaurant but a vastly well run club. But you've got to be friends with the management.

This New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.

THERE is scarcely a hotel in Manhattan but has as its star boarder an aged character who has contrived to be left behind by time and mutation, usually some lavender and cameo brooch belle-dame, reliving the fragrance of the past in a suite complete with bronze electrolieres, gilt furniture and the tasseled piano shawls of a more "elegant" era. Often they are affluent to a surprising degree, family fortunes and estates probated in the spacious years having drifted to them, and as a rule they cleave to the older hotels, such as the Plaza, the St. Regis, the Ansonia.

One grandma of whom we know maintains a fabulously expensive apartment occupying a whole hotel floor overlooking Central Park and although she hasn't been out of the house in a dozen years, save for an annual safari on Newport, a beautifully maintained vintage Packard, with a footman on the box, waits every day against her chance whim for an airing.

Despaired of by doctors two decades since, she has outlived her ailments and her medical advisers, too, having recently achieved a garrulous and entirely competent 90 that rejoices in an elephant-size Manhattan every night before dinner.

"My son, he's 60 this week, warns me I'll die of drink," she tells her friends.

Two other old ladies live in a Fifty-eighth street hotel that is the last word in smart modernity, but they have health notions. They always wear gloves, even to bed, one suspects, and whenever a servant has entered their rooms they seize twin atomizers and whisk about the premises, squirting disinfectants and exorcising imaginary microbes.

Another octogenarian lady, from the deep South, still recalls the precepts of her Negro mammy and shuns the sunshine, with its consequent freckles, like the plague. No nice girl exposes her skin to the sun, she knows, so that, even in a time when tans and sunshine are almost a fetish, she is constantly veiled and gloved against its baneful effects whenever she essays the five-second trot across the sidewalk (and under the doorman's parasol) to her car. Edith Wharton folk to the very life.

THERE seems to be no stopping Jack and Charlie's "21" as one of the four or five most distinguished restaurants of the town and as its ace promenade for celebrities. Came repeal and every one ventured sadly that they guessed that was the end of "21." But, in a word, no, for after a few weeks of savoring the thrill of drinking in great hotel dining rooms and other cafes, the patrons came right back to Fifty-second street and the familiar iron grill.

Women to the FRONT

By Ely Culbertson

FROM Austria comes word that should gladden the heart of all feminine bridge players and send the men (who have patronized and lorded it over them many years) slinking to cover, confused and humiliated.

A women's team, competing in a long and therefore decisive tournament in Vienna, has swept the field of masculine opponents among whom were numbered some of Austria's greatest players, and thus earned the right to represent their country at the forthcoming Grand European tournament to be held in Stockholm, Sweden. Since Austrian players are generally accounted among the finest in Europe, it will be seen that the women have earned a notable victory.

I will not deny that I was particularly pleased by the comments of Dr. Paul Stern (recent international winner with Dr. von Kaltenegger of the World Bridge Olympic) who wrote the review of the match for the Austrian Bridge magazine. Translation of part of his article reads as follows:

"While most of the men who participated were better, individually, than the women, the result was a success of systems. The men could not give the women the handicap of the 4-5 no trump convention, the asking bids, and the strict obedience to a definite system."

So, while I, as a man, may grieve at the humiliation of my sex, there is a great deal of solace for me as inventor and advocate of that system!

—o-o—

● SOME PLAYERS stake their all on the success of a certain finesse. If it loses, they shrug as philosophically as possible and attribute their defeat to the malevolence of fate. Other players take and lose the same finesse but, before doing so, cannily maneuver to have fate working for them! As in today's hand:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

North:
♠10 7 5
♦Q 10 9 7 4 3
♣A K

West:
♠K 9 8 6 4
♥A J 8 5
♦K 5

East:
♠J 3 2
♥K Q 7 3
♣8 7 6 4 3

South:
♠A Q
♥10 6 2
♦A J 8 6
♣Q J 10 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diam	1 spade	3 diam	Pass
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

West could see no better opening lead than a spade and therefore led his fourth highest. East played the jack and declarer made a lightning calculation. He saw at a glance that if West held the diamond king and won it on a finesse that he, West, would be able to count nine tricks for the opponents if South disclosed the A Q of spades by winning the first trick with the queen. (Two spades, five diamonds and two clubs.)

That being so, West would be forced to shift to hearts as the one chance of defeating the contract. And, quite obviously, North and South were not prepared for a heart shift!

—o-o—

● AT THE SAME glance, declarer saw that it was unimportant whether he took one or two spade tricks, since he had extra tricks concealed in the club suit, if only that heart shift could be avoided! (Obviously, if the diamond finesse were to succeed, any line of play would work.)

There was one chance to avoid the heart shift, and declarer seized it. He won the first trick with the spade ace! Entering dummy with a club, he led the queen of diamonds and finessed. West won with the king and who can blame him for figuring that his partner had the queen of spades? He led a low spade and declarer, chuckling fiendishly, gobbled up the trick and ran off three clubs and five diamonds, for a total of five odd!

—o-o—

● QUESTION: During a deal I saw the ace of diamonds being dealt to an opponent. I called it and asked for a new deal. Was I correct in this?

Answer: Yes, you were within your rights.

QUESTION: What is the correct opening bid on the following hand, dealer vulnerable?

♠7 ♥9 6 3 ♦A K Q J 9 7 5 3 ♣A

Answer: If you are using the new two-way three bid, this hand is ideal for an opening three diamond bid. Otherwise, one diamond is the best bid.

Fur Trimmings

Furs figure largely in the plans of coat and suit designers. From the look of things it would seem that we are to be more befurred than ever. Suits have their coats trimmed with furs in stole effect, so that the skins can be manipulated in various ways such as under the chin, draped down the back or loosely hanging in front. Also we find fluffy fox done on tailored lines in the form of straight collars and notched revers. A suit of black woolen with a silvery overcast tone has a collar and revers of silver fox. The coat is fitted at the waist and is almost knee length. It could be worn with a straight fitted black wool frock.

classic halls, who is appearing in the revue, "New Faces."

IT IS ONE of the interesting things about newspaper business that so little of what is technically called "trade news" finds its way into the daily press. Yet certainly the recent poll conducted by a publication on the box-office appeal of various stars is fascinating to those who look for the names of favorites on their theater marquees. For instance, Astaire and Rogers led the list, with Shirley Temple second and Clark Gable third. Far down the list, at 43, was the flaming youngster, Hepburn. And the magic name of Garbo was not to be found at all. I wonder why?

—o-o—

ONE OF THE town's tireless reporters names these as places that no visitor should miss—The Stork Club, the Japanese Gardens at the Ritz, the lounge at the Plaza, the retreat at One Fifth Avenue, and the Westchester Bath Club. This, naturally, is but one man's opinion. The last named, by the way, is this year the toniest roadhouse near Gotham, and the one place to see the gilded youth of these parts at their innocent childish games, such as polo on kiddie cars.

—o-o—

SHADES OF my girlhood! Edith Taliaferro reappears in the news—to appear in a summer-theater version of one of Bernard Shaw's greatest acting parts, "Pygmalian." He wrote it, remember, for his beloved Stella Campbell! . . . "The Merry Widow," too, is immortal. It was one of the hits of the summer season in the open-air at Forest Park, St. Louis. "Vilia, my Vilia!"

Good Taste in Hats

● IF A GIRL'S special pride is a beautiful, clear-cut forward hairline she should wear the kind of hat that displays it, no matter how tempting the other offerings of the shop may be.

All hat buyers must carefully regard the profile and the back view. How many take the small mirror and make a survey? Not many. It is a mistake to overlook this interesting detail. Don't forget that the hat is the most important element of dress, that it can make a pretty girl a caricature, transform the plain duckling into a swan.

Perfect harmony between face, coiffure and hat makes for good looks and expresses exquisite taste.

Gray Fur Coats

Style authorities are commenting upon the reappearance of gray as a high style shade in fur coats. It was worn to some extent last year, its favorite version then being a swagger model of caracul kid with muff and toque to match. For the coming winter this fur is used again, but there are rivals in moire caracul, Persian lamb, novelty kidskins and natural squirrel.

Since the gray theme is a modish one the designers of fur coats are taking advantage of this to present some of their most extreme styles in the shade. Flaring tunic coats, for example, are introduced as are the short boxy coats and the military looking capes.

Dust all of your electric lights at least once a week, to obtain the maximum light. Wash them occasionally, being careful not to wet the metal part.

Odd Humans Who Like to Be in Wrong

They Rely Upon Self-Pity Rather Than Upon Self-Respect.

By Elsie Robinson

THERE'S a peculiar breed of people in our modern world—a breed which is increasing so rapidly that it threatens to become a public menace . . . a breed of Deliberate Sufferers.

Most humans like to be right, like to be admired and applauded. But these odd creatures actuallly like to be wrong and IN wrong.

"That isn't reasonable," you say. "When people are in wrong, they get a beating."

Which is exactly why these ornery humans prefer their unhappy state. They LIKE to get a beating! They LIKE to be blamed and punished! They LIKE, in short, to be Mangled Martyrs!

But why should anyone crave such a perverted position in life? For exactly the same reason that normal humans crave positions of pride and power.

You have heard the old axiom, "Self-preservation is the first law of nature." That is true. Every human spirit wishes to preserve itself, socially as well as physically. Self-expression is a form of self-preservation—a forceful and fundamental form. It isn't enough to live. We must put our lives on record . . . make others recognize them.

That is the urge behind every form of ambition—good or evil. That is the reason for great heroes and statesmen, and also for gangsters. We all want our place in the sun. And as life speeds up, as human existence becomes more congested and competitive, it's harder to obtain that place in the sun. So hard that many weak, lazy and cowardly spirits find the struggle too much for them and resort to other methods of reaching the same goal.

—o-o—

STRONG, HEALTHY people put themselves on record by honest and happy endeavor . . . by striving to get themselves "in right." Twisted, sickly spirts attain the same results by STRIVING TO GET THEMSELVES IN WRONG.

There's one such poisonous mortal in nearly every family, every department in the office, every social circle. Where others forge ahead, they gain attention by hanging behind. Where others strive to please, they must be coaxed and teased, thereby making a racket of their "modesty" and grabbing the spotlight quite as effectively as the friendly, willing souls.

But people get wise to such pests . . . hate them . . ."

Indeed they do. And thereby give those neurotic natures the satisfaction they've been seeking. For, just as normal people enjoy popularity, so these contrary creatures enjoy PUNISHMENT.

The psychologists have a handy name for it—they call it "masochism." A masochist is a person who, instead of resenting suffering, delights in it. Derives a sense of importance from it. Ends by actually seeking it, and making a racket of his own pain and humiliation.

Wives who whine continually about their husbands' beatings, yet refuse to take any steps about it, are "masochists."

Husbands who everlastingly complain of their wives' nagging, yet likewise refuse to take a stand against it, are "masochists."

Workers who spend their days cringing before some overbearing straw boss, instead of telling him how-come and where-to, are "masochists."

People who yelp about the brutality of the Capitalistic system, yet won't take a job which will lift them out of the bread line, are "masochists."

—o-o—

ALL OF US are masochists when we yield to self-pity, go around complaining about our Bad Luck instead of doing something about it.

Life in this twentieth century is a tough rap for even the sturdiest souls to take. We've gone ahead too fast for our own capacities of body or mind. We're facing too many new problems . . . being forced to make too many new adjustments. And the temptation to become a masochist, to rely upon SELF-PITY rather than upon SELF-RESPECT, hangs over us all like poison gas.

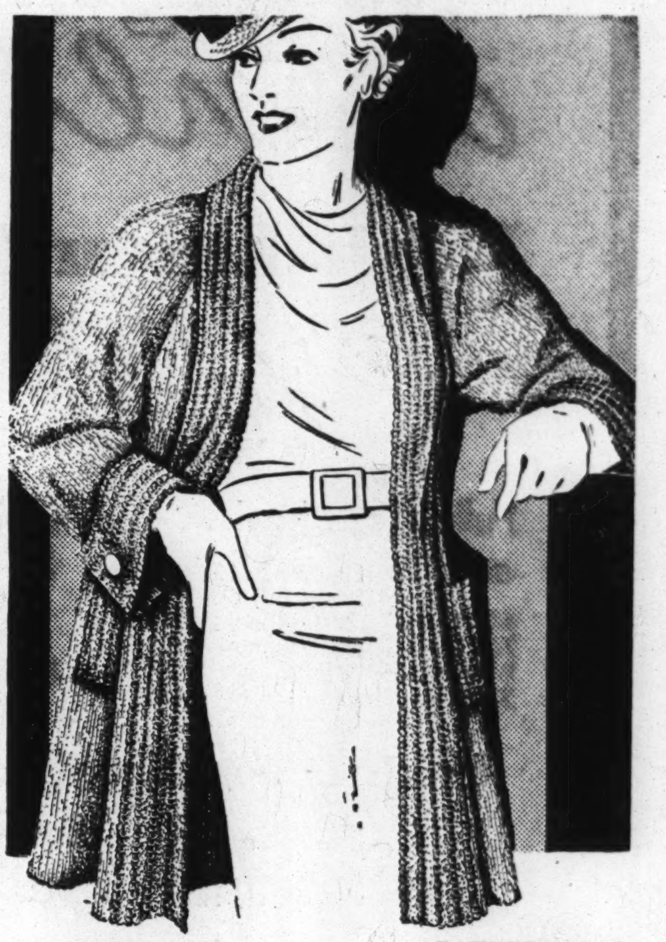
DON'T YIELD!

Don't make a racket of being contrary, hanging back, getting in wrong, taking a beating.

LIFE'S CHALLENGING YOU! Take that challenge like a two-fisted man—not a white mouse.

Knitted Swagger Coat

By LAURA WHEELER



KNITTED COAT PATTERN 1238

THIS jaunty, knitted swagger, in Germantown wool, is mainly stockinette stitch with bands and pockets in a contrasting stitch. Pattern 1238 contains directions for making this coat in sizes 16-18 and 38-40; illustrations of it and of all stitches used; material requirements.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly PATTERN NUMBER, your NAME and ADDRESS.

Rose Petal Satin

A tunic evening frock of rose petal satin will appeal to the woman who wants to make her late-summer formal do for autumn nights as well. The sheath-like underslip has a camisole top that is nicely finished so that a very formal evening gown is provided without the tunic. The tunic belt is detachable and may be removed for wear without the blouse as may the two flowers, one pink and the other dark red, which adorn the bodice. As for the tunic it has the flaring hemline, Princesse bodice which is fitted high, and a cape-like draped back caught with shirring at the shoulders.

Instructing Juveniles in Use of Money

Proper Training From the Beginning Will Prove Helpful Later On.

By Angelo Patri

CHILDREN should be given allowances not as a reward, not as a gift, but as an essential element in their education and training. Children have to be taught the meaning and the use of money, and the only way they can get that highly necessary knowledge is by personal experience. The child must get and spend money. The experiences he gathers in getting and spending are what he must depend upon for financial wisdom in years to come.

This knowledge cannot be given, nor can it be experienced in brief time. It must be learned during the years. To begin with, a child is given his money and told how to use it. By the time he is ready to go to college he has earned some money and can be trusted to spend it with some show of sense. In between these two states lies a span of complicated experiences. The richer they are the surer the child's power. The more personal they are the sounder their foundation.

A 5-year-old is given five cents a week. Is he to earn it? Is he to take out his Sunday school money? Is he to save any? I would say "No," to all three questione. Little children should get one experience at a time for best results, and I think that childhood is the spending time. Tell the 5-year-old that this is his spending money. He can buy whatever he likes, but he gets no more money, not one cent, until next pay day. Stick to that.

—o-o—

AS THE children grow older the allowance is increased. They are trained to buy their own clothes beginning with little things and extending their purchasing field as time goes by. Saving, personal saving, comes more logically when the saver is also an earner. Saving other folks' money is too close to win a high place in educational finance.

It is fair to let a child put aside a share of his funds for the purchase of some special bit of equipment. It is kind and fair, too, for parents to help with such funds by adding to them on birthdays and high occasions such as when an honor certificate comes home from school. It is distinctly unkind, and unhelpful, to say, "When you get $20 saved up I'll add $20 to it and you can buy the boat." When could he save so much as that?

—o-o—

THE BEST TEST of any family practice is its success. Does it work? Do the children work happily under the plan? If it seems to work it ought to be good for the children in question. One plan is helpful when another will not serve. The results must decide.

Should children be paid for chores? Children usually, especially young ones who cannot really do work, ought to have their share of the family finances to shoulder, according to their ability. It should be looked upon as a family responsibility such as taking care of the furniture and saving the light bills.

When older children do the work that would otherwise have to be done by outside workman they should be paid in excess of their allowance, if that is possible. The money usually goes into the education budget of the child. The idea under the scheme ought to be family partnership, family sharing and the responsibility that goes with it.

Never let your salad greens stand in dressing, for it wilts them. It is preferable to unite the salad and dressing just before eating.

Velvet Coats For Day Wear

THE era of elegance which has been predicted is assuring itself in the form of velvet fashions for many occasions, a significant trend being toward formal daytime coats of the luxurious pile fabric. Incidentally the manufacturers of velvets have some improvements to offer so that there will be less crushing and water spotting to contend with this coming winter.

A featured coat of velvet for daytime is in the redingote style. Sometimes it is fur trimmed, fox being the most appropriate to complete its dignity. Again, braid trimming is used and the coat assumes a military type. Besides the redingote there are short, boxy coats of the velvet to be worn over frocks of lovely woolen in a contrasting shade, as well as some striking capes.

Waistcoat blouses of velvet are quite new as are the short, fitted velvet jackets which resemble old-fashioned basques. The latter are trimmed with flutted plaid taffeta ribbons, cordings or narrow band.

YESTERDAY I got a real thrill, for try as I will, I can scarcely ever get even a glimpse of Garbo. But just as I was passing by one of the sound stage doors it flew open and out popped Greta, who, without a glance in any direction, gathered up her voluminous skirts of gold bengaline and shot as straight as a homing pigeon for her dressing room not many yards away. The door banged shut and that was all I saw of Garbo. Her flight was not so swift, however, and I had all the time in the world to observe her maid carrying her makeup box and several others bearing magnificent gowns and wraps worn by the newest Camille. Not much to get excited about, but then even a flash of Greta is considered quite an event out here.

THOUGH everyone here is giving thought to fall costumes, there is still plenty of time and sun to make large shade hats both useful and comforting. In proof of this, Mrs. Alexander Young, a very charming person, who makes her home in Honolulu, has just arrived on our shores with quite a number of them which she is delivering in person to several of the movie stars who either ordered them when in Honolulu or sent for them through friends.

Today, when I was at Metro, Mrs. Young was delivering two of them, one to Rosaline Russel and the other to Jeanette MacDonald. These hats are called Lauhalas, and are of woven grasses. They were originally made by the natives of the Island, and though the workmanship was of the best, the shapes, to say the least, were a bit fantastic and crude. Realizing their potential beauty, Mrs. Young bought up a batch of them, sent to New York for the snappiest things she could command in the way of forms and then blocked the native output in smart styles and set herself up in business. In the matter of trimming these hats, Mrs. Young felt she could not improve on the native custom of bedecking them with bits of deep sea coral, lacquered "wooden roses", a sort of everlasting rose which is found on the islands, and bits of polished coconut shells.

The hat which she had made for Rosalind was a large floppy affair in natural colored straw and at the front there was a miniature palm tree, the trunk being of the coconut shell left, in this instance, shaggy and rough. The leaves were of dark green patent leather, while, under the tree, lay a few polished pink sea shells scattered about. Mrs. Young also showed me some exquisitely batiked musline for blouses and buttons of carved and polished nut shells to be used as trimming.

—o-o—

Una Merkel and her husband, Ronald Burla, were entertaining a group of friends at the Vine Street Brown Derby when we were there last night. Una was christening a new autumn outfit of sheer black wool with all-over-black braid trimming. The neck line was slit almost to the waist in front and showed a collar and vest of white satin. The collar was upstanding and was caught at the throat with a large pin of jade and diamonds. Miss Merkle's hat was of black felt, with a shallow crown and a fluted turned-down brim. Around the crown was a black grosgrained band finishing with a bow in front.

AND THAT brings us back, again, to the matter of the new hats. Prunella Wood's delightful sketches in the Post-Dispatch Women's Section last Sunday showing three or four of the towering models might easily have been drawn right here in Hollywood, for, since the G-Men seem to have caught all the gangsters, the fashion moguls have taken possession of the hoodlum's pet phrase—"Reach for the sky." The movie designers and the stars take the command to mean becoming high hat in a millinery—not military—way.

Such tall hats as we've been glimpsing on the boulevards and in the la-de-da cocktail bars! We've seen turbans wrapped higher than the most vain and handsome Rajah's; crowns that tower up like Beau Broadway's best topper; bows that stand right up for themselves; wings that spread skyward, and quills that were intended to write fashion history, but never a letter.

"Sort of Simple Simon number," is what Patricia Ellis calls her brown felt. Simple? Never—but I can see where the designer hadn't forgotten his Mother Goose pictures. The crown is a good six inches high and the yellow grosgrain band which crosses is two-thirds as deep. The slight brim gently rolls up on the sides and down over one eye. Off the front sweeps a colorful shaded yellow feather which goes up and up to curve independently over the flat top of the hat.

Rochelle Hudson, who has an unusual flair for petite hats, wears a Dubonnet felt which would be a skull cap if it weren't for the little peaked crown. A wide ribbon of matching grosgrain is tied around the hat to form a stiff bow that points skyward.

Glenda Farrell, smiling across from Drew Eberson in the Brown Derby showed what could be done with a bit of black duvetyn and an eagle's feather. The hat, which is close-fitting, rises up several inches in an irregular line, to be pierced at the base of the little tower with a long feather which slants off at an angle but still manages to give more height to the chapeau.

—o-o—

Turned-back brims are also to be reckoned with when it comes to gaining altitude. Carol Hughes, who plays a homebody in "Three Men on a Horse," and consequently won't be able to show her interesting headgear in the picture, showed me her personal hat choice for fall. Of fir-green felt, it does an abrupt bend off one side and up on the other, adding a good three inches to Carol's five feet four.

—o-o—

Little Lenore Ulrich is out here now and working in "Camille," along with Garbo, and the other day I ran into her going in to Adrian's office just as I was coming out, and would you believe it, she has gone Hollywood, too, and was in blue slacks and a white jacket. Hollywood may not be as conventional in its dress as New York, but the refugees who assemble here are not long in discovering that it is a lot more comfortable.

—o-o—

JEAN HARLOW was just about the smartest looking girl I ever saw when I met her this week at the Jascha Heifetz concert at the Hollywood Bowl, and was she making the eyes of the observers pop! Jean had on the grandest looking swagger coat of white galyac cut very, very wide and the sleeves were full and puffed at the shoulders and pulled in tight at the cuffs. And her hat, well, that was something, too. There was a sort of skull cap of white jersey and all about this was a flaring, upstanding brim much like an exaggerated sailor's cap of the white galyac. Under the arresting sports coat Jean wore a plain dress of black jersey.

—o-o—

Butterflies with wings of platinum, studded with diamonds, emeralds or rubies, are seen flashing about in Hollywood these days. They range from tiny little ones to those of quite generous proportions. The smaller ones are often seen perched upon a corsage or shoulder flower of some cinema beauty and the larger ones nestle comfortably at the neck of a decolette gown fluttering and glistening with each movement of the wearer. These gay gadgets are picked up by the wings, which you then press together, place where you wish it to alight, loosen the hold on the wings and the butterfly clips to whatever foundation it finds itself resting upon.

—o-o—

Lots of St. Louis people have been out here this summer and all of them wanted to get into the movie studios. Not many of them do but lovely little Kathleen Wallace, who made her debut back home last season and who was here this week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wallace and the Hayward Posts, found the studio gates thrown open to her. She did the Huntington Library, the Santa Barbara Fiesta and all the social events, but confessed that she wouldn't have missed seeing pictures made for anything. Many a male star watched her as she moved around the sets and wondered (perhaps hoped) if she was a new cinema "find." But Miss Wallace expressed no desire in that direction. She was satisfied to see how it was all done.

—o-o—

I RAN across Joan Crawford displaying a smart new outfit for late summer. Joan, you know, probably has more clothes than any one in Hollywood and pretty nearly every week is the beginning of a new "season" for her. This time the simple shirtmaker frock was cleverly tailored from black and white print, and featured a neckline ornamented by a heavy, gold chain.

With this dress the star chose to wear a white flannel swagger coat. Her large hat was of black straw and her accessories of white pigskin. The smart bag was adorned with a matching gold chain, repeating the metal touch at the neck of the gown.

—o-o—

All the fine broths of lads and colleens in the land, it seems, have been seen in the informal gathering of the clans late at night in the Brown Derby. Some are married, true, and some are romancin', but then the twinkle of romance is never wanting in the Irish eye.

Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan and John Farrow, Glenda Farrell and Drew Eberson, Mary Brian and Jerry Lambert, the Walter Connollys, the Pat O'Briens, Gracie Allen and George Burns, the Errol Flynns, the Gleason family, the George Murphys and the Stuart Erwins—all Ould Sod people in good standing who were recent visitors at the Derby.

—o-o—

MENTIONING Mary Brian brings to mind that the assiduous courtship of Mary by a young executive of United Airlines resulted in that young star being "grounded" temporarily by authorities.

The authorities in the case were represented by Mary's mother and the studio where the actress is currently appearing in a production.

Both rendered uneasy by her continued trips aloft, both studio and parent joined hands in the common cause.

"The ground order" will last until the duration of the picture, at which time Mary's mother will take the matter again under advisement. Meanwhile, the young executive pursues his courtship on equal footing with the other young men.

Brooches and Bar Pins Are Back in Style

So, Too, Are Necklaces and Even Old-Fashioned Drawstring Beaded Bags.

BROOCHES, bar pins, necklaces and even the old-fashioned drawstring beaded bag, are back in the fashion limelight. This means that anyone with a hobby of saving old trinkets and knickknacks can have a lot of fun pretending that they are new ones.

Clothes with a lavish flair, fitted silhouettes, leg o' mutton sleeves, braid and embroidery trimming and many other evidences of other days which are important fashion features for autumn, are giving the old trinkets a chance to stage an equally successful comeback.

The brooches which are advocated are replicas of very expensive pieces which come under the "old-timer's" classifications. Rhinestones cut to resemble genuine diamonds and elaborately mounted are to be popular, as are the antique gold types which are associated with definite historical periods. The latter add much vivid color.

Among the bar pins there are some very tailored types suitable only for street wear, as well as handsome ones which can be worn on dinner frocks. The metal pins are quite large and rather intricately designed. Copper and gold are the metals most in favor. Catalin and various composition pins appear in bright shades to contribute the flash of color to black frocks.

As for the beaded bags, they are appearing in versions ranging from the bargain counter type to the exclusive jeweler's item. There also is a model which is termed the pompadour because of its modified drawstring principle and pouchy appearance.

EXHAUSTED, ivy poisoned, mosquito bitten and unstrung by the horrors of suburban cooking, the town's vacationists are returning from their seasonal exposure to the rigors of relaxation and are attempting in some measure to render themselves fit for business by an intensive workout in the night clubs and joy chalets of the urban midst.

For 50 weeks of the year New Yorkers look forward with glassy-eyed dismay to the dread time when, with fear in their hearts and a ghastly smile frozen on their faces, they will have to assume an Abercrombie and Fitch pose in the train shed and actually go out of town. A fortnight later, their most dismal fears having been more than justified, they reappear, wan, pallid, pitifully fingering the napkins, unwilling to believe that fuzz won't come off them all over and pawing tentatively with their feet for a bar, having been in curious states where bars are not.

In many cases their nerves are quite shattered by their experiences; non-air-cooled Pullmans on distant branch roads, no room service after 10 o'clock, interminable hours of sleep and other hardships of primitive life. It usually takes about a week in the French Casino to get them to a point where they make any sense at all again.

Co-Operatives Doing $300,000,000 Yearly Business in the U. S.

Consumer Organizations, Many of Them Born During Depression, Likely to Become Important Trade and Government Issue: Report of Commission to Europe to Be Held Till After Election.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
Of the Post-Dispatch Washington Staff.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.

CO-OPERATIVE societies conducting their own grocery stores, oil stations, insurance companies, utility systems, bakeries, restaurants, will this year do an estimated business of more than $300,000,000. What was merely a curious form of economy practiced by a few immigrants in isolated communities has become, for the time being at any rate, a source of national interest which even big business has recognized as a potential threat to private trade.

This national interest has come partly out of the action of President Roosevelt in June in sending a commission of inquiry to Europe to study the function of the co-operative movement in the economy of those countries where it is an important factor—Great Britain, Sweden, Finland, Denmark, Czechoslovakia and France. But this was merely political confirmation of the widespread growth of co-operation in this country during the depression.

Casting about for some means of bettering their lot and regaining a measure of control over their economic destiny, the American people, or a section of them, have turned to co-operation. The movement is still in the enthusiastic stage. It is at present something of a fad, just as technocracy was a few years ago. And there are skeptics who wonder whether co-operation is to take a real hold and develop soundly or whether it is to burn briefly as another economic panacea, like technocracy, and then fade out. The experience of Europe has shown that sound co-operatives have developed steadily and gradually, fostered by patient, painstaking care and self-interest.

There are, broadly speaking, two kinds of co-operatives. Producer co-operatives are made up of individuals who band together to sell their produce—grain, fish, fruit, whatever it may be. By so doing they eliminate the profit of the middle-man and therefore have larger profits for themselves. Among farm groups producer co-operatives have had a successful growth for 30 years or longer. They own grain elevators, large dairies, great refrigerating systems to preserve the citrus crop in California.

Because comparatively few persons—chiefly commission men and brokers—are hit by this form of co-operation, there are few who actively resist its growth. Since the beginning of the New Deal the Farm Credit Administration has fostered the growth of producers' co-operatives and with a record of marked success.

Consumer Buying On Cost Basis.

Consumer co-operatives, the second type, are made up of individuals who band together to acquire the necessities of life on a non-profit—a cost—basis.

A group of a dozen or more form a co-operative society. They open a gasoline station or a grocery store. When the membership has increased goods are sold at this co-operative store at the same price as in other stores but at the end of the year the members receive dividends in proportion to the purchases each member has made. The dividend is roughly equal to the profit which would have gone to the owner or the stockholder if the purchases had been made in a private store. The co-operative society is organized on a democratic basis with one vote to each member regardless of how much capital the member has put to establish the store on a going basis. Return on this initial capital is customarily limited to 5 per cent or less.

Obviously if consumer co-operatives should take hold, a large number of private shopkeepers would be directly affected. Several associations of retailers have already begun to raise a loud protest. The National Retail Clothiers' Association has demanded to know whether President Roosevelt's action in sending a commission to Europe to inquire into European co-operatives means that his administration is to sponsor the consumer co-operative movement. In answer to such protests co-operative leaders say that the independent storekeeper has been ruined by the chain stores any way and the only thing for him to do is to become a co-operator and work in a co-operative store.

Platform Plank Prepared, Dropped.

Early in the spring President Roosevelt became interested in co-operation as a means of checking monopoly and monopoly price dictation. When it came time to draft the Democratic platform, the President's brain-trusters drew up a plank endorsing co-operation as a safeguard of price and quality. Senator Wagner, chairman of the Resolutions Committee, took this along with all other planks to Philadelphia with him and retired to a hotel room with the party strategists.

Somewhere between the hotel room and the convention floor the co-operative plank was dropped out. All that remained of it in the completed platform was this meaningless generalization: "We will act to secure to the consumer fair value, honest sales and decreased spread between the price he pays and the price the producer receives." Presumably conservative advice had prevailed and the administration had decided against avowed sponsorship of consumer co-operatives.

When the President sent the commission to Europe, it was said he would use their report as the basis for a further step in behalf of co-operatives. It was taken as inevitable that the report would favor co-operative development. Chairman of the commission is Jacob Baker, assistant WPA Administrator who established a very efficient system of production for use on a limited scale among the unemployed. Baker is known to be sympathetic to co-operation. It was reported that a permanent bureau would be set up which would give some sort of assistance to struggling co-operatives.

Now, it is said, conservative advice has again prevailed and an effort will be made to keep the issue of consumer co-operation entirely out of the campaign. The commission's report will not be made public until the election. It is political dynamite, say the conservatives in the administration who have urged that co-operation be soft-pedaled in a campaign year. Too close to Socialism to be comfortable, they point out, citing the Socialist charge already raised by the National Retail Clothiers' Association.

Harding, Coolidge Gave Blessing.

What makes this rather ludicrous is the little known fact that both Presidents Harding and Coolidge gave co-operation—consumer and producer—their official blessing. And what is more, Harding, who would hardly be considered a Socialist, sent Chairman Huston Thompson of the Federal Trade Commission to Europe to study co-operatives. Thompson brought back a highly favorable report recommending the adoption of many phases of co-operation in this country. When Thompson had completed his lengthy report, a Republican Congress voted to have it published as a Senate document, available to the public. In a speech made in Idaho not long before his death Harding said:

"We realize that the real producer, under our elaborate and costly system of production, is not permitted a fair share of his product for his own use and enjoyment. We have become convinced that somehow our system of distribution has grown too cumbersome, too costly, too complex, too indirect, too unrelated to the interests of real producers and legitimate consumers . . . the need of the time is to shorten the bridge between producer and consumer and to reduce the toll that must be paid for passing over it. On the whole I think the agricultural community has been more alive to the promotion of its interests along these lines than has the urban community. The farmers have seen where their interests lay and have been more prompt and energetic in adopting effective measures to promote them than the people of the city and town have been.

"There is need to have working and practical co-operative associations of producers in the country and at the same time to have equally effective co-operation among the consuming communities of the cities and towns; and finally to link these sets of co-operatives together in a co-ordination for mutual advantage to both."

Message by Coolidge.

And a year later Coolidge in a message to the National Council of Farmers' Co-operative Marketing Associations had this to say:

"I have many times declared my conviction that the development of a powerful co-operative movement in this country is one of the needs of this period of economic readjustments. Much has been accomplished along this line in many American communities, but it can not be said that the co-operative idea has found a very firm lodgment in the actual practice of the great majority of the American people. Yet the examples of its advan-

Monetary Bastille Falls Under the Impact of a Socialist's Phrase

HOW "THE TWELVE" LOST CONTROL OF BANK OF FRANCE

Hereditary Oligarchy in Complete Control of Nation's Wealth for a Century

Popular Front Government Puts Its Resources at Disposal of Nation as a Whole, in Response to Complaint That Small Business, Labor and Farmer Were Ignored.

By RICHARD L. STOKES
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Aug. 1.

IN the Rue Croix-des-Petits-Champs, not far from the Palais-Royal, stands a building which—the French idea of grandeur being horizontal rather than vertical—is only four stories high, but which occupies a square block. It boasts a spacious courtyard roofed with glass and a reception hall of celebrated munificence, named the Golden Gallery. It houses an institution which for more than a century has ruled with absolute sway the fiscal system of France; but which presents also an instance of feudal survival so incredible as to arouse a sense of the grotesque, the monstrous, the prehistoric—as if, amid the parade of automobiles along the Boulevard de la Madeleine, one should behold a dinosaur. Over the principal entrance is carved, in stone, the terse and august legend: "Banque de France."

One of the world's foremost citadels of the capitalist regime, it has often been dubbed "the second Bastille." For 136 years it repelled every assault. It survived the rise and collapse of two republics, two empires and two kingdoms; it outlived Waterloo, the Revolution of 1848, Sedan, the Paris Commune and the World War. Until recently it continued to stand, more powerful than ever, superb and apparently impregnable.

Monetary Bastille Falls At the Impact of a Phrase.

And then, abruptly, on the night of July 16, this monetary Bastille fell—but not to the blaze of musketry, the roar of cannon and the shrieks of human slaughter. There were six hours of debate in the Chamber of Deputies, and at 9 o'clock a peaceable vote. The walls of the stronghold burst asunder under the impact of a mere phrase, the happy invention of Edouard Daladier, Vice-President and Minister of National Defense in the Cabinet of the Popular Front.

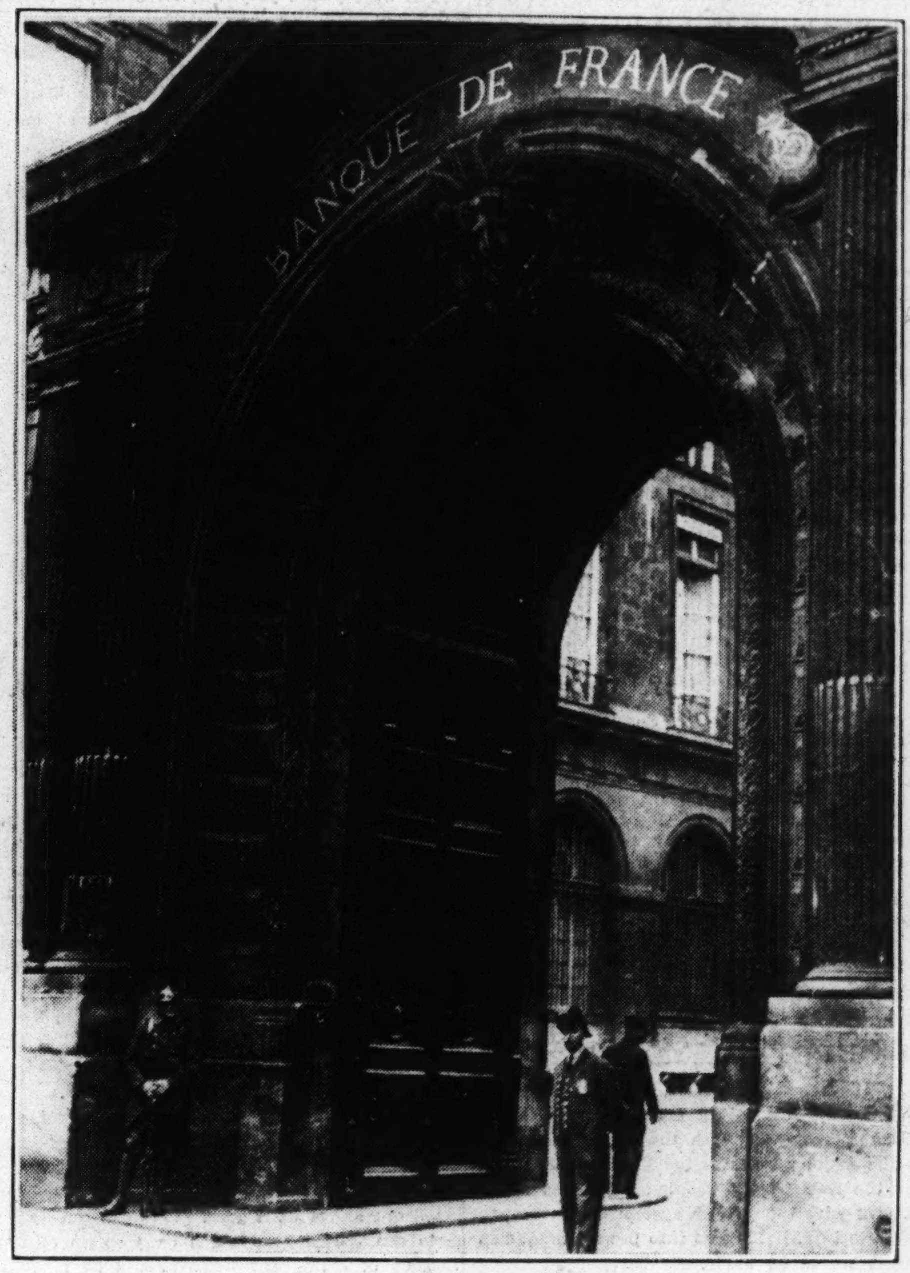
"In this country of individualistic democracy," exclaimed the Radical-Socialist chieftain, "200 families have become the indisputable masters not only of French economy but even of French politics." Public opinion, lured by a numerical coincidence that was more or less fortuitous, proceeded to identify the "Two Hundred Families" with the 200 largest stockholders of the Bank of France, who, by statute, have controlled its destinies since the Consulship of Napoleon. Beneath the onslaught of that deadly slogan the bank's champions among the Deputies found themselves apologetic and tongue-tied. The Government's reform bill passed by a vote of 430 to 111, which was largely in excess of its normal majority of about 150. The ordinance was approved by the Senate, with some technical modifications, one of which forbids the bank to discount obligations for the Treasury.

Had M. Daladier had in mind the Bank of France, he could have narrowed his battle cry from the "Two Hundred Families" to the "Twelve Families." For the "Deux Cents Actionnaries" were, in the course of time, reduced to mute and powerless subjection before the dozen magnates who composed a majority of the bank's actual ruling body—that is to say, the Conseil des Regents, or board of directors. To understand why 12 men, chosen largely according to dynastic principle, could have usurped control of the economic welfare of a nation of 44,000,000, it is necessary to revert for a moment to the history of the Bank of France.

History of Institution Founded by Napoleon.

It was founded in the year 1800 under the auspices of Napoleon, who was its first subscriber, taking 30 shares. His autograph is still in the archives of the bank: "Bonaparte, pour trente actions." Hortense Bonaparte, his stepdaughter, took 10 shares; Murat and Duroc subscribed for five each; and Joseph Bonaparte for one share. In 1806, still under the direction of Napoleon, a charter was granted which, with minor amendments, has determined the bank's form of organization until this day. Since the experiment of Government-controlled banking had proved wildly disastrous during the French Revolution, Napoleon, though the most autocratic of men, was at pains to assure the bank's private character, its independence of the State. On the other hand, it was intrusted with a momentous privilege in the highest degree public. From the beginning it was a bank of issues, at first for Paris only, but soon for the whole of France. It possessed, in other words, the function of printing money. Every banknote in circulation throughout the country, though not in the French colonies, bears the imprimatur of the Bank of France. This currency is guaranteed by the bank, and not by the Government.

ENTRANCE GATE TO THE BANK OF FRANCE



How the Bank Operates

FOR the entire French nation both the cost and the amount of credit are determined by the Bank of France, thanks to two instruments which are completely subject to the discretion of its General Council. Until now this was dominated by twelve great capitalists who held a two-to-one majority.

By manipulating the rate at which bills are discounted, the bank fixes the expense of credit to the money market, business and banking in general. By managing the volume of advances and of discounts, it regulates the amount of credit available to business and the money market.

The Bank of France performs not only the usual functions of a central bank, but also those of a commercial bank, the largest in the country. It is in immediate relation, on a vast scale, with industry and commerce. Its fiats altering the discount rate are instantly and directly effective. Its influence upon credit is more powerful than that of the Federal Reserve system or the Bank of England, the former of which deals exclusively and the latter chiefly with other banks.

Power of Veto Placed In Hands of Governor.

Therefore, in planning the formation of the institution, Napoleon sought to strike a balance between the State and the representatives of invested capital. Control was accorded to the following officials and committees, and so remained until the reorganization:

A Governor, appointed by the State.

Two Under-Governors, appointed by the State.

Three Censors, or Auditors, elected by the General Assembly.

Fifteen Regents, or Directors, elected by the General Assembly.

The General Council of 21, composed of the Governor and Under-Governors, the Censors and Regents.

The General Assembly, consisting of the 200 largest stock-owners.

The Governor's signature was made essential to every contract and engagement; by withholding it, he could interpose a veto upon any transaction of which he disapproved. The unanimous adverse opinion of the Censors against an undertaking automatically canceled it. Three of the Regents were by law officials of the Treasury; of the other 12, six represented banking, five industry and commerce, and one agriculture. To assure the useful principle of rotation in office, the terms of the Regents were limited to five years. As the Censors did not possess ballots, it is obvious that on any controversial question in the General Council, the Government's representatives could be outvoted two to one—the Governor, the Under-Governors and the three functionaries of the Treasury against the 12 agents of the shareholders.

How "The Twelve" Got Complete Control of Bank.

How complete control of the bank, and with it the national system of currency and credit, was steadily and irresistibly engrossed by "The Twelve," forms an instructive narrative. First, the General Assembly was stripped of power. It was permitted to meet only once a year, and at these annual sessions it gradually came to pass that the "Deux Cents Actionnaires" were not suffered to discuss, disapprove or even approve the reports of the Governor and Censors, to the reading of which they were privileged to listen in silence. Next to disappear was the function of free election. It became customary for the General Assembly to vote, without debate or competition, the states proposed by the board of directors. The usage arose of choosing the Censors among the Regents, the 200 stockholders, or certainly the capitalistic caste.

It was made a law that the Governor must own 100 shares of stock, the Under-Governors 50 shares each, and the Regents 30 shares each. With Bank of France stock quoted today at about 6000 francs a share, these holdings represent, respectively, the considerable sums of $42,000, $21,000 and $12,600. Such amounts are beyond the reach of the average Government official. So, in effect, the choice of the nation's agents fell into the hands of the Regents, who could grant or refuse to candidates any opportunity to buy the necessary shares on easy installments. Moreover, these functionaries, when their terms expired, would be on the look-out for remunerative jobs. They would naturally commit no act seriously displeasing to the men able to vouchsafe or withhold desirable employment.

One Two-Hundredths of Investors Owning Two-Fifths of Capital Hitherto Directed Its Affairs and, on the Side, Owned 95 Big Private Corporations.

Directorships Transformed Into Family Heirlooms.

Finally, the Regents intrenched themselves by securing the passage of a statute making them eligible to re-election. Thereupon the directorships of the bank began to be tenures for life, and, in addition, family heirlooms, handed down from father to son, or next of kin. It was Napoleon who introduced the hereditary principle into the Bank of France. Desiring to found an aristocracy of the Empire, and to equip it with the wherewithal most needful in this vale of tears, he ordained that holdings of Bank of France stock among the nobility should be permanent trusts, attached to the title and passing with it inalienably from father to son. This is why, in the list of the 200 stockholders, there is so impressive a proportion of Dukes, Marquises, Counts and Barons; and why is contains so striking a representation of noble names dating from imperial and even royal France, such as de Contades, Albufera, de Remusat, de Ribes, de Reinach, etc.

In the sumptuous salon of the Council of Regents at the central seat of the Bank of France is a great oval table, about which are ranged 15 luxurious armchairs, like minor thrones. Each bears a number. A glance at the records of the bank shows that the third seat was occupied without interruption, since February 13, 1800, by members of the private banking firm of Mallet Freres et Cie. The ancestral Mallet, a founder of the bank, served for 27 years as Regent. The chair passed, on his death, to Baron James Mallet, who held it for 33 years. He was succeeded in 1860 by Baron Alphonse Mallet, who served for 45 years. The incumbent, Ernest Mallet, became Regent in 1905.

Some Specific Instances Of Hereditary Succession.

A banker named Hottinguer took possession of the tenth seat in 1803, held it for 30 years, and left it to his son, Henri Hottinguer, who served as Regent until 1849. There was an interregnum of 20 years and then, in the fourth seat, appeared Roderique Hottinger, now rejoicing in the title of Baron. He held it for the patriarchal term of 52 years. There was another interval, of eight years; in 1929, there emerged as occupant of the seventh seat its most recent holder, Baron Henri Hottinguer. The family of Casimer Perier, former President of France, contributed four Regents to the bank. His grandfather took the fifth seat in 1800. The latter's son Scipion Perier, held the seventh chair from 1818 to 1822. Casimir himself was Regent from 1822 to 1833; on his death the seat passed to his brother, Joseph, who retained it for 36 years.

Baron Alphonse de Rothschild took possession of the ninth chair in 1855 and held it for 51 years. His son, the incumbent Baron Edouard de Rothschild, succeeded him in 1905. Together they have occupied the same seat for 81 year. William d'Eichthal, banker, who retired recently from the Regency, held the seat occupied by his grandfather, Adolphe, and his uncle, Paul Miraboud; he left it to the present occupant, his nephew, Pierre Mirabaud. A banker named Vernes was Under-Governor from 1832 to 1857; his grandson served as Regent from 1866 to 1907; and the latter's son, Felix Vernes, became Regent in 1921. J. C. Davillier, banker, was elected Regent in 1801, and passed the chair on to his son, Sanson-Davillier, who held it from 1842 to 1864, and transmitted it in turn to his son, Henri Davillier, who sat as Regent from 1864 to 1883. After an interval appeared Baron Maurice Davillier, who served from 1905 to 1927.

Controlled by Minority of One Two-Hundredths.

These instances, which could be multiplied indefinitely, are sufficient to confirm the charges made in a recent report of the Finace Committee of the Chamber of Deputies—namely, that "heredity has become the principal means of arriving at the General Council of the Bank of France;" and that "the management of the bank, in particular its discount policy, is in the hands of an oli-

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Mr. Miller at the Crossroads.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE disclosures of registration frauds made by the Post-Dispatch are evidence that history does repeat itself. But how far will it repeat?

The election frauds and other abuses of the Butler era of St. Louis politics gave Joseph W. Folk his great chance for the governorship and nationwide recognition. He fought the gang and its bosses and rode into the Governor's chair upon the record of his successful fight.

Will history repeat itself that far? It is no secret that Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller aspires to be Governor of Missouri, but how will be make the grade? There are two roads open to him. Will he use Folk's route? Will he plunge into a fight with the powerful Democratic gang here, risk its wrath, and the wrath and opposition of the Kansas City mob? Will he send the phoney registrants, repeaters and crooked election officials to the penitentiary and be elected to the chief executive office of Missouri upon a record of a fearless, clean fighter for decency and honesty in government, or will Judge Miller take the other road, plug up his ears and blindfold his eyes, waiting for a "responsible organization" to tell him what everyone knows has been shockingly notorious to all St. Louisans for the past three and a half years?

It is up to Franklin Miller to decide which course to follow. Maybe he can get elected either way. But who can tell which way he will make the march? A few years back, he was elected as a Democratic Circuit Attorney, but with the aid of Republican votes. In those days, he prided himself upon his fearless independence of partisanship. That reputation would seem to indicate that he would choose the first road, the way of an honest, courageous and independent fighter.

Howver, since the ascendancy of the Democratic party in Missouri and in St. Louis, he has lost some of that independence. Witness his trip to Kansas City for the Pendergast blessing and the laying on of hands that would make him Governor. Only Tom had picked Lloyd Stark for the place. No, Franklin Miller has lost some of that independence, that fire and enthusiasm. Of course he still waxes indignant over a bank robbery or a murder. But unless a "responsible organization" calls his attention to a host of already notorious crimes, he may continue his calm.

It is Franklin Miller's decision. He alone can make it. His friends may sympathize with him now, but if he takes what seems now to be the easy road—he and the people of this community will need even greater sympathy.

We know that voters repeat in St. Louis. Will history?

Footnote.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IF Martin A. Dillmon, whose letter about Father Coughlin was published July 27, had taken the time to get the facts, he would not have stated that Father Coughlin indorsed the Townsend movement. What did happen is that the Townsend convention indorsed the Union party candidates whom the National Union for Social Justice also indorsed.

Where Unemployment Lies.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT is clear from your editorials that you believe unquestionably that where unemployment lies in this country could be very readily determined by the present administration, had it the desire to do so. This has been the opinion of people who have given the matter any thought for some time past.

It seems from writings that are readily available, that industry has taken up its full share of the unemployed, but that the agricultural program of the present administration has added still more to the total of the unemployed, so that the situation with respect to the country as a whole is apparently no better now, and there are just as many unemployed as ever.

It seems obvious that the administration does not want this to become general information because that would relieve it of one of its principal arguments; namely, the placing of the responsibility for unemployment at the door of industry.

It appears that if the facts were generally known by the people, so they understood what they were actually receiving from the New Deal in return for the burden it is placing on posterity, it would let a great deal of gas out of the New Deal balloon.

That Merry-Go-Round.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I'M JUST as eager for freedom of the press as anybody, but I really think that that story about the man who bought a merry-go-round—with Government money, too—and found prosperity, should have been suppressed. Consider the shock to those individuals who were so long convinced that prosperity was just around a corner.

JOSEPH F. CODY.

MR. HIRTH FOR MR. BARRETT.

William Hirth, who campaigned for the Democratic nomination for Governor on an anti-boss platform, today announces his support of Jesse W. Barrett, the Republican nominee for Governor. Unlike many men, who, following defeat, creep back to party orthodoxy, regardless of principles, Mr. Hirth is following through.

A few comments as to Mr. Hirth's candidacy. He entered the race practically without funds or organization against a candidate who was assured as long ago as last fall of the complete support of the powerful Pendergast machine. That support was delivered as promised. In Jackson County, where Pendergastism is supreme, Maj. Stark beat Mr. Hirth by the incredible ratio of 29 to 1, whereas in the adjoining county of Clay, in which Mr. Hirth did not set foot during the campaign, the Stark winning ratio was less than 3 to 1.

Mr. Hirth's announced purpose of running was to fight a machine he considers the greatest menace Missouri ever had. He entered, not because he had good reason to believe he could win, but because he felt it his duty as a citizen to do whatever lay in his power to crystallize sentiment against boss rule. His campaign was practically a one-man affair. Frequently, upon entering a hall to make a speech, he was compelled to introduce himself because the local Pendergast machine saw to it that he was denied even that courtesy.

In spite of the cards that were stacked against his victory, Mr. Hirth polled 176,000 votes or, as he puts it, that number were counted for him. Under all the circumstances, it was an excellent showing. It was a vindication of his candidacy, and he is to be honored for offering himself as a sacrifice in a high cause.

Mr. Hirth's support of Mr. Barrett is based principally on the anti-boss issue, but they have other bonds of sympathy so far as State issues are concerned.

Of particular interest at the moment is Mr. Barrett's pledge to Mr. Hirth that, in event of his election, "he will name election commissioners in Kansas City who are outstanding citizens, and whose known convictions for honest elections are beyond question, and that he will likewise do this with reference to election commissioners and police commissioners in the City of St. Louis, and that concerning these appointees he will consult with me and other citizens interested in fair and honest elections."

As to the anti-boss issue, Mr. Hirth says:

> The overshadowing issue in our State today is not whether the leadership of the Democratic party as now constituted shall survive, but whether free and representative government shall be restored in Missouri, and besides this all other issues pale into insignificance—there is no greater treason than that which tramples underfoot the sanctity of the ballot upon which the preservation of the priceless heritage of Valley Forge and Yorktown depends, and since apparently we cannot clean house within the Democratic party, we must turn to the only other means at hand, and confronted with a situation so profoundly grave, I hereby declare my intention to vote for Jesse W. Barrett, the Republican candidate for Governor, in the forthcoming November election, and I urge those who voted for me in the recent primary to do likewise.

Mr. Hirth has the courage of his convictions in refusing to be bound by the ties of party allegiance when a great principle is at stake.

NOTE ON MR. WOODLOCK'S ARTICLE.

Mr. Woodlock's interesting article, printed under the cartoon today, deals with the growing cleavage between the major parties in the British Parliament. He finds the Labor party seeking objectives not to be reconciled with the British system of government and intimates that, if it came into power, fundamental changes would be made.

Perhaps so. But when the Labor party, under the leadership of Ramsay MacDonald, was in power, its performance, in contrast with its creed, was eminently tame. And the last premiership of Mr. MacDonald ended in dud-like fashion, giving way to the coalition or so-called National Government.

ENCOURAGING NEWS FROM ARKANSAS.

No better words have come out of Arkansas in a long time than these of Gov. J. Marion Futrell:

> I recognize the seriousness of the tenant farmer or sharecropper problem. For decades it has been developing and in recent years has grown to such serious condition that the problem must be settled if Arkansas is to have peace among its citizenship and agriculture is to continue to hold its rightful place as the State's chief resource.
> The plight of the sharecropper may be exaggerated in some reports; but the thing itself—the system—is eating at the vitals of the South's economic structure and whether exaggerated or not, is of such serious character as to call for immediate and exhaustive study and examination with a view to its definite settlement.

Suiting his action to his words, Arkansas' outgoing Governor has announced that he will appoint a Statewide commission of 40 to 50 members, including sharecroppers, landowners, business and professional men, educators and legislators. This group will meet at Hot Springs to discuss the problem in all its aspects and to propose a course of action to remove the trouble.

It is true that Gov. Futrell's acknowledgment of his State's chronic agricultural disease follows the announcement of Attorney-General Cummings of a Federal grand jury investigation into charges of slavery in cotton fields in Arkansas. But whether the Federal inquiry is in any way responsible for the timing of Gov. Futrell's declaration, it is only fair to the Governor to say that his proposal of a thorough study is the outgrowth of the conferences which he called last spring after the strike in the cotton counties.

Sharecropping was a natural development after the Civil War when landowners retained only their land and the freed slaves had only their freedom. In 1936, when 60 per cent of Arkansas' farms and 70 per cent of Mississippi's still are tenant operated, and the average in the South is well above 50 per cent, the system, as Gov. Futrell says, is eating at the South's vitals. Arkansas' Governor could not spend his remaining months in office in a better cause.

TAKE THE BENCH OUT OF POLITICS!

An analysis has been made of the official count in the Twentieth Ward with respect to the Democratic races for nomination for the Circuit bench. This shows that the six nominees, headed by Joseph F. Dickmann, brother of the Mayor, received an astonishingly large proportion of the Democratic votes. The winning six made a clean sweep in the second precinct of this ward, which is a residential area, approximately in the heart of the city. In this precinct, each of the successful candidates received 219 votes. Not a single vote was credited to any of the unsuccessful 19 candidates.

A condition like this suggests several possible courses of action. But the one thing to which it calls attention above all others is the need for taking the nomination and election of Judges out of party politics. No political machine should be in a position to name the candidates for the bench.

LEST WE FORGET!

The grand jury having recessed, with the prospect that upon its reassembling for a few days in September its time will be taken up with routine matters, the city is faced with a month's suspension of the inquiry into the registration frauds.

At the end of that period, on Sept. 14, a new grand jury will be impaneled.

What the outgoing grand jury accomplished in its fraud inquiry—23 indictments on misdemeanor charges and seven on felony charges—represents but a scratching of the surface.

Handicapped as it was by the lack of vigorous guidance on the part of Circuit Attorney Miller, who went on vacation in the midst of the investigation, the grand jury's limited achievement is perhaps all that could have been expected in the period it fixed for the inquiry.

The next grand jury will have ample time at its command.

It will have the benefit of the researches of the outgoing grand jury.

It ought to be provided with zealous guidance; if it is not, it can take matters into its own hands, as did the outgoing grand jury, commendably, in the conspicuous case resulting in its seven felony indictments. That action showed what a grand jury can do on its own initiative.

The higher-ups, those who organized the far-reaching conspiracy to pad the rolls in St. Louis, are yet to be brought to account.

It is a challenging task. Great will be the responsibility resting on the incoming jury; great will be its opportunity to serve the cause of good government.

AN OVERSIGHT TO CORRECT.

It has been announced informally at the office of the Attorney-General of Illinois that the new permanent registration law now in force in all Illinois communities with election boards does not provide for absentee registration. As interpreted, absentee voting continues to be permissible once the voter has registered in person under the new law. It goes without saying that many citizens of Illinois, temporarily residents of the District of Columbia and other places, will be disfranchised if the law is not amended so as to make it possible for them to participate in this first general registration by mail just as they vote by mail in primary and general elections. When the Legislature meets within a few days to take up the recommendations of Gov. Horner's commission on public education it should be allowed to correct this oversight, for that is all it is.

THE DRIVE FOR BACK TAXES.

An experimental drive to collect back taxes as a means of financing St. Louis' relief needs has been decided upon by the local Relief Committee and a group of representative citizens. The decision is a good one as far as it goes. Vigorous efforts to bring into the treasury as much as possible of the $15,000,000 of delinquent taxes should be made in any case. But at best the proposed solution of the urgent relief problem can be only a palliative. The estimated requirement of the city for relief from Dec. 1, when funds now available will be exhausted, to April 1 is $1,300,000. As has been pointed out by Chairman Connett of the Relief Committee, nothing can be expected from the new session of the Legislature, beginning next January, until about April 1.

That there is scant prospect of realizing anything near the required amount from the back-tax drive is indicated by the fact that of 20,000 notices sent by the City Collector recently to persons owing $2,900,000, more than 5000 were returned because of the inability of letter carriers to find the addressees.

By all means let the effort to bring in delinquent taxes be prosecuted. But the city cannot afford to stop its planning with this one method of raising funds. Not only is the immediate need too great for that, but the relief problem, as we have frequently pointed out, will be with the city for a long time to come. That is true even in the light of the most favorable conditions that can reasonably be expected. Planning for relief on a long-time basis is imperative if the city is not to be faced with periodic crises such as that of last spring.

There was sound sense in the advice of R. Walston Chubb, representing the Emergency Committee of 100, that the tax drive be not accepted as the final action on the subject, but that the group in charge of the drive should report back to the full committee as soon as possible. It is gratifying that this suggestion was accepted. We agree with Mr. Chubb's implied belief, as we daresay the committee in general agreed, that further consideration of the problem will be found necessary.

A WORD TO THE SUN.

The New York Sun, on this page today, is speaking of "words on stilts," the modern tendency to use ornate terms rather than their simpler equivalents. It might have sent its readers to the Bible, where many of the most powerful passages are in words of one syllable.

But why, with so fine a theme, does the Sun itself fall into lapses? Why does it use the word apt in the sense of likely? Why does it use humans instead of human beings? It is true, the dictionaries will, in some measure, justify the Sun, but it is also true that the dictionaries have ceased to be the authoritarians of yesteryear, and have become jellyfish in their inclusion of all sorts of spellings and all sorts of definitions not employed in the best usage.

HOLIDAY IN OWENSBORO, KENTUCKY.

Growing Cleavage in Parliament

Collectivist objective of Labor party introduces new element into British system; party is frankly revolutionary and its success would foreshadow fundamental changes in government; opposing "means test," it stood for granting of relief with "no questions asked"; accession to power regarded as unlikely in the near future.

Thomas F. Woodlock in the Wall Street Journal.

LONDON (By Mail).

READING the parliamentary debates, which are now in full blast, leaves upon this writer an impression that here the "Mother of Parliaments" is showing unmistakable signs of progressive organic change in a most important respect. Most people, probably, will agree that the parliamentary system works best when there are but two main parties, differing—sharply at times—upon ways and means and even major policies but fundamentally agreed upon the structure of the governmental system itself. It is this agreement that Madariaga has in mind in insisting that a democracy must be unanime, that is, single-minded as to the foundations of the society itself. In such a system the opposition party is really a part of the governmental system, and the English phrase, "His Majesty's Opposition," has had a very real content of truth.

Today, however, the fact that the opposition party in Great Britain, namely, the Labor party, with a growing left wing, has a definitely collectivist objective, requiring fundamental changes in the traditional theories of government in Great Britain, introduces an entirely new element into the parliamentary system. Here is no opposition of the time-honored Liberal-Conservative kind, playing a definite part in shaping legislation within the borders of the Constitution, but a frankly revolutionary party with little or nothing really in common with its opponent.

This has been made clear in the past few days by debates upon national defense and the changes in the dole. For the first time (so far as this writer is aware) the Labor opposition fought the Government's defense program on general principles, with no logic whatever to support the attack. Sir Thomas Inskip had no difficulty in answering his hecklers by asking them whether they wanted Great Britain to be impotent to defend herself in face of a situation clearly more threatening than in over a century. But superabundance of heat supplied the lack of logic, and it was not difficult to discern the source of the heat.

A passionate hatred and dread of the thing that people call Fascism is the dominant driving force in Labor politics, parliamentary and otherwise, and all other considerations are secondary to that.

In connection with the proposals to change the dole, the Labor party fought everything in the nature of a "means test," and stated that it would never accept any regulations under which any inquiry of the sort was made as to the position of applicants for relief. The Government's proposals involve an addition of three-quarters of a million sterling to the total disbursements (nearly $200,000,000) chargeable to the budget, and would result in increasing payments to a great majority of recipients but reducing sharply payments to about 60,000 now being admittedly overpaid. Here, too, logic was all on the Government side, but the opposition took the ground that it must be relief with "no questions asked," and denounced the whole scheme of payments as quite insufficient. The temper of the debate, moreover, was such that the speaker had several times to rebuke members—not a frequent occurrence since the Irish members left Westminster.

As we all know, things change slowly in Great Britain; nevertheless, the tempo seems to be quickening. One result of the growing fundamental cleavage between parties is interesting. It happens that neither party is generally considered to be strongly led. The recent humiliation of the country over Ethiopia would probably have led, a generation ago, to defeat of the Government and a change of Premiers and parties. That Premier Baldwin is to be succeeded next spring, after the coronation, by Neville Chamberlain is generally taken for granted. No one seems to look for an accession of the Labor party to power in the early future, precisely because of its extreme views. Further, no one on the Labor side stands out as an evident leader. Thus it seems that owing to the absence of an opposition of the old classical type, the present Government (despite much internal dissatisfaction among the younger Conservatives of a progressive mind) runs no risk of upset before either the Parliament's life is run or it chooses to go before then to the country. In either case, the prevailing impression is that on a straight fight the Labor party would be beaten precisely because its professed objectives are at the best well ahead of present public opinion.

All these things make it appear that the Mother of Parliaments is in none too good health these days, and that when the day does come that the Labor party carries the country we may see something interesting—which, however, will not be anything that we can call democracy.

The G-Man's Report

From the New York World-Telegram.

EIGHTEEN out of every 100 persons arrested in the United States the first six months of this year were under 21 years old and 35 out of every 100 were less than 25.

J. Edgar Hoover, tireless director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, makes this report and amplifies it so the problem of juvenile crime appears even more shocking, thus: Nearly half of those arrested for automobile theft were under 21, one out of three burglars was under 21 and one out of four robbers.

Crime does not pay. Nevertheless, it goes on, and the underworld gets its recruits from the young. What can be done about it? Mr. Hoover's answer is: "The public can be of invaluable assistance to law enforcement in this regard by actively supporting movements and enterprises having as their objective the proper training of our American youth."

From another source, that answer might sound like mere pious sentiment. Backed by the authority of the No. 1 G-man, it is entitled to respect, and, furthermore, to attentive application.

Rebuilding State Resources

From the Kansas City Times.

ONE of the proposals to appear on the Missouri ballot in November looks to a form of constructive State action that ought to be encouraged generally. As a matter of fact, various other states already have taken the step that now is proposed in Missouri. This State, despite its delay, may profit from their experience.

It is the conservation and restoration, not only of the State's resources in fish, game, birds and all forms of wild life, but of its forestry and timber resources, that is aimed at. Provision for this needed State policy would be made through a constitutional amendment setting up a permanent non-salaried and non-political State commission to replace the present State Game and Fish Department. The work of the new body, like that of the present department, would be supported through fees paid for hunting and fishing licenses. Thus, no question of added taxation is involved.

Most attention has been given so far to the wild life provisions of this measure. But, as indicated, it includes much more than that phase of Missouri resources. The need of forest conservation and restoration in this State is particularly urgent. The timber resources of Missouri have been depleted in a manner that is notorious.

At the end of the last century, standing timber in the State was officially valued at eight billion dollars. About 30 years later, or in 1933, only 10 per cent of those resources were found to remain. Increasingly, the State has had to draw its lumber and related supplies from distant areas, while its needs have remained undiminished and much of its area, particularly in the Ozarks, is best adapted to forestation.

Missouri has an opportunity as well as an obligation to conserve and replenish its timber as well as its wild life. The abundant returns that have been realized from such a course elsewhere could be expected in this State.

SOME WORDS ON STILTS.

From the New York Sun.

MOVING nowadays somewhat laboriously through the fields of literature are certain words, such as departed, furnished and fatigued which look down with old-time condescension on their brisker (and more popular) companions, left, gave and tired. To maintain the attitude of superiority, they have had, in effect, to elevate themselves, to get on stilts to attract attention to themselves and their users. How far this elevation makes for elegance in language is an increasingly disputed question.

There are, of course, some persons who from choice, or, it may be, from habit, favor the longest way round in speech, whether or not it brings them home in the shortest time. They would resent being called pompous or affected; most of them would be apt to regard themselves as wells of pure English in a world rather muddy, language-wise, if not actually defiled.

Such persons, for example, would prefer to defray the cost of this or that instead of merely paying for it. They do not come; they arrive. To them, a laden table provides a repast, not a meal. They make announcements, not statements, and indulge in conversing rather than talking.

Nothing can be done about it except, possibly, to hold to the hope that in the evolution of speech the words which are fittest will survive. Simplicity and directness may be the final goals, but, meanwhile, human nature must be taken into account; and it is, and will continue to be, natural for a good many humans to differentiate themselves, by words as well as actions, from their fellows.

MANY DELAYS IN CONSTRUCTION

PWA Funds Paid Part of Cost of $3,100,000 Building With 671 Beds —Work Begun in 1932.

After numerous delays due to unfavorable weather and labor troubles, the new city hospital for Negroes at Whittier street and St. Ferdinand avenue is about three-fourths complete. The building is expected to be ready for occupancy by Jan. 1.

The exteriors of the five units comprising the hospital are practically finished, but a good deal of work remains to be done in furnishing the institution. When completed, the hospital will have cost about $3,100,000.

It was named for Homer G. Phillips, Negro lawyer, who was among those active in promoting its erection. The units cover an area two blocks wide and a block long, extending from Whittier street to Goode avenue and from St. Ferdinand to Kennerly avenue. The corner of Goode and Kennerly avenues, however, is occupied by the Colored Orphans' Home, a private institution.

For more than 10 years Negroes have sought to have a new hospital built to replace the present inadequate institution at Garrison avenue and Lawton boulevard. That hospital has frequently been criticised as unsafe by grand jurors. Although its capacity is 200 patients, it has usually almost twice that number. The new hospital will accommodate 671 patients.

The 1923 bond issue provided $1,200,000 for a new Negro hospital, but that proved inadequate. Additional funds were provided in the hospital bond issue voted Nov. 21, 1933, and the PWA furnished $483,500.

Site Selected in 1930.

The site for the hospital was selected in 1930 after five years of discussion.

The site cost $290,000 and construction began in August, 1932, during the Miller administration.

The almost-completed structure was described by William C. E. Becker, chief engineer of bridges and buildings for the city, as a serviceable, first-class building of genuinely economical construction. Progress in building hospital equipment had resulted in the purchase of much equipment which is superior to that in City Hospital No. 1, he said. The X-ray facilities in particular, he said, were as modern as those in any hospital in the city.

The six-story administration building, facing Whittier street, is now complete except for furnishing. It houses the offices, laboratories and pathological, obstetrical, surgical and radiology departments. The receiving room and morgue are also in that building, which is 50 by 160 feet. Quarters for 25 internes are on the top floor.

Two Ward Buildings.

Flanking the administration building are the two ward buildings, each with a capacity of about 300 patients. These buildings, like the others, have variegated brick exteriors with stone and terra cotta trim.

The ward buildings are V-shaped to provide a maximum of light and air. Each building is six stories high in the central part and five stories at the ends. The north building is complete, the south building about three-fourths finished.

The service building in the rear has been completed and is partly in use. It houses the boiler room, kitchen, employes' cafeterias, bakery, laundry and refrigerating plant. The laundry has been used since Dec. 24, filling all needs of both city hospitals and sometimes of the St. Louis Training School as well. The laundry at City Hospital No. 1 was condemned early this year and no work has been done there since.

The service building is 102 by 250 feet, two and one-half stories high, and was built at a cost of $254,000. It was completed in May, 1934.

The nurses' home and training school, about half complete, is being erected at a cost of $310,000. There are accommodations for 146 graduate and student nurses. Each floor has a solarium, card room, small laundry and kitchenette.

Many Delays in Work.

The training school is in the basement. There are two five-room apartments in a wing on the St. Ferdinand avenue side for the medical director and the superintendent. In addition, a section of the nurses' home [illegible] set aside for 24 inter[illegible] tely an internes' buil[illegible] cted.

Cons[illegible] the hospital was hampered by the extreme cold last winter and the extreme heat this summer. Moreover, from June 1 to Aug. 15, 1934, all work stopped because of labor disputes. Union tile setters went on strike and later there were jurisdictional disputes between carpenters and plasterers and between carpenters and cement finishers.

Co-Operatives Doing Big Business

tages which have been set before us in this and other countries are so numerous and impressive that one cannot but wish that every encouragement may be extended to such organizations as your own which are seeking to establish a national co-operative purpose and spirit.

". . . There is need for co-operative organizations among agricultural producers to help them both in selling their products for a better price and buying their requirements more cheaply. There is likewise a need for organizations of the urban consumers to give like benefits. The establishment of a close-working relationship between these two groups ought to be the idea to which the larger co-operative movements of the country should aim."

The Thompson report, 202 printed pages, covers every country, including Russia, Germany and Italy, which the Roosevelt commission will avoid for obvious political reasons. With the Thompson report as a basis, it is interesting to examine the relationship existing between Government and the co-operatives. For if co-operatives are to develop in this country, the extent to which Government sponsorship of the movement should go is sure to become an issue. It is in fact already an issue.

Political Party in England.

In Great Britain Thompson reported that nearly half of all families were members of one co-operative society or another. At present more than half the population is enrolled. The Co-operative Wholesale Society carries on extensive manufacture and trade. It owns and operates for example, in Ceylon, one of the largest tea plantations in the world. In Great Britain the Government has encouraged co-operatives in various ways, chiefly by granting co-operative societies freedom from various forms of taxation which fall upon private business. This alone would have served to bring the movement into politics, with business, the conservatives and the large newspapers charging unfair competition.

Co-operators in Great Britain form what is in effect an independent political party although for most practical purposes they vote with the labor party.

In an interview with Post-Dispatch last winter, George Lansbury, former head of the Labor party, expressed the opinion that the Co-operative party and the Labor party would soon have to unite in a new grouping or one would inevitably absorb the other. Lansbury also said in the course of the interview that the Co-operatives and the trade unions had saved Great Britain from "bloody revolution."

In Scandinavia, and particularly in Sweden, the Co-operatives have sought to keep entirely out of politics. The Swedish Co-operative Union and its affiliated societies including about one-third of all families, pay taxes on the same basis as private business. Of course, in attacking the Co-operatives private business has charged a political connection, with the Social-Democratic party, and political activity. The Danish Government has been active in sponsoring producers' co-operatives, for the export of Danish bacon and eggs, which were very successful until import quotas were established in Germany, Great Britain and other European markets.

What has happened to the Co-operatives in the totalitarian states, Russia, Italy and Germany, is revealing. The Co-operative movement, both producer and consumer, had an extensive development in Russia before the World War. At the time of the revolution Lenin and other Bolshevik leaders hoped that the Co-operatives could be expanded to do the job of distributing the necessities of life. And during the chaotic period of the revolution and its aftermath the co-operatives stores were about the only medium of distribution that continued to function. They went a long way toward ameliorating the fearful suffering and distress of that period. But within the co-operative movement widespread opposition to the Bolshevik regime developed and the entire movement with all its property was nationalized in 1921. Later its independent status was restored, nominally at least, and Democratic control over its affairs was re-established with Communist party members exercising watchful supervision.

The story in Germany and Italy is simpler. The movement was very far advanced under the Social-Democratic regime in Germany. Under Hitler it is rapidly being converted to Nazi ends with elected heads of co-operative societies replaced by Nazi leaders. Gradual liquidation of the co-operative societies followed Mussolini's march on Rome. They have dwindled from a factor of considerable importance in Italy's economy to insignificance.

Thompson Report Almost Ignored.

Thompson in his report made eight recommendations, including the establishment of retail consumer co-operative societies "in the thickly populated rural districts of the United States," the co-operative distribution of household coal and milk and the co-operative distribution of electricity in rural areas. Issued in the fall of 1924 as the great bull market and the era of Coolidge prosperity were beginning, the report was largely ignored. No one was interested in trying to cut the cost of living through co-operation when the prospect of cleaning up a fortune on the stock market loomed large.

Through the prosperous "twenties" the consumer co-operative movement in this country consisted for the most part of colonies of Finns and Swedes in Massachusetts, Minnesota and Wisconsin. The number of producer co-operatives increased, particularly in the dairying states, and occasionally they branched out into co-operative buying of feed, fertilizer and other farm supplies.

Every form of co-operation has grown during the depression. The number of credit unions—co-operative loan societies—has almost doubled, due in part to a Federal law passed in 1934 granting Federal charters with Federal supervision to such unions. The number of co-operatives marketing oil and gasoline has greatly increased. At the time of the NRA, incidentally, the co-ops put up a strenuous fight against a move to forbid rebates on retail purchases which would have had the effect of putting the co-operatives out of business.

It is difficult to obtain accurate statistics on the growth of consumer co-ops. Perhaps the most reliable are those given by Dr. J. P. Warbasse, head of the co-operative league, in the recently revised edition of his book, "Co-operative Democracy." According to Warbasse, there are about 11,000 consumer co-operatives in this country, with a membership of 3,000,000 and a business turnover of $400,000,000 a year. Warbasse includes the 1,100,000 members of credit unions and a number of farm mutual insurance associations which are not included in Bertram Fowler's total 2,000,000, in his recently published "Consumer Co-operation; America's Way Out."

Some 2500 co-operatives, Warbasse states, are distributing petroleum products. The oil business of these societies, he writes, represents a capital investment of $18,000,000 and a yearly turn over of $48,000,000. And, he adds, they returned to their members "around $6,000,000 cash savings in 1935." Warbasse lists 2000 co-operative fire insurance associations among farmers and 200 societies providing "other services" — electricity, telephone, medical care, burial and so on. The New Deal's rural electrification administration has promoted through a system of loans and grants a number of rural co-operatives for the distribution of power. The number of societies for retail store distribution, baking, restaurants and housing, Warbasse puts at 750, a very small number. Compared to the business turnover of the producer co-operatives, the consumer co-operative movement as a whole is very small.

Leader Gave Much to Movement.

While the depression and the search for a way out of the economic wilderness have contributed most to the growth of co-operation, it owes a great deal to such men as Dr. Warbasse. A distinguished surgeon with a very large income, Warbasse gave up his profession to work for the development of co-operation. Another interesting figure is E. R. Bowen, general secretary of the co-operative league, which is the educational and propaganda organization for all retail and wholesale co-operatives. Bowen was formerly an official of a large manufacturing company at Peoria, Ill.

Murray D. Lincoln, head of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation and one of the most brilliant of farm leaders, has worked intensively to further co-operative development in recent years. And the Ohio Federation has actually begun to close up the gap between producer and consumer, as Harding and Coolidge advocated. Having established successful producer co-operatives which market the farmer's product, the federation has now begun to sponsor consumer co-operative stores in several Ohio cities which are operated by societies made up of both rural and city dwellers.

Edward A. Filene, the Boston merchant, is regarded as the founder of the credit union movement in this country. Filene now proposes to start a chain of co-operative department stores in various large cities of the United States. He went so far as to approach the RFC for a Government loan for such a purpose.

This brings up again the nature of co-operative growth and the function of the Government in co-operative development. Many co-operative leaders are skeptical of the Filene proposal. They point to European experience which indicates that a sound co-operative society must grow slowly from the bottom in order to enlist the real self-interest necessary to guard against waste and dishonesty. Co-operatives superimposed full-grown from the top, through Government loans or grants, are at best a dubious experiment, say these leaders.

The President's commission will have to define the relationship between Government and co-operative. They may suggest merely a bureau which would co-ordinate information of value to co-operatives. They may recommend a Federal law granting Federal charters to co-operative societies. Or they may urge passage of a law such as Great Britain adopted granting to co-operative societies certain tax exemptions.

Along with the present widespread interest in co-operation has come opposition not only from the right but from the left. Left wing Socialists recently attacked the co-operative idea as a mere sop to the workers to prolong the life of capitalism. They pointed to the co-operative movement in Japan which, they charged, is merely a means for reducing the workers' cost of living so that large industrialists who manufacture for export may force low wages even lower. And it is true that where co-operation has been most successful in raising the living standard, in Great Britain and in Sweden, there has been a strong trade union movement to keep wages comparatively high.

One thing is fairly certain and that is that unless the consumer co-operative movement takes hold with the workers in this country it will not go far. That has been true elsewhere. Certain American trade union leaders have shown an interest in co-operation but almost nothing has been done to introduce it as a technique of distribution among the mass of the workers. Until this is done co-operation will probably remain a limited middle-class movement, likely to disappear with the first general wave of prosperity.

Gas Masks for English Dogs.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Even dogs may be equipped with gas masks in England. The National Canine Defense League, which recently made representations to Sir John Simon, Home Secretary, was told: "The home office fully appreciates that owners of dogs and other pets would feel anxiety about them in the event of an air attack, and the matter will be referred to in advice given to the public generally."

Loss of Control of Bank of France

The Last of the Regents

NOT the "Two Hundred Families," but the Conseil des Regents, or Board of Governors, throughout its history ruled the Bank of France. Here the dynastic principle was supreme. Members of the banking family of Mallet Freres et Cie. occupied the third of the fifteen seats of the Conseil des Regents without interruption from Feb. 13, 1800, until the present day. With the exception of two interregnums of 20 and 8 years, members of the Hottinguer clan, also bankers, functioned as Regents since 1803. The Rothschild family has occupied the ninth bench since 1855. The Darblays, paper mill and banking magnates, acted as Censors or Regents from 1854.

Under the old law, three of the 15 Regents had to be Treasury officials. These were Louis Blanc of Lille, Charles Prevost of Marseilles, and Jean Veraguth of Versailles. The other 12, through ownership or administrative posts, either in their own persons or in those of relatives, control 63 of the most powerful corporations in France, including 21 insurance companies, 10 banks, railroads, industrial concerns, mining and metallurgical interests, chemical factories and department stores.

The Board of Governors is abolished under the law advanced by the Popular Front. The list of its members, as constituted at the annual meeting of the General Assembly in January, is as follows:

Blanc, Louis, Treasury official.

Darblay, Paul-Francois-Aime-Robert, banking, insurance, paper mills; David-Weil, David, banking; Duchemin, Rene-Paul, railroads, steamships, aviation, automobiles, canals, coal, chemical products, farm mortgages, banking, public utilities, rubber.

Hottinguer, Baron Jean-Henri-Maurice, banking, telephones, railroads, steamships, aviation, automobiles, coal, munitions, steel, insurance, public utilities.

Mallet, Ernest, banking, insurance, farm mortgages, mines chemical products, coal, railroads, automobiles, aviation, canals, telephones, cold storage, electrical heating, wheat foodstuffs, cattle, paper, wine, sugar, rubber, public utilities, cement, chalk, docks; Mirabaud, Pierre, banking, insurance, mines, chemical products, coal, railroads, airplanes, automobiles, telephones, rubber, public utilities.

Poulenc, Camille, dye-stuffs, chemical products; Pourpart de Neflize, Baron Jacques-Germain, banking, insurance, munitions, steel, mines, metals, railroads, steamships, airplanes, automobiles, rubber, public utilities, department stores, tobacco; Prevost, Charles, Treasury official.

DeRothschild, Baron Edouard-Alphonse James, banking, insurance, mines, railroads, steamships, automobiles, airplanes, canals, rubber, public utilities.

Tinardon, Maurice-Alfred, banking, railroads, chemical products, foodstuffs, rubber; Veraguth, Jean, Treasury official.

De Vogue, Marquis Louis, banking, insurance, farm mortgages, chemical products, transportation, telephones, rubber, public utilities.

De Wendel, Francois-Augustin-Marie, munitions, steel, banking, insurance, mines, metals, chemical products, coal, transportation, telephones, foodstuffs, wine, sugar.

garchy who contrive to govern the entire economy of this country over the head of its freely chosen representatives." The same report disclosed 40,947 stockholders, of whom all but 200 were totally disfranchised; that seven-tenths of them owned five shares or less, but represented a capital of 414 millions of francs; while the "Deux Cents Familles" represented only 173 millions. Thus the total sovereignty of the bank had been seized by a minority of one two-hundredths of its investors, owning approximately two-fifths of its capital. It was charged further that "The Twelve," either in their own persons or those of relatives, controlled 95 of the greatest corporations in France, including 31 private banks, eight insurance companies, nine railroads, eight steamship companies, eight mining corporations, six electrical companies and 12 chemical corporations.

In the reform measure the Popular Front, with its predominant membership of Socialists and Communists, made no effort to expropriate the stockholders of the Bank of France, not even the "Two Hundred Families." Their ownership of capital and their right to the payment of dividends are left untouched. But the oligarchy is ruthlessly despoiled of authority. The Board of Directors is abolished. The General Assembly is enlarged to include all the 40,497 stockholders who are to have one vote each, regardless of the amount of their holdings. They may transmit their ballots by mail. It will no longer be necessary for officials of the bank to possess stock, and they are forbidden, on the expiration of their terms, to accept private employment.

Instead of the General Council, there is erected a committee of 26, consisting of the Governor, the two Under-Governors, three Censors and 20 advisers. Among the last there must be, under the law, six representing producers, consumers and tradesmen; four experts in the technique of finance and credit, and 10 representing the collective interests of the nation. There will be a representative of the General Confederation of Labor, another of small business and a third of co-operative societies of consumers. A fourth will be chosen by secret ballot from among the employes of the bank. The Censors, elected by the General Assembly, will be the official representatives of the stockholders; they have no votes in the committee of 26. But their unanimous disapproval will be sufficient, as heretofore, to cancel any transaction proposed.

Resources to Nation as a Whole.

One of the particular accusations laid at the door of the Bank of France has been that hitherto its activites have been centered upon projects of high finance, in the field of large-scale industry; and that it has turned a deaf ear to the needs not merely of agriculture and labor, but those of the small business man. So far as nine-tenths of the business men of France are concerned, a speaker remarked in the Chamber, the Bank of France might as well not exist. Now its resources are to be devoted to the nation as a whole. Those resources are imposing. In its vaults lies the gold stock of France, amounting to 54 billions of francs. It has in circulation more than 80 billions of francs in banknotes. Its total operations in 1935 amounted to more than 155 billions of francs. In addition to the central seat in the Rue Croix-des-Petits-Champ, it has 18 branches in Paris and vicinity, 159 regional banks in the various provinces, 97 auxiliary bureaus, and 400 offices of deposit in as many towns.

The scroll above its great doorway is to be changed from "Banque de France" to "Banque de la France." The monosyllable thus inserted is merely a definite article of two letters, but the difference in sense is monumental. It signifies a revolution in organization and policy.

Les Deux Cent Actionnaires.

The following list of the 200 largest stockholders of the Bank of France was published recently by the Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies. They constituted the bank's General Assembly and elected its regents and censors:

PROGRAM ON GRAND COULEE

Millionth Cubic Yard of Concrete Poured in Big Dam.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The Reclamation Bureau, in a report today to Interior Secretary Ickes, said the first million cubic yards of concrete had been placed in the Grand Coulee Dam.

Pouring began Dec. 6. An average og 4000 cubic yards a day has been maintained. Under existing contracts 3,200,000 additional cubic yards will be placed. The bureau also reported that construction of two cross channe lcofferdams had been started, preparatory to diverting the flow of the river beginning about Oct. 1.

AID FOR E. ST. LOUIS PUPILS

1500 Expected to Be Helped by South Administration.

About 1500 East St. Louis high school students will receive financial aid again this year from the National Youth Administration.

Students of relief families may make their needs known to their high school principal, who will investigate the cases and assign work to be done in the school. Such students must be at least 16 years old. For their services they will receive $6 a month, which should go toward books, lunches, carfare or other student necessities.

BAR ASSOCIATION DELEGATES

R. Walston Chubb and John S. Marsalek Are Named.

R. Walston Chubb and John S. Marsalek have been appointed delegates to represent the St. Louis Bar Association at the Conference of Delegates of the American Bar Association meeting to be held in Boston Aug. 24 to 29.

Other appointees were: W. W. Crowdus, chairman of the Committee on Professional Practices, and Roland F. O'Bryen, chairman of the Committee on Unauthorized Practice of the Law.

Student Questionnaire on Success.

Replies to a questionnaire sent by the City College of Law and Finance to students having a general average of 90 over a three-year period indicated that high ranking students attribute their scholastic success to an "inquisitiveness to learn more," it was stated yesterday. One student replied, "I did not 'find' myself until the office boy was promoted over me."

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, AUGUST 16, 1936.

"The Red Mill" Brings Victor Herbert Music To the Opera

Montgomery's and Stone's Famous Success to Have Third Park Presentation.

VICTOR HERBERT's merry operetta, "The Red Mill," high favorite of the early part of the century and twice already a successful vehicle for Municipal Opera, will have its third presentation in Forest Park tomorrow evening, succeeding "Bitter Sweet," current show.

Written originally for the team of Montgomery and Stone—the late David Montgomery and Fred Stone of the musical comedy stage and the movies—"The Red Mill" made its first bow at the Knickerbocker Theater in New York on Sept. 24, 1906. For three years, on Broadway and out in the country, Montgomery and Stone were made famous by "The Red Mill" and made it famous.

The previous Municipal Opera presentations were in 1926 and 1927. With the scenic background of Holland, with opportunity for giant windmills and colorful costumes, "The Red Mill" is ideally suited to the opera. It is virtually a musical comedy, and has special appeal as a children's show. Some 30 youngsters have been recruited for special song and dance numbers in this week's production.

Musical selections, several of which have not lost their popularity in 30 years, include "Because You're You," "Moonbeams," "Isle of Our Dreams," "Legend of the Mill," "Every Day Is Ladies' Day" and "Streets of New York." Books and lyrics are the work of Henry M. Blossom, St. Louisan who was Herbert's collaborator in "Mlle. Modiste," "Princess Pat" and other of his famous successes.

Georgie Price and Gil Lamb have the two top comedy roles, those of two American tourists who become stranded in a village in Holland and have to work out their indebtedness to an innkeeper by serving him, one as an interpreter, the other as waiter.

The fun comes in the course of their later adventures. Partly in revenge and partly out of chivalry, they plot to save the Burgomaster's daughter, Gretchen, from a distasteful marriage to the Governor of Zeeland, and help her elope with her sweetheart, Capt. Doris Van Damm.

In furthering their plan, the Americans disguise themselves as organ grinders, then as the detective, Sherlock Holmes, and his assistant, Dr. Watson. When Gretchen is restored to her young man, he is found to be inheritor of an English estate; the Governor discovers an affection for Gretchen's wealthy aunt and one of the Americans, "Con" Kidder, marries the barmaid, Tina.

GIL Lamb plays "Con" Kidder and Price is "Kid" Conner. Ruby Mercer is Gretchen, William Hain the Captain, Joseph Macaulay the Governor, Detmar Poppen the Burgomaster, Audrey Christie the barmaid, Tina. Bertram Peacock has the role of Willem, keeper of the Red Mill Inn, Florenz Ames that of Franz, the Sheriff. Zamah Cunningham is the aunt and Al Downing, Joshua Pennyfeather, the English solicitor.

Newcomers for the week are Suzanne Caubaye, French actress who will play the temperamental Countess de la Fere, and Jack Powell, comedian to be featured in specialties. Miss Caubaye, who has had an extensive career on the New York stage, was guest star with the Mary Hart Players here in 1931, playing leads in "The Squall" and "Naughty Cinderella." Powell, who puts on a drumstick act, has been featured in New York musical shows and was with George Burns and Gracie Allen in the picture, "Here Comes Cookie."

Helene Denizon, ballerina featured in "Kid Boots" and "The Three Musketeers" at the opening of this season, will return in her own dance creation, "Moonbeam Ballet."

Municipal Opera's final 1936 production, the American premiere of the English light opera, "Glamorous Night," will open a week from tomorrow night. The work of the playwright-author-composer, Ivor Novello, "Glamorous Night" ran for seven months at the Drury Lane Theater in London. Spectacular scenes, one of them a shipwreck, will be staged for the most pretentious offering of the summer. Norma Terris, prima donna of "Bitter Sweet," and Guy Robertson will head the cast. Nirska, noted danseuse, will be featured.

Water Carnival at Highlands.

The water carnival staged last Tuesday night for the American Retailers' Convention will be repeated at the Forest Park Highlands pool tonight. Glenn Young's orchestra, with Doris Knight as vocal soloist, remains the ballroom attraction.

Love Triumphs Over Last Decade

Film at Ambassador Shows How a 1925 Match Turned Out.

By Colvin McPherson.

SOME peculiar fascination always is attached to those stage plays or pictures in which the lives of a few run-of-the-mill human beings are seen against the background of more significant occurrence. A notable example was "Cavalcade," with no monumental story idea or philosophy, but making excellent use of two wars, the funeral of Queen Victoria, the Bleriot flight across the channel and the sinking of the Titanic.

"To Mary—With Love," at the Ambassador, goes back only to 1925, relating the marital ups and downs of Myrna Loy and Warner Baxter as they progress to the present. Divorce is imminent when Ian Hunter, best man and guardian angel of the union, brings the two together again. Going after history in a small way, "To Mary—With Love" ornaments the affairs of its ordinary people with well-known happenings within memory. For instance, Myrna and Warner are taking on the harness at the old Waldorf-Astoria the evening Jimmie Walker is elected Mayor. They come back from a European honeymoon on the boat with Queen Marie. Warner builds his air castles in the rain at the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Philadelphia (it is a hurry-up job in this case, so he does not need the extra time that might have been afforded in Chicago). The advent of the little stranger in the Baxter-Loy household is announced as Lindbergh rides in triumph up Broadway, and the depression steals the show in competition with family bickerings later on.

One device for the continual setting of dates is the use of actual news-reels, in process photography. This manner of recalling the past is right up Hollywood's alley, or row of file cabinets, to be more accurate. Prizefight or parade may be thrown on a process screen and the actor or actress performing in front of it crashes in on the original event with greater ease than "One-Eye" Connolly. Such a use of Hollywood's favorite camera trickery is highly justifiable. The musical score "To Mary—With Love" also does a fine job of dating. To hear "I'll See You in My Dreams," "Breezin' Along With the Breeze," "My Blue Heaven," "Carolina in the Morning" and other dusty ditties reminds us all that 10 years have gone by. To be further confronted with Empress Eugenie hats, wisecracks from "What Price Glory" and Coolidge's "I do not choose to run" makes us feel that we are Rip Van Winkles who have been asleep on our feet.

Whether this ultra-realism is the best dramaturgy, whether it makes us more interested in the story or merely more uneasy about ourselves, individuals will have to decide. Certainly the performances are legitimately interesting. Myrna Loy's development from happy bride to disillusioned wife is one of her finest portrayals. She matches the times all the way along, although Baxter does well enough only with the boom years. Ian Hunter plays with great seriousness, to prove that he is not just a British colonial gentleman with a good appearance and voice for the screen, but a sensitive actor.

One of the ravages of the heat in California comes through in second place on the bill, although it is hard to say whether the suffering was greater there at the time "Love Begins at 20" was made, or here now. If the program-filler is worth seeing at all, it is for Hugh Herbert as he patty-cakes and coos to himself.

The Devil Doll.

TRICK photography of another kind—and don't ask how—is the main attraction of "The Devil Doll," at Loew's where Lionel Barrymore, with a few puffs of steam, a little gurgling of retorts and mumbo-jumbo, is able to reduce the atoms in man or beast and make them pocket-size. It amounts to an interesting bit of moviecraft, as the tiny creatures hop around under chairs, climb bedsheets and do deeds of violence. Lionel is an ex-banker whose loving partners have sent him to Devil's Island. He escapes, returns to Paris and intends to get even by the compression method. To escape recognition, he dresses as an old lady and pitches his voice upstairs. It has always seemed to me, looking at the pictures in the story-books, that Red Riding Hood should have known the wolf was not her grandmother, and I wonder that Lionel's victims do not catch on to his get-up, but he occasionally is quite deceiving.

Georgie Price and Gil Lamb, comic pair from the Herbert operetta.

There is a daughter, Maureen O'Sullivan, in "The Devil Doll," and her boy friend, Frank Lawton. But the whole fun is in watching the bitsy people as they work for Lionel.

Loew's other film, "We Went to College," considers the homecoming game. Hugh Herbert is the professor who rides a bicycle, plays the bass viol and has "a million things to do" when the old grads arrive. As aimless as the real homecoming, "We Went to College" makes you wonder if you oughtn't to go back this year, even if they don't have a team. And they never do for homecoming. Perhaps that is the reason for a moment of unbounded hilarity when several well-primed alumni leap onto the gridiron and help the home team.

Yours for the Asking.

A SIMPLER title for the Fox film would be "You Can Have It," which says the same thing. George Raft, conducting a gambling-house, meets Dolores Costello Barrymore, who represents "class" to his groping ambitions, and they team up. His pals, Lynne Overman, Edgar Kennedy and James Gleason set out to double-cross him, hiring for that task Ida Lupino. It almost succeeds but, of course, doesn't. A long time ago there was one of these Raft-society dame films that made a mark, or rather a couple of curves. But "Yours for the Asking" is not "Night After Night" and there is no Mae West making her debut this time.

Another boarder at the Fox is "The Final Hour," in which an unhappy lawyer, Ralph Bellamy, meets a fugitive hat-check girl, Marguerite Churchill, and gets a chance to save her from a murder charge. Exceptional performance is delivered by Marc Lawrence, as the hunted killer who finally falls downstairs and breaks his neck. "The March of Time" deals with Mussolini's peaceful penetration of Albania, the growing use of trailers in the United States and the share-croppers' strike in Arkansas. Willie Sue Blagden and the Rev. Claude Williams, who were flogged when they entered the troubled district down South, re-enact the incidents in which they took part.

Rhythm On the Range.

Bing Crosby's new film, moved from the Fox to the Orpheum, for a second week, is still diverting musical comedy. Those who have an impulse to see it a second time will find Martha Raye just as funny and the "Old Cowhand" number as delightful. Miss Raye's drunk scene and her remark, "Who do you think you are? Anyhow?" will be good for a chuckle on as many occasions as we recall it.

"Blackmailer," a new film introduced on the bill, provides a solution for the problem of the uninvited dinner guest. They turn off the lights and stab him. Evidently somebody in Hollywood sees the humor in casual murder, for everybody in "Blackmailer" lets his or her hair down and burlesques the thing to a fare-you-well. And it's a lot of fun.

Amusement Calendar

MUNICIPAL OPERA — "The Red Mill," with George Price, Gil Lamb, Ruby Mercer and William Hain, opens tomorrow night; last performance of "Bitter Sweet" this evening.

Motion Pictures

AMBASSADOR—Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy in "To Mary—With Love;" "Love Begins at 20," featuring Hugh Herbert, Patricia Ellis and Warren Hull.

FOX—George Raft and Dolores Costello Barrymore in "Yours for the Asking;" "The Final Hour," with Ralph Bellamy and Marguerite Churchill;" also "March of Time."

LOEW'S—"The Devil Doll," with Lionel Barrymore, Maureen O'Sullivan and Frank Lawton; "We Went to College," featuring Charles Butterworth, Hugh Herbert and others.

ORPHEUM—"Rhythm On the Range," featuring Bing Crosby and Frances Farmer (second week); "Blackmailer," with William Gargan and Florence Rice.

Custer to Stand Again.

Gen. George Armstrong Custer's famous "last stand" will be filmed almost on the exact spot where it took place in 1876, for Cecil B. DeMille's new picture, "The Plainsman."

Mummers to Give Six Major Plays, First in October

THE Mummers' 1936-37 schedule will consist of six major productions, first of which is Valentine Katayev's satirical comedy of Soviet life, "Squaring The Circle," which will open at the Wednesday Club on Saturday night, Oct. 3.

Other plays are Irwin Shaw's anti-war piece, "Bury The Dead;" "A Doctor for a Dumb Wife," new adaptation and combination of several Moliere works; Ibsen's "John Gabriel Borkman," "Honey Holler," a Connecticut folk play by Keith MacKaye, and "Three In A Row," farce-comedy by Clo. Graves.

The Mummers, who have a studio at 4477 Olive street, also announce plans for production of several original plays by St. Louisans, classes in make-up, stage speech, physical technique, acting and interpretation, and workshop activity in costuming, lighting and stage design.

Stanley Morner in "Maytime."

Stanley Morner, who sang the "Pretty Girl" number in "The Great Ziegfeld," will have the role of Nelson Eddy's son in "Maytime" in the scenes where Eddy will be too old to sing. Jeanette MacDonald is co-starred with Eddy.

"Second Man" to Be Refilmed.

"The Second Man," former Theater Guild success of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, has been acquired for new production on the screen. It appeared as a silent in 1930.

Hollywood Football Season Begins Early

Although coaches may still be sorting the old football equipment, film studios have started selecting their All-American candidates and before long will be getting down to actual romps for touchdowns. "Rose Bowl" will be based on the New Year's day game in Pasadena, with a mythical Eastern and a mythical Western eleven competing. Football and music will be mixed by another studio for "Pigskin Parade." "The Big Game," strangely enough, is the title for another "classic,"

St. Louis Theater to Be Stage Show House This Fall

THE St. Louis Theater, scheduled to reopen next month after having been dark for two years and a half, will be the first stage show house to be put into operation this fall by Fanchon & Marco, according to present plans, although live entertainment for the Ambassador is expected to follow later.

A definite policy for the St. Louis has not been announced but it will likely be built around the booking of traveling stage bands with second-run films. An orchestra of 15 to 20 local musicians is called for, with possibly a dancing chorus for those weeks in which it is required.

The Missouri Theater, now undergoing an extensive renovation, will come into the first-run movie lineup as soon as it is ready, with reopening now set for the first week in September. A movie festival idea for the reopening season, with all first-run theaters participating, has been shelved.

Architect's plans for a complete redesigning of the New Grand Central, henceforth to be known as the Guild Cinema, have been drawn and work is expected to get under way this month. The entire facade and interior of the theater will be done over, with the seating capacity reduced to take care of de luxe appointments. The Guild Cinema, as announced at the time Fanchon & Marco took over the former Warner Bros. theaters in St. Louis, will show pictures of specialized appeal.

Fanchon & Marco, with assurances of 10-year contracts for the product of a group of major picture interests, last week completed formal negotiations with the Twentieth Century-Fox interests for the new year, and the first film under the 1936-37 schedule, "To Mary—With Love," is at the Ambassador this week.

"White Horse Inn" Under Way in East

GOING into rehearsal tomorrow at New York's big Center Theater is "White Horse Inn," spectacular European musical success which bids fair to surpass "The Great Waltz," last musical occupant of the Center, in the size of its scenic effects. Already construction of the inn, a building of timber and stone, is under way on the stage and the inside of the theater is being remodeled for a proper setting.

"White Horse Inn," first produced by Erik Charell in Berlin six years ago, ran up a record of 416 performances there, moved to London for 651 more performances and then played at the Theater Mogador in Paris for two years.

Busy Days at Movie Studios, Especially for Men at Gates

Visitors From the East Throng to Film Factories, Interested Only in Stars.

By H. H. Niemeyer.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 15.

JUDGING from the attendance at the Municipal Opera in Forest Park there must have been some people in St. Louis who did not tour out to California this summer but, from the number of frantic requests from people we had known, had known slightly or had never heard of, to be shown the wheels going 'round in the studios we sorter gathered that this was Old Home Year, with the Missouri reunion being held in Hollywood. The studios report that there has never been a summer like it and the hotels and auto camps, where any sort of accommodations have long been at a premium bear out the statement. Interest in seeing pictures made has reached fever heat and the fans have arrived—and are still arriving, for the summer is not yet over—from all parts of the world.

Few of them manage to get inside the gates and even the limited number who do get in are seldom interested, as a matter of fact, in seeing pictures actually made. What they really want to see are the stars at work. What they are working in, what they are saying makes little difference. The visitors want to get close to their favorites and the intricate, technical side of film making is rarely considered.

Yet the "inside" of the mechanics of pictures is intensely interesting, once you really get into it. Suppose you take just one angle of the game—the important angle of registering the voices of the actors so that the silent-looking miles of photographs become articulate. It all looks simple enough. The actors go right ahead speaking their lines while a round metal "bomb" about the size of the grapefruit which once connected with Rudy Vallee's classic face, floats around over their heads. Apparently no actor pays any attention to it but we have met very, very few players who are not really terrified by the little ball in the air.

Although it is called, in studio language, a "bomb," it cannot explode so that the fear is largely a question of psychology. Actors must cater to it, enunciating clearly for the vibrating metal disks inside the black spheres pick up every tone, every inflection. The "sound engineers" baby the "bombs," watching their temperatures, their angles and distances from the players every minute. Practically everything on the sound stages revolve around them, which is one of the main reasons why visitors, who may cough, or laugh or sit down in a creaking chair just at the wrong moment, are not welcome.

YOU hear, every once in a while through the press agents, of someone with "an ideal microphone voice" yet the sound experts declare there is no such animal. Not for actors who have to be acting while they speak, anyway. A radio announcer or a broadcasting player is a different matter. He is standing in one spot and speaking into a fixed mike and if he has a good voice there is nothing to it.

Wesley Miller, the sound expert out at M-G-M says that Greta Garbo, even with her Swedish dialect, comes the closest to having the perfect registering voice. She usually speaks very slowly and her effort to overcome her foreign inflection makes her speak clearly. Claudette Colbert is another good mike speaker and others are Leslie Howard, Basil Rathbone, Charles Laughton and George Arliss—none American born, by the way. Not so much voice quality as naturalness of delivery, Miller adds.

Some players, like Myrna Loy, speak very softly, and the sound engineers "step up" the voice. Miss Loy's contralto is usually amplified electrically about 15 decibels to enable it to match the voices of other characters in a scene. A decibel is the measuring unit of sound, each three decibel increase doubling the volume of a voice.

The sound man, armed with a script, sits at his controls, similar to volume controls on a radio set, and alongside these is a measuring dial which records the currents used. As a player, say Robert Montgomery, speaks, he brings his volume dial to zero, then, when Miss Loy speaks, jumps it over to the 15 mark. This is the only true method of presenting natural voices of soft-spoken stars. It permits the player to speak in perfectly natural tones rather than strain for volume, with resultant harshness.

Some players, who speak naturally in conversation, "put on the volume" as soon as they are in a scene, often a heritage of habit from stage days when the voice had to carry to the gallery. With the microphone this is unnecessary. In close-ups, a player is practically face to face with every member of the audience, so absolute casualness is all that is needed.

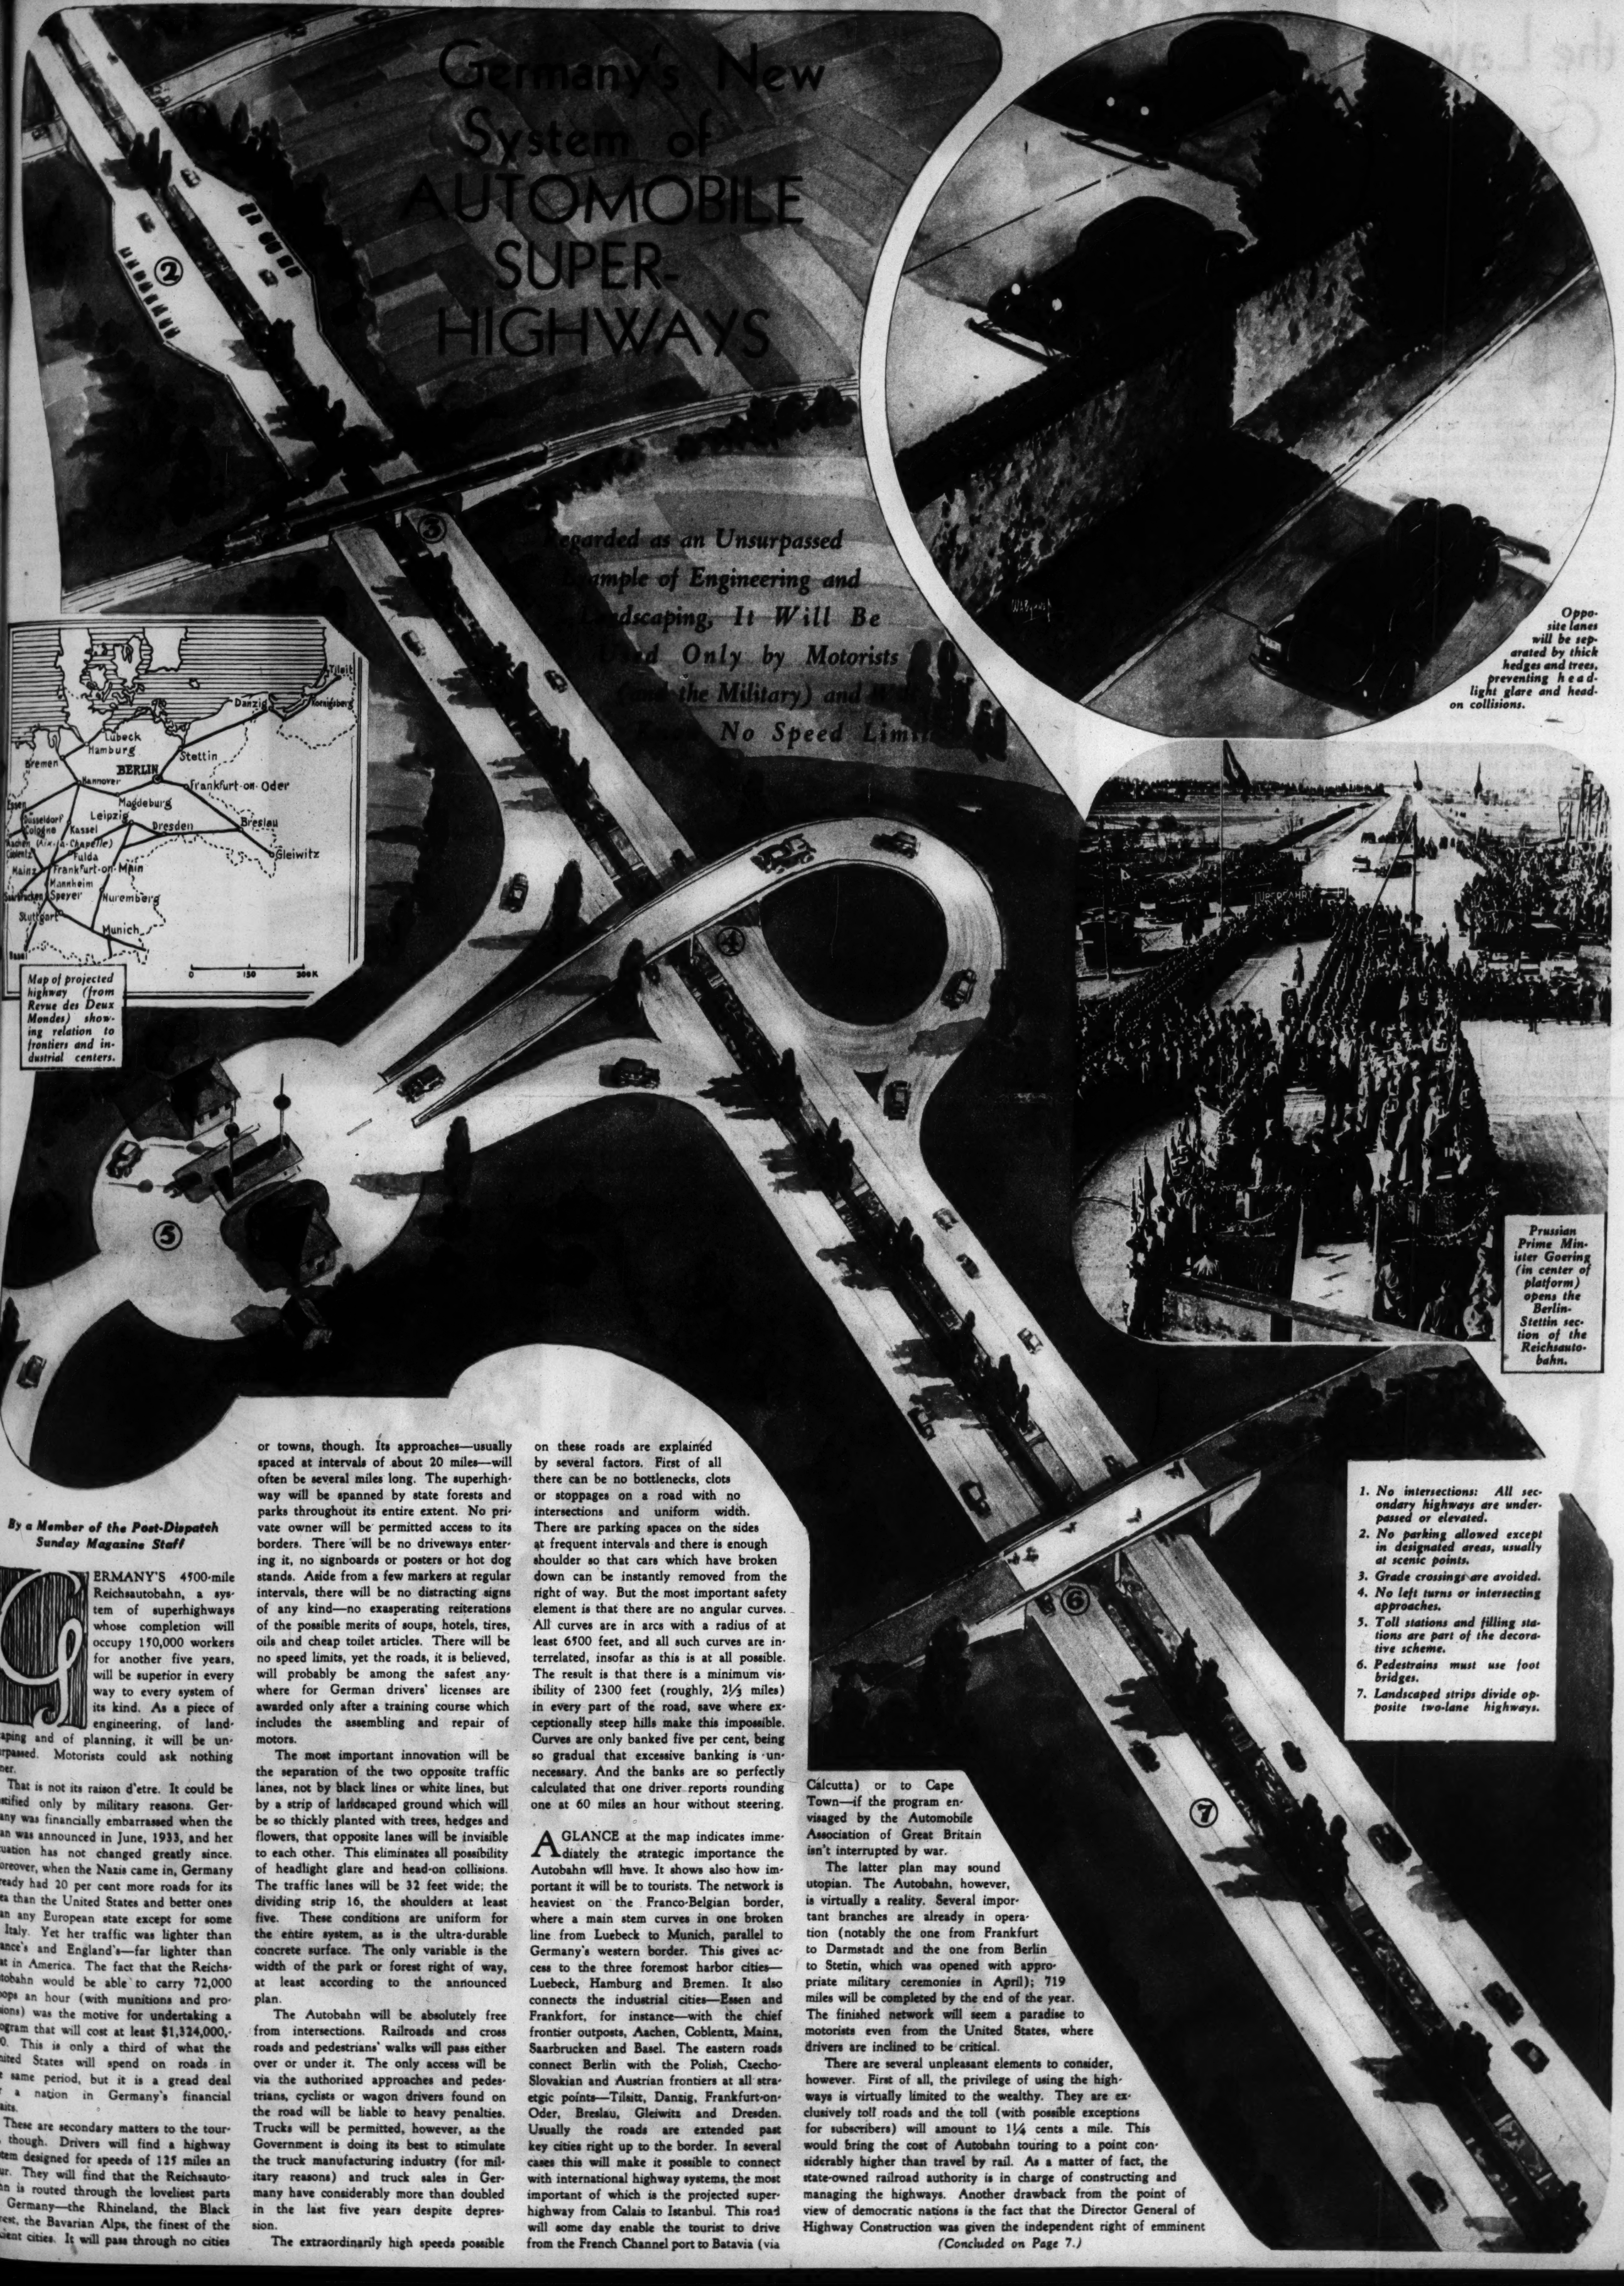
Germany's New System of AUTOMOBILE SUPER-HIGHWAYS

Regarded as an Unsurpassed Example of Engineering and Landscaping, It Will Be Used Only by Motorists (and the Military) and Will Have No Speed Limit



Map of projected highway (from Revue des Deux Mondes) showing relation to frontiers and industrial centers.

Opposite lanes will be separated by thick hedges and trees, preventing headlight glare and head-on collisions.

Prussian Prime Minister Goering (in center of platform) opens the Berlin-Stettin section of the Reichsautobahn.

1. No intersections: All secondary highways are underpassed or elevated.
2. No parking allowed except in designated areas, usually at scenic points.
3. Grade crossings are avoided.
4. No left turns or intersecting approaches.
5. Toll stations and filling stations are part of the decorative scheme.
6. Pedestrains must use foot bridges.
7. Landscaped strips divide opposite two-lane highways.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

GERMANY'S 4500-mile Reichsautobahn, a system of superhighways whose completion will occupy 150,000 workers for another five years, will be superior in every way to every system of its kind. As a piece of engineering, of landscaping and of planning, it will be unsurpassed. Motorists could ask nothing finer.

That is not its raison d'etre. It could be justified only by military reasons. Germany was financially embarrassed when the plan was announced in June, 1933, and her situation has not changed greatly since. Moreover, when the Nazis came in, Germany already had 20 per cent more roads for its area than the United States and better ones than any European state except for some in Italy. Yet her traffic was lighter than France's and England's—far lighter than that in America. The fact that the Reichsautobahn would be able to carry 72,000 troops an hour (with munitions and provisions) was the motive for undertaking a program that will cost at least $1,324,000,000. This is only a third of what the United States will spend on roads in the same period, but it is a gread deal for a nation in Germany's financial straits.

These are secondary matters to the tourist, though. Drivers will find a highway system designed for speeds of 125 miles an hour. They will find that the Reichsautobahn is routed through the loveliest parts of Germany—the Rhineland, the Black Forest, the Bavarian Alps, the finest of the ancient cities. It will pass through no cities or towns, though. Its approaches—usually spaced at intervals of about 20 miles—will often be several miles long. The superhighway will be spanned by state forests and parks throughout its entire extent. No private owner will be permitted access to its borders. There will be no driveways entering it, no signboards or posters or hot dog stands. Aside from a few markers at regular intervals, there will be no distracting signs of any kind—no exasperating reiterations of the possible merits of soups, hotels, tires, oils and cheap toilet articles. There will be no speed limits, yet the roads, it is believed, will probably be among the safest anywhere for German drivers' licenses are awarded only after a training course which includes the assembling and repair of motors.

The most important innovation will be the separation of the two opposite traffic lanes, not by black lines or white lines, but by a strip of landscaped ground which will be so thickly planted with trees, hedges and flowers, that opposite lanes will be invisible to each other. This eliminates all possibility of headlight glare and head-on collisions. The traffic lanes will be 32 feet wide; the dividing strip 16, the shoulders at least five. These conditions are uniform for the entire system, as is the ultra-durable concrete surface. The only variable is the width of the park or forest right of way, at least according to the announced plan.

The Autobahn will be absolutely free from intersections. Railroads and cross roads and pedestrians' walks will pass either over or under it. The only access will be via the authorized approaches and pedestrians, cyclists or wagon drivers found on the road will be liable to heavy penalties. Trucks will be permitted, however, as the Government is doing its best to stimulate the truck manufacturing industry (for military reasons) and truck sales in Germany have considerably more than doubled in the last five years despite depression.

The extraordinarily high speeds possible on these roads are explained by several factors. First of all there can be no bottlenecks, clots or stoppages on a road with no intersections and uniform width. There are parking spaces on the sides at frequent intervals and there is enough shoulder so that cars which have broken down can be instantly removed from the right of way. But the most important safety element is that there are no angular curves. All curves are in arcs with a radius of at least 6500 feet, and all such curves are interrelated, insofar as this is at all possible. The result is that there is a minimum visibility of 2300 feet (roughly, 2⅓ miles) in every part of the road, save where exceptionally steep hills make this impossible. Curves are only banked five per cent, being so gradual that excessive banking is unnecessary. And the banks are so perfectly calculated that one driver reports rounding one at 60 miles an hour without steering.

A GLANCE at the map indicates immediately the strategic importance the Autobahn will have. It shows also how important it will be to tourists. The network is heaviest on the Franco-Belgian border, where a main stem curves in one broken line from Luebeck to Munich, parallel to Germany's western border. This gives access to the three foremost harbor cities—Luebeck, Hamburg and Bremen. It also connects the industrial cities—Essen and Frankfort, for instance—with the chief frontier outposts, Aachen, Coblentz, Mainz, Saarbrucken and Basel. The eastern roads connect Berlin with the Polish, Czecho-Slovakian and Austrian frontiers at all straetgic points—Tilsitt, Danzig, Frankfurt-on-Oder, Breslau, Gleiwitz and Dresden. Usually the roads are extended past key cities right up to the border. In several cases this will make it possible to connect with international highway systems, the most important of which is the projected superhighway from Calais to Istanbul. This road will some day enable the tourist to drive from the French Channel port to Batavia (via Calcutta) or to Cape Town—if the program envisaged by the Automobile Association of Great Britain isn't interrupted by war.

The latter plan may sound utopian. The Autobahn, however, is virtually a reality. Several important branches are already in operation (notably the one from Frankfurt to Darmstadt and the one from Berlin to Stetin, which was opened with appropriate military ceremonies in April); 719 miles will be completed by the end of the year. The finished network will seem a paradise to motorists even from the United States, where drivers are inclined to be critical.

There are several unpleasant elements to consider, however. First of all, the privilege of using the highways is virtually limited to the wealthy. They are exclusively toll roads and the toll (with possible exceptions for subscribers) will amount to 1¼ cents a mile. This would bring the cost of Autobahn touring to a point considerably higher than travel by rail. As a matter of fact, the state-owned railroad authority is in charge of constructing and managing the highways. Another drawback from the point of view of democratic nations is the fact that the Director General of Highway Construction was given the independent right of emminent

'Defying the Law of Gravity'

A Remarkable Photographic Record of an Unexplained Physical Mystery—An Indian Yogi's Act of Levitation.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LONDON, England.

A YOGA feat of "levitation"—whereby a body seems to escape from the law of gravity and hang in the air without visible support—has set all London guessing. The explanation usually advanced for such feats, which are age-old, is the employment of stage illusion or concealed paraphernalia whereby support is provided, mechanically if not perceptibly, so far as spectators are concerned, below the center of gravity. But in this case photographs taken in glaring sunlight obviate the theory of optical illusion; a long stick was passed beneath the Yogi's body to detect "invisible" support, and no paraphernalia was discernible except, indeed, for his voluminous draperies.

An eye-witness account written by P. T. Plunkett, a planter, who took the photographs in a native compound near his plantation in Southern India, follows:

"I had just arrived back at my bungalow after a very hot morning out in the tea clearings when my bearer handed me a note. It was from a friend, Pat Dove, who lives about one and one-half miles away, and was a summons to come quickly to his bungalow and bring my camera and all the rolls of film I had. When I arrived he explained that we had a chance of photographing the levitation performance, a subject we had been discussing. I had seen this extraordinary act twice, but had no pictures of it, and whenever I tried to explain it to my friends they were always a trifle skeptical, so here was a chance not to be missed. Pat had not seen this phenomenon and he also wanted some concrete proof. Whilst we were talking on his veranda we could hear the monotonous roll of the tom tom, an invariable accompaniment of these traveling troupes, so we loaded our cameras and went out into the compound. The time was about 12:30 p. m. and the sun directly above us, so that shadows played no part in the performance. The compound was about 80 by 80 feet. In the middle of the square four jungle poles had been stuck into the ground to support a skeleton roof of branches, and standing quietly was Subbayah Pullavar, the performer, with long hair hanging down over his shoulders, a drooping mustache, and a wild look in his eye. He salaamed to us and we stood chatting to him for a while. He told us that he came from Tinnivelly and that he had been practicing this particular branch of Yoga for nearly 20 years, thereby following in the footsteps of many past generations of his family. We asked his permission to take photographs of the performance, and he gave it willingly, thus dispelling any doubt as to whether the whole thing was merely a hypnotic illusion. The camera always shows up that type of performance. The beating of the tom tom had been heard by coolies working in an adjacent field and a hundred or so had quietly crept into the compound. Pat knew that in return for a free performance they would work overtime in the evening, so he allowed them to stay. With several gentlemen from a neighboring village, the coolies and ourselves, we mustered about 150 witnesses to watch the performance and eliminate risk of trickery.

EVERYTHING was now ready. Subbayah Pullavar had marked out a circle, close around the tent which he was going to 'levitate,' by pouring water on to the floor of the hot and dusty compound. His instructions were that nobody with leather-soled shoes was to go inside it. The accompanying pictures tell the story of what happened, and I need only mention what steps we took to see that there were no 'illusions.' When Subbayah's assistant told us it was nearly time for the tent to be removed, we took up our positions one on each side of the covering just outside the ring, and photographed every position of the performer and from every angle. When the tent had been removed I held a long stick, and from outside the circle passed the end of it over and under and around Subbayah's body as he remained suspended in mid-air, and I can vouch for the fact that he had no support whatsoever except for resting one hand lightly on top of the cloth-covered stick. He remained horizontal in the air for about four minutes. The tent was Photograph of the Indian Yogi lying horizontal in the air with no apparent support except the small stick wrapped in cloth on which his hand rested.

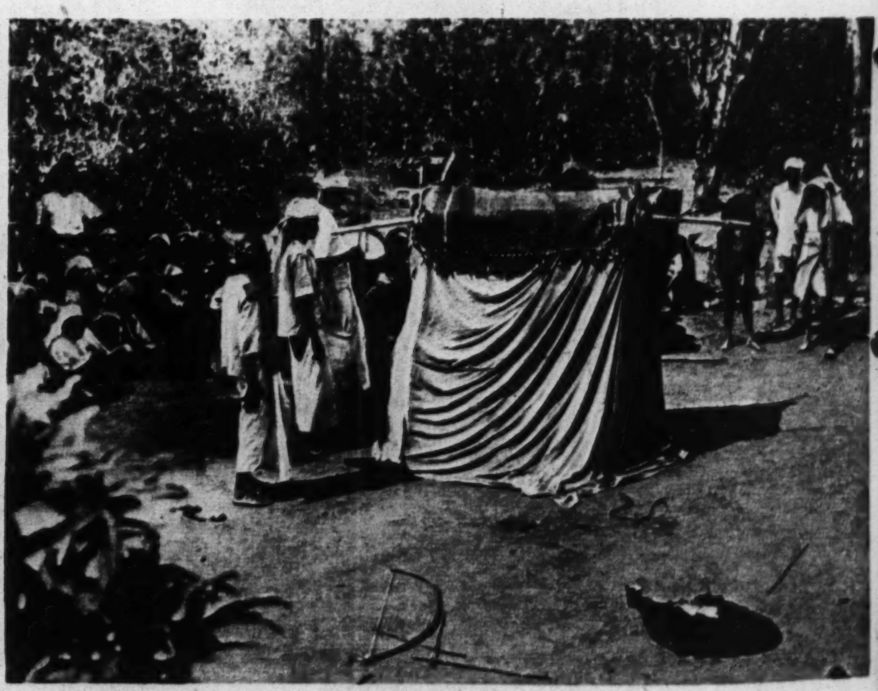
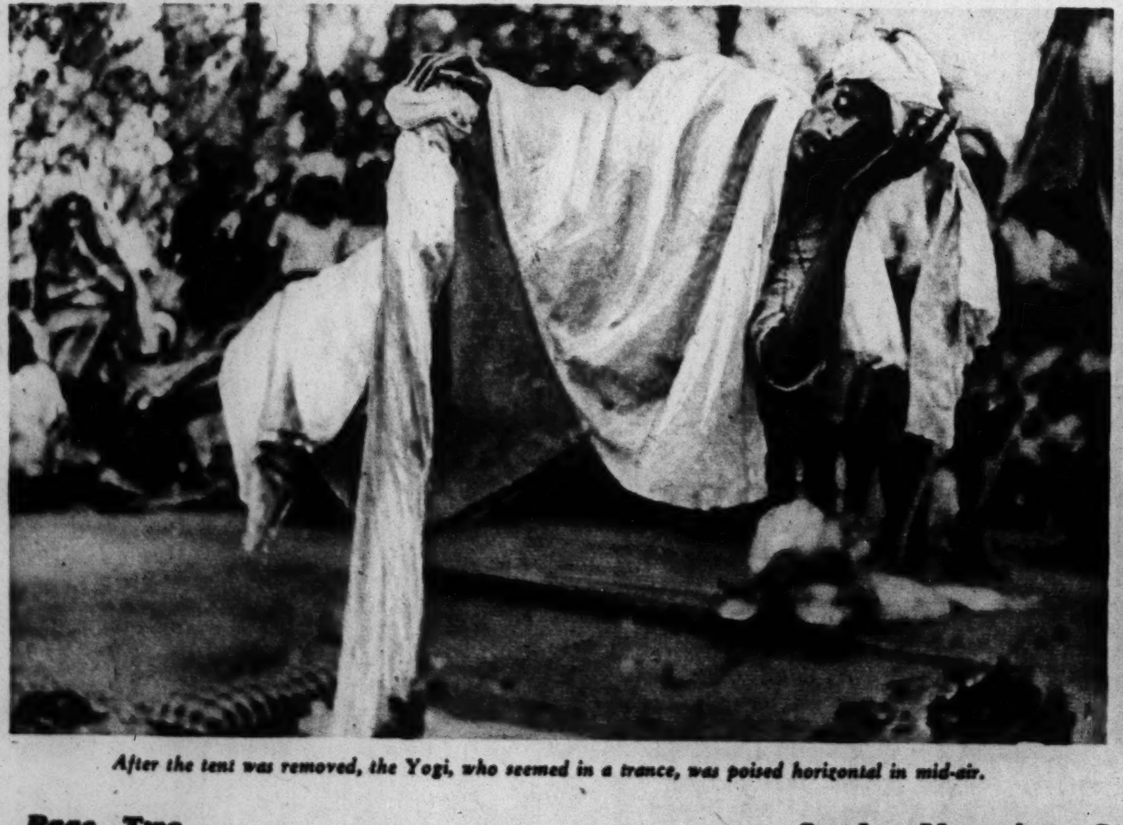
The stick on which the Yogi's hand rested and the cloth in which it was wrapped.

The Yogi entered the tent and wrapped himself in a white cloth. He could be seen the whole time.



The tent closed during the Yogi's assumption of the levitation position.



After the tent was removed, the Yogi, who seemed in a trance, was poised horizontal in mid-air.

After levitating and with the tent removed, the Yogi was so rigid that five men could not bend his limbs.

The ECCENTRIC IWERS Brothers and Their BURIED TREASURE

And the Fight Now Being Waged to Break the Will That Disposed of Their Half-Million Dollar Fortune.

IOWA CITY, Iowa.

THE last of three brothers, eccentric bachelors, died recently on his farm between Durant and Sunbury leaving an estate valued at more than half a million dollars, much of it secreted in strong boxes buried around the place. Cedar County has waited for this to happen for years. Now that the time has come and their suspicions are verified, the neighbors are ecstatic over the sensation of it all.

The founder of that fortune, a thrifty shrewd German farmer, rests under the most pretentious monument in the flat, sparsely shaded cemetery of Durant in Southern Cedar County. His tombstone is a tall ornate shaft of polished granite emblazoned with the name IWERS. It is far from beautiful, with its half shrouded granite urn, its misproportioned little columns and its general air of having been made out of those pink, gray and salmon-colored building blocks you will find in any German nursery. But it is distinctly substantial and leaves no doubt in one's mind that the man and wife whose bones it guards were people of substance.

And so they were. Hans and Caroline Iwers were among the most prosperous of the German settlers who farmed that rich prairie. Hans lived to be 75 years, four months and seven days old and his wife, who died in 1915, survived him, living to be 81. The good man believed in land, and he had reason. The 880-acre farm he cultivated is as rich as any land in America; $175,000 wouldn't buy it. Old Hans spent 48 years building up that farm; he was on his way to buy more land when death overtook him. He died on the railroad whose right-of-way intersected some of his land. And so unostentatiously did he travel that he just missed being buried in potter's field. Instead he was given a fine funeral. The monument at Durant cost $660. It was one of the only investments the Iwerses made that paid no dividends and failed to increase in value.

When Hans Iwers' estate was inventoried in 1899, the year after his death, and divided among his widow and three sons, it only came to $49,-721.37, but that was a goodly fortune for an old Prussian veteran to have amassed and his sons—John and Henry and William—had reason to be satisfied with their inheritance. Even then the boys were considered a queer lot. They were inordinately shy and seemed afraid of girls. They never overcame that fear. With Mrs. Iwers' death in 1915 they settled into a curious routine, living virtually as recluses—although John, it is true, did become president of the little Sunbury Bank and was considered a man of affairs in the community.

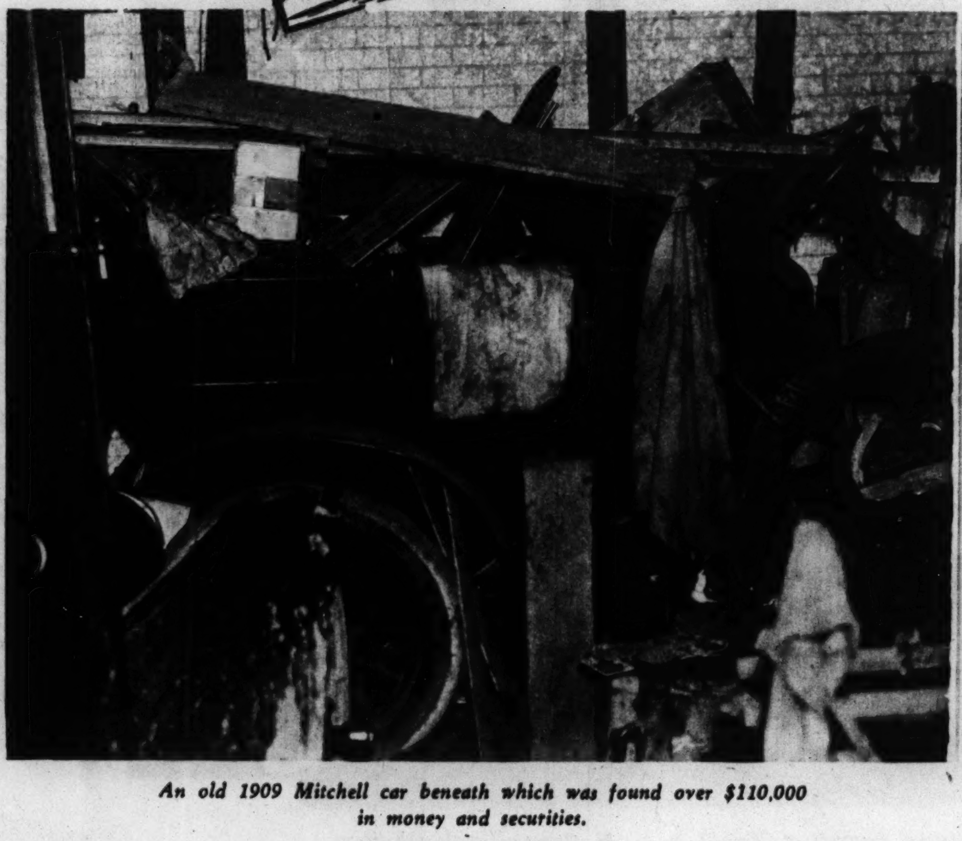
When their mother died they refused to have a housekeeper. John gave up his banking and managed the household, cooked and washed the dishes himself. The brothers did all their own work. On Sunday mornings they would do their own washing. Naturally the villagers considered them woman haters. Perhaps they were. But gossip was quite wrong in assuming that the boys were content to live on old Hans' money and not try to make more. They were conservative, all right, but their thrift was almost religious and they acquired a phenomenal lot of money on their own.

The money that had come to them from their father's estate was invested in bonds and the interest on the bonds was used to buy more bonds, mostly municipal issues in Iowa which were safe, but paid a high rate of interest all the same.

Yet they weren't misers by a long shot. They were the first family in Cedar County to own an autoombile—an old 1909 Mitchell touring car. They had the first tractor, the first Delco lighting plant, the first radio and the first telephone. All in all they lived in a luxuriant abundance of machinery. They didn't care how much a piece of machinery cost, if they were convinced that it was good. And they had enough gadgets so that they never had to call on any artisan or mechanic for assistance. They could repair their own shoes as well as dig a new well.

IT WAS William who was the mechanic of the farm. He was fascinated by machines of every sort. Henry, the agricultural expert, was also a good photographer. Never photographed a woman, though. He was the greatest woman hater of the three. If a woman so much as came to the door, Henry would disappear. Later they would see him peeking at her from around a corner. If she were a cousin or an aunt, he might come down and stand around awkwardly trying not to seem disagreeable. But he couldn't abide women on the place. "Don't ever get married," he would warn the hired boys on the farm; he never explained why.

Probably it was Henry's foible that prevented their ever getting rid of any of the machinery they owned. If they wanted a new car, they would put the old one in the garage for safe keeping. They never traded in a car or a tractor or a harvester. They never sold the old machinery for scrap iron. The old Mitchell they had bought in 1909 was still in their garage when the last of them died. And thereby hangs another tale. . . .



An old 1909 Mitchell car beneath which was found over $110,000 in money and securities.

Henry and John and William never spent an idle moment. A neighbor boy who visited them to help with the harvesting tells how excessively thrifty they were with their time. "We were up by 4 o'clock in the morning," he says, "and worked until dark. Then they would think up things for themselves to do around the house. They had a big bunch of magazines, I remember. Henry preferred Popular Mechanics, I noticed, and John would read The Pathfinder from cover to cover."

The Iwerses built every building on their place and there are more than 20 outbuildings of every description there. They were expert carpenters and plasterers and up-to-date farmers. Their land never became sour or unproductive. They were as methodical about that as about everything else in their lives.

The only festivity the Iwers family knew was the occasion of the great harvest feast which they held every year. This was for their laborers only—not for the neighbors; that would have meant having women in the house. As it happens, one woman was permitted there—their most familiar cousin, Mrs. Louis Voss. She is a famous cook and her husband was the most intimate friend the brothers had. It was Mrs. Voss who prepared the harvest dinners.

THOSE dinners will go down in history, for at one of them Grant Wood, the foremost Iowa painter, made the drawings for his famous canvas, "Dinner for Threshers," which now hangs in the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York. Wood was born in Anamosa, the county seat of Jones County, just to the north of Cedar, and now lives in Cedar Rapids, just to the west. The Iwerses never quite understood Wood's paintings.

The Iwers home.

"What's got into this Wood fellow?" John once exclaimed in one of his rare conversations with a neighbor. "Who ever saw threshers at dinner without their being all mussed up? And what crew can you find in the whole State of Iowa all wearin' the same kind of overalls and all slick as a whistle?" And Henry, the photographer, was propably contemptuous, too, of the old-fashioned "hand paintings."

The brothers may have given themselves every mechanical comfort they could afford and the machine shop William fitted out in a corrugated iron outbuilding is probably the most elaborate of its kind in Iowa. But they were less particular about creature comforts. To the last they slept on corn husk mattresses, ate John's cooking and continued to do their own washing on Sunday mornings.

TOWARD the end of the decade of 1920 William and John decided they were getting old enough to retire. John, the banker, thought they had enough to be comfortable and secure for the rest of their lives and that they had done enough work now. But Henry was outraged at the notion. He seems to have been the most forceful, if the most eccentric of the three, and his word was law.

"We have gotta keep on farming," he said emphatically, over and over again, when the subject was brought up. "If we don't make our way as we go along, something will happen to put us all in the poor house." In those days they were far from the poor house indeed.

William died in 1930, leaving his property to his brothers. Perhaps he, the mechanic, had had more joy out of it than either of them. And his death saved him from knowing about the bank crisis of 1933, in which they lost a great deal of what they had saved. It was probably that event which caused them to begin hoarding their fortune on the place. They had always kept a great deal of cash on hand, hidden in tin boxes and in their corn husk mattresses. That is clear from the fact that much of the money that has been found there is in old style bills.

After William's death and the bank crisis, which John, the former banker, viewed with terror, the lives of the remaining two jogged on the same even tempo. There was no more talk of retirement. John died on February 1, 1935. Improvidently enough, for so prudent and thrifty a man, he left no will. In the natural course of things his estate would have gone to Henry. But when Henry died last May at the age of 74, he did leave a will—though death came upon him unawares and found him with his head full of the hope of bringing new power lines to Cedar County and spending a great deal of money to finance the project. He spent the entire Sunday before his death stitching on an old jacket which had become ripped during his work that week, and was busy up to the day his cousin, Mrs. Louis Voss, and her husband took him to a hospital in the throes of double pneumonia. He bequeathed his entire estate to them.

Since the Vosses were the only relatives who had been on terms of anything like intimacy with the three brothers, the only ones for whom shy old Henry had shown the slightest affection, this bequest couldn't have been altogether unexpected. But there are 17 other relatives—16 cousins and a 96-year-old aunt who is Mrs. Voss' mother and the closest related. No sooner was Henry Iwers dead and the value of his estate rumored about, than these cousins descended on the will ready to tear it to shreds.

They are still trying.

Voss was very casual about establishing his claims. He was administrator of the estate and Henry Iwers had taken him out to the shed where some of his securities were kept more than a year before. Voss had helped the old man cut his coupons on several occasions.

About two weeks after Henry Iwers funeral Voss and his wife were summoned by Judge H. C. Ring of the District Court in Tipton and questioned about the estate. "We don't know how much it is worth," Voss said. "We think there is a lot of money there. But we haven't really looked yet."

About the end of June Voss got some of the relatives of his wife and some court officials to help him make a superficial hunt for the treasure believed to be buried on the Iwers farm. They opened the two safes in Henry Iwers' bedroom. These contained only negligible amounts. Then he led them out to the garage. Under the ancient Mitchell they found a heavy iron box concealed in a ragged burlap sack. They opened it and counted out more than $110,000 in gold and silver certificates and bonds. It also contained $5125 in gold.

A MORE careful scrutiny of the house turned up several thousand dollars more in securities. Voss admitted that he had previously discovered a similar iron box containing $88,000 in securities and had deposited them in a Davenport bank.

Secret Service agents have impounded the gold for the Government.

As soon as the discovery leaked out, the 17 relatives descended on the farm. They hired three attorneys to break the will and Voss hired four to prevent them. On June 30 a hearing was held in the District Court and Louis Voss was required to give an accounting. He said that $203,500 in cash and securities and uncashed dividend checks had been turned up at that time. Since the land itself is worth at least $200 an acre, that would bring the total at least as high as $379,500; it is believed to be worth even more.

Three days later a group of contesting relatives petitioned the State Department of Health and the State Investigation Bureau to exhume Henry Iwers' body, which was buried in the family plot at Durant. The implication was that the Vosses had been responsible for his death—either owing to the fact that they had failed to care for him properly or that they had actually speeded the process by more voilent means. But if these suspicions were in the minds of the relatives whom Henry Iwers had ignored, they weren't very well established, even in the jealous minds of the contestants. Two weeks later the plans

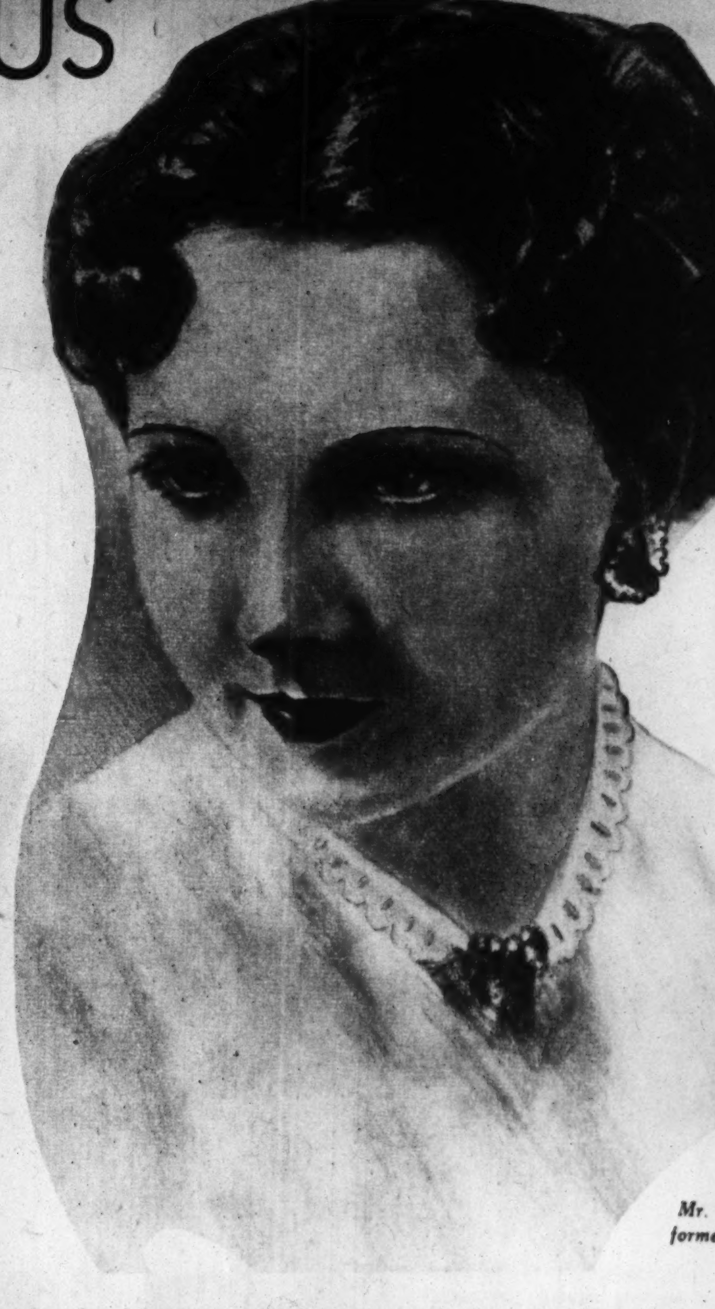
What a VENOMOUS TONGUE Cost a London Society Girl

How Pamela Blake Was Forced to Pay Heavy Damages and Was Held Up as a Warning to the Scandal Mongers of the Fashionable West End.

Miss Pamela Blake, the defendant, who admitted making defamatory remarks about Lonsdale.



Miss Evelyn Wolseley, Mr. Lonsdale's former fiancee.

"MY DEAR!" Cartoon commenting on the scandal mongers of Mayfair by H. M. Bateman, presented in an illustrated London paper.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LONDON, England.

IT IS to the solemn and fact-probing majesty of the law, with all its publicity, that wealthy and socially prominent Britishers are now turning to protect themselves against the so-called "Poison Whisperer" of Mayfair. The young creatures of London's famous social corral who believe that, because of family background and money, they are privileged to utter "in confidence" the most dreadful and disgusting charges against people, may no longer expect to escape legal chastisement for their gossipy indiscretions.

In the High Court of Justice, King's Bench Division, before Lord Chief Justice Hewart and a special jury the other day, a slander action, Lonsdale versus Blake, resulted not only in a verdict for the plaintiff, but also made it quite plain that Britishers need no longer fear the more venomous tongues of Mayfair.

In the above listed case, the jury awarded John Christopher Mainwaring Lonsdale, of The Further House, Wimborne, Dorset, a prominent figure of London's banking world, $2500 damages.

The woman indirectly responsible for the crashing of the banker's romance, and against whom the damages were assessed in the slander action, was Miss Pamela Blake, 20-year-old daughter of Lady Twysden, of Nea House, Highcliffe, Hants. While the youthful socialite of Mayfair did not defend the suit, she was forced to appear in court, where she was subjected to a scathing denunciation almost without parallel in the annals of British jurisprudence.

In addressing the jury, Lord Chief Justice Hewart spoke plainly. He said:

"The defendant admitted that on two separate occasions to different persons she had used words which unmistakably declared that the plaintiff was suffering from a disease.

"Anything more disgraceful, more disgusting, or more repulsive it would be difficult to imagine, and it was now admitted that there was not a word of truth in the statements.

"Nothing could be more injurious or reckless, and nothing could be more abominable.

"If the plaintiff had been minded to treat the matter in the way in which he was entitled to treat it, he could have had at their hands heavy damages, which might well have been aggravated by the fact that at the outset there was a disinclination on the part of the defendant to admit that the words were false.

"There was not a word of truth in the imputations. A sum should be awarded which would make it plain to everybody that these were slanders for which there was not the slightest foundation."

In opening the case for Mr. Lonsdale, the eminent British pleader, Norman Birkett, K. C., explained that the action was brought not for the purpose of gaining heavy damages, but rather for the silencing of a poison whisper which the wealthy and socially prominent Miss Blake had started on its rounds through London. He told the jury that for many reasons he was very sorry that they were to be troubled with the case. Painful though it might be, he thought they would agree the course Mr. Lonsdale had taken was the only one open to him.

In truth and in fact the case was completely undefended.

Plaintiff's counsel pointed out that Mr. Lonsdale, for all his youth, enjoyed quite a responsible position in the London banking world, being the chief assistant secretary of the International Exchange and Clearing Corporation, and was also interested in film production. His reputation and good name were of great importance to him.

Miss Blake had made monstrously slanderous statements about Mr. Lonsdale. She had said he was suffering from a disease which, under ordinarily decent circumstances, would preclude his marriage, and that, if any girl took him for a husband, any children born of such a union would bear the stigma of their father's sin. Continuing Mr. Birkett said that at first Miss Blake was inclined to take the line that what she had stated was true. Mr. Lonsdale was therefore compelled to institute legal proceedings. A writ was issued, and an appearance entered by Miss Blake's mother, Lady Twysden, widow of Sir Roger Twysden, formerly the wife of Commander W. R. Blake, of the Royal Navy, from whom she had been divorced.

Aside from "entering an appearance, for Miss Blake, no further steps were taken by way of defense. On the contrary, when the statement of claim was delivered, a letter was received from Joynson-Hicks and Company, Miss Blake's solicitors, saying she desired to express her sincere regrets.

"The slanders uttered on those two days have gone a good deal further than the immediate circle of Mayfair and Belgravia," added Mr. Birkett. "You know from your experience of life how the poisonous whisper spreads and grows, and you can never overtake it.

"Mr. Lonsdale says, 'I cannot compromise now, because I cannot be certain that people will not say that there is something in Miss Blake's story.' Thus arose his desire to be vindicated by a jury. So he comes here to get his good name established in open court, so that this poison shall be repressed."

MR. G. O. SLADE, counsel for Miss Blake, stated he desired at once to make admissions that would save the necessity of calling the witnesses ready to testify in behalf of Mr. Lonsdale. The witnesses were the two girls to whom Miss Blake had "in confidence" made the slanderous statements concerning the young London financier.

Mr. Lonsdale then went into the witness box and formally denied that there was any truth in the allegations. He was fortified with a number of certificates of medical examination from eminent London specialists, attesting the truth of his statements.

Counsel for Miss Blake remarked that the girl now admitted there was absolutely no truth in her statements. Her solicitors, Joynson-Hicks and Company, Attorney Slade observed, at once saw the gravity of the case, and on April 17 they wrote to Mr. Lonsdale's solicitors:

"Miss Blake desires us to express her very sincere regret that at the night club and hotel in question she would have been led into making the statement, which she is quite ready to accept from your client to be entirely untrue.

"She desires through us to convey to her client her unqualified apology for having done so, and for any pain which her words may have caused him.

"She is also prepared to do whatever lies in her power to put the matter right, and with this end in view is agreeable to signing in proper form any apology and withdrawal which you may think fit which your client can show to persons acquainted with the statements she made.

"I ask you to bear in mind," continued Counsel Slade, "that this girl is only 20, and, however much one regrets that she should publish such slanders, you cannot expect a person of that age to have the restraint and wisdom of people of more advanced age."

Then came Lord Hewart's summing up.

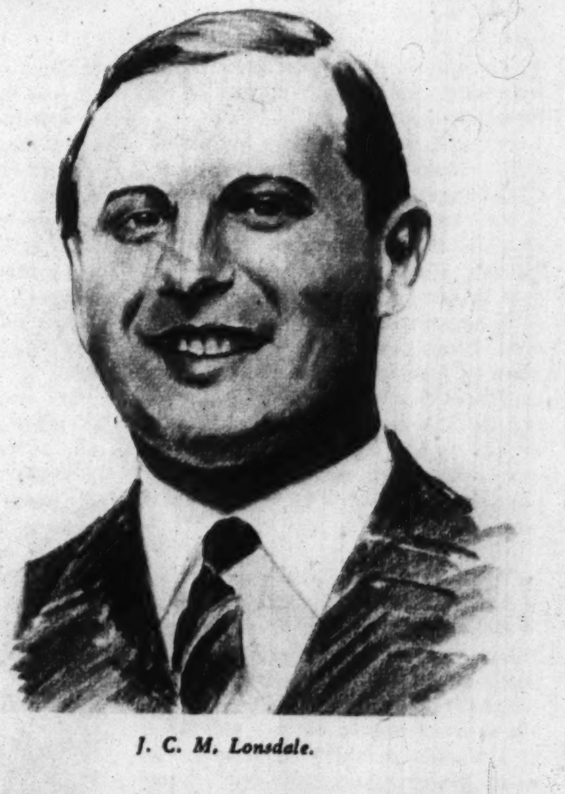
In assessing the damages, the jury was cautioned by the Lord Chief Justice that it must steer a middle course. The danger of awarding small damages, notwithstanding the magnanimous course that Mr. Lonsdale had taken, might be that in circles where all the facts were not completely known the amount might be misunderstood and a false impression created.

Therefore the jury might think it right for the purpose of vindicating the character of Mr. Lonsdale to award him a sum so substantial in character as would make it plain to everyone that this was a wicked slander which had not the slightest foundation in fact.

Replying to a juryman, the Lord Chief Justice said it was irrelevant for them to consider the income of Miss Blake.

In addition to the $2500 damages awarded to him, the jury also ordered Miss Blake to pay Mr. Lonsdale the entire costs of his action. This last amounted to 3200 pounds or approximately $16,000. Of course, the gossipy Mayfair socialite, or rather her titled mother, had also her own lawyers to pay. Their fee, according to the most conservative estimate, must have amounted to not less than $7500.

So, just for the doubtful pleasure of a little venomous gossip, Miss Blake had to pay a grand total of $26,000, and suffer an editorial onslaught by the newspapers of England, in which she was flayed as a "cruel and vicious assassin of character." The preachers and the soap box orators in Hyde Park also had a good deal to say about the case. The Rev. W. Edmondson Jones, of the Church of the Holy Cross, Blackpool, said that "St. Paul, who looked on the tongues as one of the chief weapons of Satan, was right, and that if he came to London today he would find that of all the social sins scandal-mongering topped the list."



J. C. M. Lonsdale.

James Douglas, famous British publicist, in a lengthy news article, wrote that the young girls of Mayfair all had their "minds corrupted and polluted by the foul pathology of sex." He added that with "every sip of every cocktail a reputation is destroyed by some society girl."

Some of the artists of the swank society weeklies have also taken a fling at the gossips of Mayfair, as a result of the sensational Lonsdale-Blake slander suit.

A "Hyde Park shouter," taking for his theme the "Sins of Mayfair," said that it would be an excellent idea for London to raze all the statues, glorifying the virtues of the historic characters of Britain, and erect a huge monument, such as they have on a smaller scale in Mulhouse, France, symbolizing an ancient and modern vice, scandal-mongering.

The anti-gossip stone referred to by the Hyde Park shouter hangs outside the Mulhouse City Hall. Carved in the stone is a woman sticking out her tongue.

After the action ended in his favor, Mr. Lonsdale stated:

"Now that my name has been vindicated, I can hold my head high again. When this gossip began to circulate I hardly knew which way to turn.

"My whole business and career in the city (London's financial center) depend on my being in personal contact with people, and I felt that I was a ruined man unless the lie was scotched.

"It was among business people and chance social acquaintances that the slander began to spread.

"When I went to any social gathering, I felt my name was being bandied about behind my back, and it became unbearable.

"More poisonous gossip goes on in Mayfair than in the average English village. I hope the result of this case will help to put an end to it.

"THERE is too much loose talk about other people going on in Mayfair. Reputations are ruined by the lightest whisper or innuendo, which grows alarmingly as it is passed on.

"There is no doubt that in Mayfair there are people who have nothing to do to occupy their minds, and who indulge in idle gossip—perhaps with no ill-intent—but which might spell disaster for many people."

An incident of the case which has caused almost as much discussion as the slander suit itself was the fact that during the course of the action Mr. Lonsdale became engaged to Miss Evelyn Wolseley, a beautiful and wealthy young girl of a prominent family who broke the engagement as soon as the trial was over.

Both she and her fiance said that this action had been taken by mutual agreement and she further illuminated the situation by explaining:

"I knew John was innocent of all the nasty things that were being said about him, and I was determined to clear his name. He knew nothing of these beastly rumors until I told him, and we immediately started to trace them to their source.

"I believed John so completely that when he proposed to me after he had started the action I accepted, knowing full well his honor would be vindicated in the courts.

"It is unfortunately true that Mayfair is a hive of gossip, much of which is scandalous, and the only way to put an end to such scandal-mongering is to hail the author of the slander into open court.

"As for the cancellation of our engagement I can only say that it was broken off by mutual consent. I cannot make my reasons public at the moment. Mr. Lonsdale and I will continue to be the best of friends. We shall meet just as usual.

"My parents entirely agree with the course I have taken. Mr. Lonsdale will still be a welcome visitor to Whimoor House."

SKETCHES FROM LIFE

High Lights on Unusual Personalities

LAWRENCE SAINT
DR. HARVEY NININGER

The STAINED GLASS ARTIST who searched through SEVEN CENTURIES for his tools

WASHINGTON, D. C.

IT WILL last but a moment, even in those who feel it—that touch of reverence, of mingled awe and pleasure, as worshippers see the play of light in stained glass windows at the National Cathedral in Washington. The source of that inner stir will hardly be apparent. It may lie beyond the visible something extra in sensitiveness to the change of light, in mellowness of color, integrity of design. It may be that the man who made them felt it, too, and that extra something is only a tool to pass it on. The moment may be remembered, or, for many, it may almost certainly never come. But into that moment has gone 40 years of one man's life, and that extra something was born long ago in the dreams of Lawrence Saint, newsboy.

Large dreams alone would have made him different only in subject matter from any boy, and without something more he might have gone on peddling papers forever. And that, presumably, was not the pleasant inner stir of the spectator, a thing complete in itself, but the rude upheaval in the artist, which leaves him feeling but half a man until he has passed it on. It is all over again, but with a difference, the legend of the great heap where all the truths in the world lie higgeldy-piggeldy. The little man picks up his little truth, and bundles it tightly against the cold, and hugs it to his bosom—and weightily it lines his brow and clouds his eyes and bends his back until he lays it down. It is so with the artist—until he strips it bare and sets it up. Something like that, probably, has sent Lawrence Saint over half the world and through seven centuries in search of his tools, and it has made him different from any artist alive in his field.

Lawrence Saint is said to be the only man in the field who does everything for himself from the mixing of his pigments to the manufacture of his glass. He has spent years of study in old cathedrals and medieval libraries to see what the masters had to say, how they said it and what they had to say it with. He has devised 1258 formulas for stained glass, including 300 blues and a striated ruby of which he is particularly proud. And he feels that 75 per cent of his own formulas will stand comparison with those of the Middle Ages.

The open 25 per cent is significant. The work is incomplete. Of course, it will never be complete. Probably he will knock over one or another in the 75 per cent, to supplant it with something nearer the unattainable best. and it is worth noting, too, that they are all his own.

But Saint's father, 40 years ago, would much rather have had him keep on peddling papers. His father, Joseph Alexander Saint, knew all about it. He was an artist himself. In his eighties, he still is.

At 14, Lawrence Bradford Saint got a better job. He went to work in his home town, Sharpsburg, Pennsylvania, for a wall paper firm, 11 to 14 hours a day, for three whole dollars a week and a chance to study color harmonies. Between times, he began to draw. The drawings got him the chance of an apprenticeship to a stained glass artist. His father minced no words, but, when the artist agreed to meet the wall paper salary, J. A., with what forebodings the record fails to show, agreed to let the boy take the first step on the long road.

It led to a study of the opalescent system invented by L. C. Tiffany and John La Forge, who, for their time, were the masters in this country.

But Saint was not satisfied. He looked further—first to a course in portrait painting at Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, and then, with the award of a European fellowship, to the cathedrals and the libraries of Europe.

The windows of Sainte Chappelle in Paris, he says, convinced him that he must get to the roots of every phase of the art if it took all his life—and he suspected that it probably would.

No glass he could buy would touch the exquisite hand-blown glass of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. So from the cathedral windows, famous through the world, Saint looked further, to the sometimes quite unknown working notes of the men who had made them.

Home again, he started to make his own glass, beginning with a formula of Theophilus, the twelfth century monk who really started things in stained glass. Of the Tiffany-La Forge windows, Saint said: "The color was anemic." Of the ancient cathedral works, "The colors were never raw or garish or unpleasant. They were soft and poetic and beautiful, like the lovely colors of apples and banana skins and Tokay grapes, the sky and autumn leaves and old lace." Of his own first attempt, "Green molasses!"

So he looked further, through all the musty literature, into every device his own imagination could conceive. When an old formula suggested egg youlk ground down with tender fig shoots, he found no tender fig shoots in the Pennsylvania hills, but substituted hollyhock, tomato vine and calendula, and then, with portulaca, got the desired effect.

He still makes all his own glass, with a furnace of his own invention, mixes his own pigments, applies his own designs with a receptacle made of a thimble set in wood and a brush so fine that the point is hardly visible. In his studio, at Huntingdon Valley, Pennsylvania, are hundreds of bits of colored glass to represent gradations of shade or texture insensible to the eye of the uninitiated. To him there is a vast gap between the bit labaled "tonal green warm medium" and "neutral green slightly cool."

The formula for his striated ruby covers eight typed pages, and yet, he says, is far from fool-proof. And recently, when he completed the Hildrup Memorial Windows in the National Cathedral, he had discarded 700 finished pieces because somehow—imperceptibly so far as lay observers were concerned—they disturbed his cherished harmony.

Into those nine-foot windows, begun in January of last year, went 2850 pieces of glass. The most casual observers note their remarkbaly sensitive response to the changes of light outside. Saint has designed seven other windows in the cathedral, and completed the 26-foot north rose transept window with 9000 pieces of glass.

THE Episcopal cathedral conceived by George Washington and chartered in 1893, is being built on Mount Saint Alban, 400 feet above the city of Washington. It is to provide standing room for 27,000 persons and to cost, with grounds and landscaping, $30,000,000, of which $5,000,000 so far has gone into the building. President McKinley spoke at the dedication of a peace cross in the cathedral close, Theodore Roosevelt delivered an address at the laying of the cornerstone in 1907, and Woodrow Wilson is buried there.

Before its stained glass work was placed under Saint's direction, he had designed and painted windows at Bryn Athyn Cathedral, near his home. He has works in Victoria and Albert Museum in London and the Carnegie Institute at Pitsburgh.

Colors in the glass itself, enamels painted on the glass and fused with it, and even the pattern of lead which joins the pieces are integral to the design. Saint draws his own cartoons, lays out the hundreds of numbered pieces, paints each with its alloted fragment of design and fits them into the ultimate scheme.

His home, studio and glass house are all of a piece at Huntingdon Valley, if not quite in the same building. He married Katharine Wright Proctor of Wyncote, Pennsylvania, in 1910. His oldest son, 24, made some of the sky blue glass for a set of Washington Cathedral finger bowls and bud vases recently presented to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Two others have begun to help Saint in his studio. A fourth, 11, is still selling papers.

HE CHASES FALLING STARS

"GO AND CATCH a falling star," one of the famous first lines in English poetry, was John Donne's metaphor for "Attempt the impossible." Few people have knowingly accepted the challenge. For although it is estimated that 20,000,000 meteors enter the earth's atmosphere every day, the vast majority of these are supposed to be only about one-tenth of an inch in diameter and only an infinitesimal proportion ever strike the earth. According to a recent edition of the Encylopedia Britannica only about 10 meteorites (fallen meteors) are found in all parts of the world each year and less than two dozen are known to have been found in the British Isles. Despite such tales as that of a Crawfordsville, Indiana, mechanic who had the hood of his moving car pierced by an unseen missile in 1930, or that of a Spanish villager whose house was destroyed by a falling "column of smoke" in 1934, meteorites constituted a negligible danger. Since they are more elusive than will-o'-the-whisps, most people are content to ignore them save when, on brilliant starry nights, they can admire their spasmodic celestial fireworks from the luxury of an open terrace in the country. People have known of their existence for at least 26 centuries, yet nothing was actually known about them until 100 years ago.

"Go and catch a falling star," might be a good heraldic motto for Dr. Harvery Harlow Nininger, who says he is "practically immune to anything like discouragement." Nininger, curator of meteorites at the Colorado Museum of Natural History, Denver, is one of the few world authorities on the subject. He is the owner of the largest private collection in the world. He is the only man who makes a living by seeking fallen meteors and selling them to museums. Yet he found his vocation only a dozen years ago and spends only half of each year hunting. If finding a meteorite is one of the rarest experiences, trailing one that has been seen in flight is even rarer. Yet that is Dr. Nininger's method and he has made it a successful one.

He is in the East now, tracking down fragments of the sensational bolide which threw the citizens of New Jersey into such a panic last March when it thundered across the horizon at about three o'clock one morning. Bolides are meteors of exceptional size and brilliance, usually described as being "big as a full moon." They ordinarly cause a dull thundering rumble, then a roar like the hiss of a huge shell. This one was so brilliant that observers, doubtless surprised into exaggeration, described it as "turning night into noonday brightness." A patrolman in Ocean Township said graphically that "It got so light you could pick up a pin on the road." Windows rattled. People were jolted out of their sleep and ran to the phone to find out where the explosion was.

AS A matter of fact the meteor may have exploded; they often do. The only trouble is that no one could agree on the direction in which it disappeared. Had Dr. Nininger been on the spot, he would have taken an accurate sighting, using whatever landmarks were available, then plotted a line on the map to determine where it had gone. Since he wasn't and didn't, he is making hundreds of interviews, checking up on reports, asking questions.

Some of the fragments of this bolide were found within a week after the apparition and one, which smashed a hole through a garage at Red Bank, was authenticated as a meteoric relic by Rutgers University scientists. Several other pieces, one of them weighing eight pounds. another 25, were also likely specimens. In every case the authenticity of a meteorite must be established by an expert; frequently excited laymen come to the curator with bits of cinder or even paving stone. In this case the amount of research involved will be extremely extensive, since the bolide was visible from Yonkers, New York, to Lawrenceville, Virginia. An airplane pilot was certain he saw the ball of fire disappear into the earth at the latter point. Others are equally convinced that it vanished over the Atlantic Ocean.

But as a large proportion of those who saw it confused the incident with doomsday and were frightened out of their wits, accurate testimony is hard to come by.

Yet this is the kind of problem Dr. Nininger loves to tackle. He was 36 years old when he gave up a perfectly good job as professor of biology at McPherson (Kansas) College in order to confine himself to such wild goose chases. When he started his first hunt in 1923, he knew practically nothing about the subject. Everything meteoric he knows now has been learned since that November evening when he was standing in a McPherson street chatting wfth a colleague and gazing idly at the sky. A brilliant meteor flashed across the horizon. Dr. Nininger was on its track instantly, a hound that has scented his fox. "I'm going to get that star," he announced. And he succeeded, though the search occupied 11 months and all the space the editor of the Wichita Eagle could spare for letters on the subject. Dr. Nininger even went so far as to travel around the country lecturing to high school students and asking farmers for assistance. And finally a farmer plowing for his winter wheat at Coldwater, 150 miles away, found what Dr. Nininger believes is the same stone. A few years later he performed a far more remarkable feat of accurate reckoning.

The second incident occurred at Paragould, Arkansas. By this time the former biology professor was a confirmed star catcher. His sighting was so accurate that when the 820-pound meteorite was located a month later at the bottom of an eight-foot pit in the middle of a pasture, the field where it was found was transsected by the line he had drawn. It had been seen in three states and was so brilliant over St. Louis that observers mistook it for a burning airplane.

More out of prudence than out of generosity, Dr. Nininger insists on paying for every meteor he locates. His price is $1 a pound—a rather considerable outlay when one considers that most farmers would be willing to get rid of big meteors by paying to have them hauled away. Often they don't believe that the rocks have any value, even when Nininger makes them an offer. After he has persuaded them of his sanity, they often try to raise the price of the find—even when they haven't done the locating themselves and couldn't have identified the meteoric origin of the rock in a thousand years. The expert gets a big kick out of paying a man $700 or $800 for a boulder that has dropped out of the sky, unbeknownst to the owner of the property on which it was found. But he knows that if he didn't insist on paying he might be sued later. The United States experimental laboratories in Washington had to defend such a suit in 1931.

And of course Dr. Nininger gets a fair profit when he has an opportunity to sell. The meteor he discovered in Paragould cost more than his regular price. Although it weighed only 820 pounds, the farmer who owned the land where it fell was paid $3600 for it. But Stanley Field purchased it three months later and donated it to the Field Museum in Chicago. Dr. Nininger is said to have made a very good deal out of it.

On another occasion a farmer who read about his standing offer brought him a chip from a heavy rock he had found on his place in Clovis, New Mexico. The whole piece weighed 68 pounds. Dr. Nininger inspected it, paid the $68 and took it away for a more careful examination. It turned out that the rock was loaded with gold.

This was a considerable rarity, however. It was the first example of a meteor containing gold. Usually the most precious metal in their composition is nickel—and not much of that. Several excessively rare minerals not found on earth have been found in meteors, but they are not valuable except scientifically, since their components can be put together readily in the laboratory.

Like most specialists in little-understood subjects that are popularly discussed, Dr. Nininger is a shade indignant about the general ignorance on his specialty. He wishes someone would turn over one of the press wire services to him for about six months so that he could enlist a little intelligent help from laymen. He would like to carry on a publicity campaign to convince people: (1) that meteors have no commercial value and don't contain jewels or precious metals in marketable quantities, (2) that they don't set fires when they strike, ordinarily being barely warm to the touch a moment after hitting the earth, (3) that they don't preserve their interplanetary speeds of eight to 50 miles per second after reaching the atmosphere, having been known to bounce on thin ice in one instance, and (4) that they are not omens of catastrophe, but eminently desirable scientific finds. Naturally the thing that intrigues him about them is the suggestive notion that they are the only substances that reach the earth from the outer universe. He has never found two whose chemical composition was identical, although he is now finding that they do classify themselves into a few groups.

DR. NININGER, who has a wife and three children in Denver, has succeeded now in tracking down almost 50 meteorites and has sold specimens to Smithsonian Institution, Harvard University, and the Field Museum, as well as his own in Colorado.

The one he is after now will probably turn out to be one of the largest on record, he thinks, although he is certain it won't compare with the one that landed in Siberia in 1930, killing 130 reindeer and creating a good sized lake. Probably the most impressive one in existence, and one that contradicts Dr. Nininger's assertion that meteorites have no commercial value, is the one which fell at a point between Flagstaff and Winslow, Arizona, some seven centuries or more ago, burying itself in a crater 4000 feet long and 550 feet deep. That one, said to contain 10,000,000 tons of iron and nickel, is believed to be worth more than $800,000,000.

Dr. Nininger's idea of heaven would be an opportunity to witness the "procession" of 250 bolides which flew into the earth's orbit in 1913, each body as bright as the moon and roaring audibly across Canada southeastward to the Atlantic. Only one previous instance is recorded. That was in Cairo in 1029. Dr. Nininger is waiting.

CHEERS for ONE WIFE—Two Months in JAIL for ANOTHER

The Real Life Romance of a Romantic Tenor.

Diana Napier.

Richard Tauber.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LONDON, England.

THREE gentlemen who got together over in Chicago back in 1930 to form a new organization ought to hear about Richard Tauber. Possibly they have heard about him, or heard him, through phonograph records or international broadcasts or moving pictures or his American concerts as "the greatest living light opera tenor." But there's something else about this Austrian singer that should commend him for their membership—if not, indeed, for international president. The organization is the Alimony Club, and the thing about Tauber is this: On March 19, 1936, Tauber's former wife, who had hounded him for eight years—not counting anything that happened before their divorce—was judicially estopped from squeezing any more gravy out of his earnings and formally placed under two-month jail sentence for attempted extortion.

What brought her down on him in that final disastrous raid was, as might be expected, his announced intention to marry. That purpose, which seemed pretty hopeless for some months while Carlotta wallowed in sympathy as a discarded but never legally divorced wife — not to mention what then seemed new financial prospects—has now been carried out. The bride was Diana Napier of the British films, and so many fans cheered them at the door of the magistrate's office near London that they had to be rescued by police.

Tauber and Miss Napier, both of them stars, met in the films. A decade or so ago, Tauber was singing in occasional concerts in Vienna when he encountered Signora Carlotta Vanconti, a meeting fraught with possibilities which did not then seem to him lamentable. She was blonde, buxom, with a Milanese business man for a husband, on the one hand, and artistic interests on the other. Tauber, though he had not yet achived his large and occasionally somewhat hysterical folowing, was already famous.

BORN in Linz, Austria (the Bruckner Music Festival), son of a well-known actor, he lived in Berlin as a child and later at Wiesbaden, where, at 14, he made townspeople sit up and take notice at a concert when he conducted the "Egmont" overture. At 16 he turned out a one-act opera, "Expiation." At 19, he was turned down by the director of the Wiesbaden Opera Company, who let his version of the Turridu role in "Cavalleria"—He had memorized it in the hope of an audition—die unsung on the salubrious air. But at 20 he made his debut at Chemnitz as Tamino in "The Magic Flute," and forthwith won a five-year contract with the Dresden opera.

He weathered the war with its taboos and its general impoverishment of musical enterprises, and thereafter returned as often as he could to sing in Vienna, which had retained much of its old atmosphere if little of its spare change. There an actress, a mutual friend, introduced him to Signora Vanconti, who disposed of her husband in the Budapest divorce courts and became Frau Tauber in 1926.

Apparently there wasn't much to talk about until 1928, and then it was Frau Carlotta who did the talking. She said he had met another woman and coolly invoked the tradition of "artistic" freedom to live and love. Tauber countered with a plaint that she had tossed away an equally cool $8000 on a production of Lehar's "The Czarevitch" on the theory that she would get to sing its leading role. The last word—by Carlotta—was that it was really Tauber who had squandered the $8000 to gratify his ambition to conduct.

Carlotta got her divorce, plus $40,000, the Tauber town car, the Tauber villa and heaps of the Tauber jewelry.

That was enough until 1929. Several things, as may be recalled, happened in 1929. Some of them happened to Carlotta, In consequence, things began happening to Tauber. It seemed that Tauber had met somebody, again. He was reported about to marry Mary Lossef of the Vienna movies. They never did marry. But meantime Frau Carlotta had quite repaired any reverses she may have suffered in the depression.

She pointed out that Tauber was a citizen of Austria, and that hence his Berlin divorce would not enable him to marry in Vienna. Also, she made clear, she found it hard to withhold from her public a book dealing with her marriage in some detail.

Tauber obtained his Austrian divorce, at a cost of $100,000 in a lump and $700 a month, to continue for 10 years. The decree, as customary in the Viennese courts, was temporary, to be made final after two years upon application by either party.

Tauber forgot about Carlotta so earnestly—except for the monthly reminder—that he overlooked the joker in the decree. He was not unoccupied. He sang at the Drury Lane in London, invaded America with a spectacular first concert at New York Town Hall, starred in Viennese movies, came to London in 1934 to sing the lead in "My Heart's Desire" — and again, met somebody.

It was Diana Napier, then a girlish 17 to his hefty 42, a newcomer to the screen, but regarded with great expectations. The expectations were realized along two lines, not to say three. Miss Napier was applauded by fans and critics. She became engaged to Tauber, April 24, 1935. And the former wife was promptly heard from.

On July 13, Miss Napier accompanied Tauber to the resort town of Piestany, in the Czecho-Slovakian mountains, for a recital. An hour before the concert Tauber learned that a statuesque blonde had reserved two front row seats. It was, of course, Frau Tauber. Tauber, not sure what was up, but convinced it was nothing pleasant, called police. The two front row seats remained vacant, and next morning Tauber and Miss Napier departed for Italy, leaving the summer guests appreciative enough of his recital, but really grateful for his lively contribution to gossip.

THE flight to Italy may have been respite, but it was not escape. Carlotta Tauber served notice that this man, trotting all over Europe and about to marry a slip of a girl, had never obtained a permanent divorce. He was still husband, and the world could imagine how she felt.

While the world was suppressing its sobs, she let it be known to Tauber that she might feel different if he would bind himself to continue the $700 payments for her natural life, instead of heartlessly letting them drop in 1940.

It was a mistake. Despite Tauber's apparent inability to refuse a lady anything, he had wondered if he wasn't being pushed around a little. This last dig convinced him that nobody but a goose would continue to lay the golden egg. He retaliated with charges of blackmail and extortion.

On March 19, 1936, she was found guilty and paroled under two-month sentence. On May 14, Tauber obtained a divorce without a joker and with permanent freedom from alimony. On June 20, he and Miss Napier were married at St. Marylebone Town Hall, rescued the little flower girl from the admirers who waited on the steps, were themselves rescued by police.

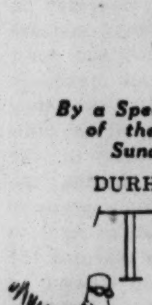
And shortly before June 20, Miss Napier told a friend, with every evidence of assurance, "As my husband, Mr. Tauber will have to change."

A RAY MACHINE to KILL Operating Room GERMS

Dr. Deryl Hart's Invention for Disinfecting the Air.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

DURHAM, North Carolina.



THE germ-shooters have turned to a new field. For decades they've been gunning for the diseases that take cover in drinking water, in milk, in meat and other foods, in the seen or unseen dirt on objects that come in contact with wounds and mucous membrane. Now they're shooting germs out of the air. And the weapon they do it with is a barrage of ultra-violet rays.

Old friends, those rays, for they're the "health rays" of natural sunlight as well as the "artificial sunlight" of mercury or carbon lamps. They're famous for the effect they have on the skin. That ultra-violet barrage—carefully measured, for too much is emphatically too much—stirs up skin cells to produce vitamin D, just as it stirs up leaf cells to produce the green chlorophyll. Vitamin D is praised for a shining list of virtues, and, beyond cavil, it does prevent rickets. But that is a matter of only polite interest to the germ-shooters.

What they like about it is that the ultra-violet barrage—kindly enough, except in excess, to the skin of animals and the leaves of plants—is deadly to hordes of microscopic plants and animals that cause disease and so go under the name of germs. That's one reason why homes visited by certain dreaded illnesses, which used to be fumigated with all sorts of smelly vapors, now are simply thrown open to sunlight and fresh air. That's why they can use mercury quartz lamps to lay down a protective barrage at the water intakes of swimming pools, and wipe out the germ navy creeping in for a raid on the swimmers. And that's why the ultra-violet lamp is the anti-aircraft gun they're setting up now against disease invasion from the air.

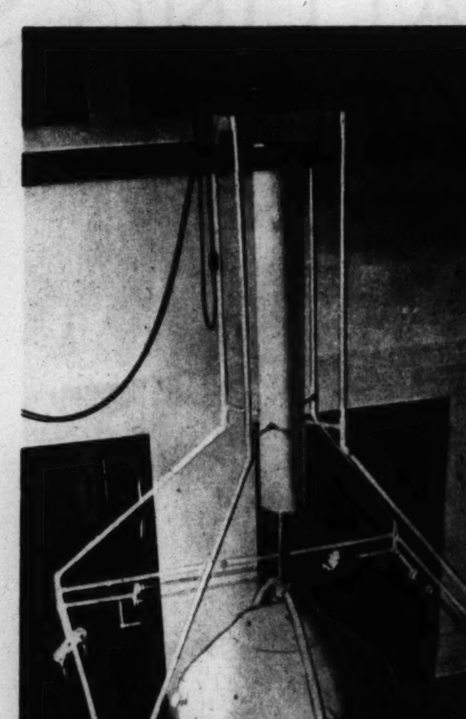
A few days ago it was W. F. Wells and H. W. Brown of Harvard School of Public Health who announced that they'd turned it, experimentally, on influenza virus in the air with 100 per cent results. And now it's Dr. Deryl Hart of Duke University in Durham who reports evidence that this ultra-violet artillery, set up in the operating room, makes post-operative infections gratifyingly scarce and recovery gratifyingly "uneventful."

The game that Dr. Hart was gunning for is a little different from the quarry of the Harvard scientists. They were after just one thing, the virus which gets into the nose and throat of unsuspecting persons who, in a few days, come down with influenza. In their experiment, this virus was not found to remain alive and deadly in the air for more than one hour.

IF THAT were Dr. Hart's game, the white-masked garb of the operating room would just about take care of it. But he was after something quite different. With all the hospital devices for ridding everything but the air of germs, infections after operation are not yet unknown. Germs of families capable, if they get the right sort of chance, of causing infections, are common in the air as well as on any common object, and Dr. Hart figured those in the air might be about as numerous in an operating room, busy much and sometimes all of the way round the 24 hours, as anywhere else.

He wasn't the first surgeon to think of that. It began with Joseph Lister, 67 years ago. But Lister did not have that ultra-modern weapon, the ultra-violet lamp. So he became the founder of anti-septic surgery, the technique of freeing the wound from contamination by antiseptics, as distinguished from aseptic surgery, the technique of keeping it free of contact with anything which might contaminate it, and in 1887 Lister concluded that the air, as a possible source of infection, could be disregarded.

When Lister began his career in Scotland, the fatality rate in operations was terrific. One authority says half the patients died, though the surgeons wisely limited themselves to attempting to repair injuries and one or two minor operations. There was serious talk of burning all the hospitals, for that seemed the only way to rid them of gangrene.



One of the lamps which surround the lighting fixture in the operating room at Duke hospital and give off germ-killing rays in the air above the recumbent patient.

This was the period when Pasteur was at the beginning of his epoch-making discovery of the part played by bacteria in causing disease.

Reading reports of Pasteur's early experiments on fermentation of wine gave Lister the idea for his first attack on hospital gangrene. Air came in contact with wounds, and if something in the air could cause fermentation of the grape juice, as Pasteur reported, perhaps it could also cause the rotting of human flesh which surgeons saw all around them.

The idea was strengthened by the fact that simple fractures, in which the bone was broken, but there was no flesh wound—and no contact of the bone with air—healed rapidly. The then put back and the sides let down. Pat and I could see, through the thin wall of the tent, Subbayah still suspended in the air. After about a minute he appeared to sway and then very slowly began to descend, still in a horizontal position. He took about five minutes to move from the top of the stick to the ground, a distance of about three feet. Evidently we were not meant to see this part of the performance, or it would all have been done in the open. The performer, whilst he is in a state of mental and bodily abstraction, is under a trance or stupor and becomes stiff as in the state of rigor mortis. When Subbayah was back on the ground his assistants carried him over to where we were sitting and asked if we would try to bend his limbs. Even with the assistance of three coolies we were unable to do so. It was only after Subbayah had been massaged for five minutes and had cold water poured over his head and down his throat that he returned to normal. This performance is entirely physical and cannot be attributed to what is termed the 'supernatural' mysteries of the East. An Indian friend of mine, who has spent most of his life on pilgrimages throughout India, explained how the body is controlled after years of practicing this particular branch of Yoga. His terms were those used in ordinary medical practice. My Indian friend has practiced only the lesser exercises of Yoga, so he may not be representative of the thought of the whole. It is a fascinating theory as he explained it, and shows that breath control is one of the principal practices in Yoga. The greatest object of all true Yogis is to have such complete hold over mind and body that they are able to cut adrift from this world and concentrate on the spiritual life to the exclusion of all else. . . . The first lessons of Yogaism are to attain perfect bodily health. . . . Yogaism is the result of experiences in mind and body dating back several thousand years."

domain—in other words he could condemn any property he wanted for the right of way. It has been said that the comparatively low construction cost is also based on an unpleasant aspect. The labor used is all drawn from the ranks of the unemployed and their wages are said to be "cruelly low."

But aside from these considerations it must be admitted that the roads represent the finest fruits of six years' intensive research in every part of the civilized world and that they are an almost unexampled combination of safety, efficacy and beauty.

And if the cost is ever liquidated and the roads are thrown open to the public toll-free these factors may be of tremendous advantage to the people of Germany. More people have been killed and maimed on America's highways than in all of her wars. Germany has only about one car for every 250 in this country, yet her accident fatality rate is 50.2 for every 10,000 cars on the road, while that of the United States is only 12.3.

If prosperity and more automobiles should ever come to Germany, the death rate might be appalling. Such highways as the Reichsautobahn may be reasonably considered the best possible preventive for wholesale motoring tragedies.

A Ray Machine to Kill Germs

bone could be set and splinted and in time grew together again and the paitent was as well as ever. If the broken ends of bone cut through the flesh, however, it was quite another story. In about half of these cases, inflammation set in, followed by pus, fever and death.

Lister determined to try to kill whatever it was in the air which caused inflammation and pus in wounds. When the next compound fracture was brought to the operating room, he carefully painted the ends of the broken bone and the flesh surrounding it with carbolic acid. That was before the germ-killing properties of carbolic acid were known, but Lister had heard that carbolic acid was being successfully used in Carlisle to destroy the odor from the town's sewage system.

The first case was a tragic disappointment—the patient died in spite of the new treatment. Undaunted, Lister tried again, the second time with success. After a few such successes, Lister had carbolic acid sprayed into the air from what was called a "donkey engine" while he was operating. It was that spray, famous for 20 years, which he abandoned in 1887, on the conclusion that the defense reactions of the blood were adequate to repel bacterial invasion from the air.

Dr. Hart's ray machine may be considered a scientific descendant of Lister's carbolic acid spray. The air above the operating table at Duke Hospital is ultra-violet, sprayed with rays that kill bacteria—harmful and otherwise.

The ultra-violet rays that do this job are the babies of the family, from 2700 Angstrom units down. Eight tubular lamps, two on each side, are ranged about the lighting appartus that hangs directly above the operating table.

While operating under the rays, Dr. Hart and his assistants wear a get-up that looks not unlike the traditional costume of the Ku Klux Klan. This is because the rays do have some sunburning effect. The patient, of course, is not exposed to the rays for as long as the operating "team," members of which may work under the radiation all day, and the patient is pretty well proctected.

In the laboratory, a filtered suspension of commonly found germs was sprayed on a plate of culture medium and exposed to the rays at a distance of five feet. After 60 seconds, all the germs were dead. Plates sprayed with unfiltered suspensions, containing more of the germs, were exposed at the same distance and within five minutes all the germs had been destroyed.

WOUNDS in animals were exposed to the rays for periods varying from half an hour to an hour and a half. No damage was apparent; in fact, healing seemed to be more rapid than in the control animals not exposed to the rays. This same favorable effect of producing more rapid healing of wounds was noted when Dr. Hart started operating on patients under the rays.

"Operating room infections, which were fairly common before these tubes were installed, practically disappeared." Dr. Hart reported to Modern Hospital.

After the operation there was less rise in temperature, patients had less pain, their general condition improved rapidly, and their stay in the hospital was shortened.

for an autopsy were dropped when the litigants refused to pay the costs of the operation.

Meanwhile Mrs. William Duge, Mrs. Voss' sister, became disgusted with the whole procedure. "She was the only one of the cousins," she said in reference to her sister, the heiress, "who ever did anything for them, and she should get the money. There is a fat goose to pluck and all the other cousins are out to pluck it." But Mrs. Duge's husband, who had been appointed a co-administrator of the estate, couldn't see it that way. He said he was out to look after the interests of the other cousins. He wasn't encouraging his wife to try to break the will, he said, but he wanted to see that those who wanted to break the will got fair treatment.

Mrs. Duge charged that her cousins had used trickery and coercion in order to get Mrs. Henry Soehren, the 96-yer-old aunt, to sign the petition for a review of the will. Their reply was a flat denial and a move to investigate Voss's bank account—another aspersion on his honesty as administrator.

Badgered and harassed by all this, the Vosses settled down on the Iwers farm and prepared to defend themselves by force if necessary. When contesting relatives appeared to continue the treasure hunt, Voss warned them off the place.

The suit which has been filed by the slighted cousins declares that Henry Iwers was of unsound mind, that the Vosses used undue pressure to get themselves named beneficiaries and that Henry didn't realize how large his fortune was and didn't understand the implication of the will he had signed.

Voss considers these charges absurd and based on ignorance of Henry Iwers' personal peculiarities and his shrewdness. "Anybody who thinks he can prove the Iwers boys crazy," he said, "is crazy himself. They built this house themselves, did the carpenter work and even the plastering. They even installed the fixtures, many of which they made themselves. They were a little old-fashioned about wanting to keep a lot of money on the place—even John, who was president of the Sunbury Bank. But they were smart. They didn't have hardly any money around the house and in the safes. Most of it was hidden in corrugated iron buildings where there was little chance of fire and where nobody would find it in a million years.

"The boys knew what they were doing," he concluded. "They worked hard and minded their own business and they were honest with everybody."

He pointed to a stack of magazines piled against the wall of Henry Iwers' bedroom. Most of them were mechanical periodicals of a popular sort. But on the top of the heap was a book. It was entitled, "Formulas for Making Money, Or 1059 Ways for Starting a Successful Business at Home."

NEW GLARE-PROOF POWDER SHADES

Flatter you in hard blazing light

The full glare of the summer sun throws a hard light on your skin.

New "Sunlight" shades catch only the sun's softest rays—flatter you!

soften the sun's glare on your skin

STRONG sunlight is hard on your looks—It sharpens every little fault . . . and casts dark, unbecoming shadows where it is not lighting up your faults. It's the harder rays of the sun that do this. Now, Pond's "glare-proof" Sunlight shades catch only the softer rays of the sun—soften its glare on your face. You're lovely with them, no matter how strong the glare. New shades—away from the dark, deadening "sun-tan" powders. Flattering with every shade of tan!

MONEY-BACK TRIAL—Try Pond's Sunlight shade (Light or Dark). If you do not find it more flattering than ordinary sun-tan shades, send us back the box and we will refund purchase price plus postage. Pond's, Clinton, Conn.

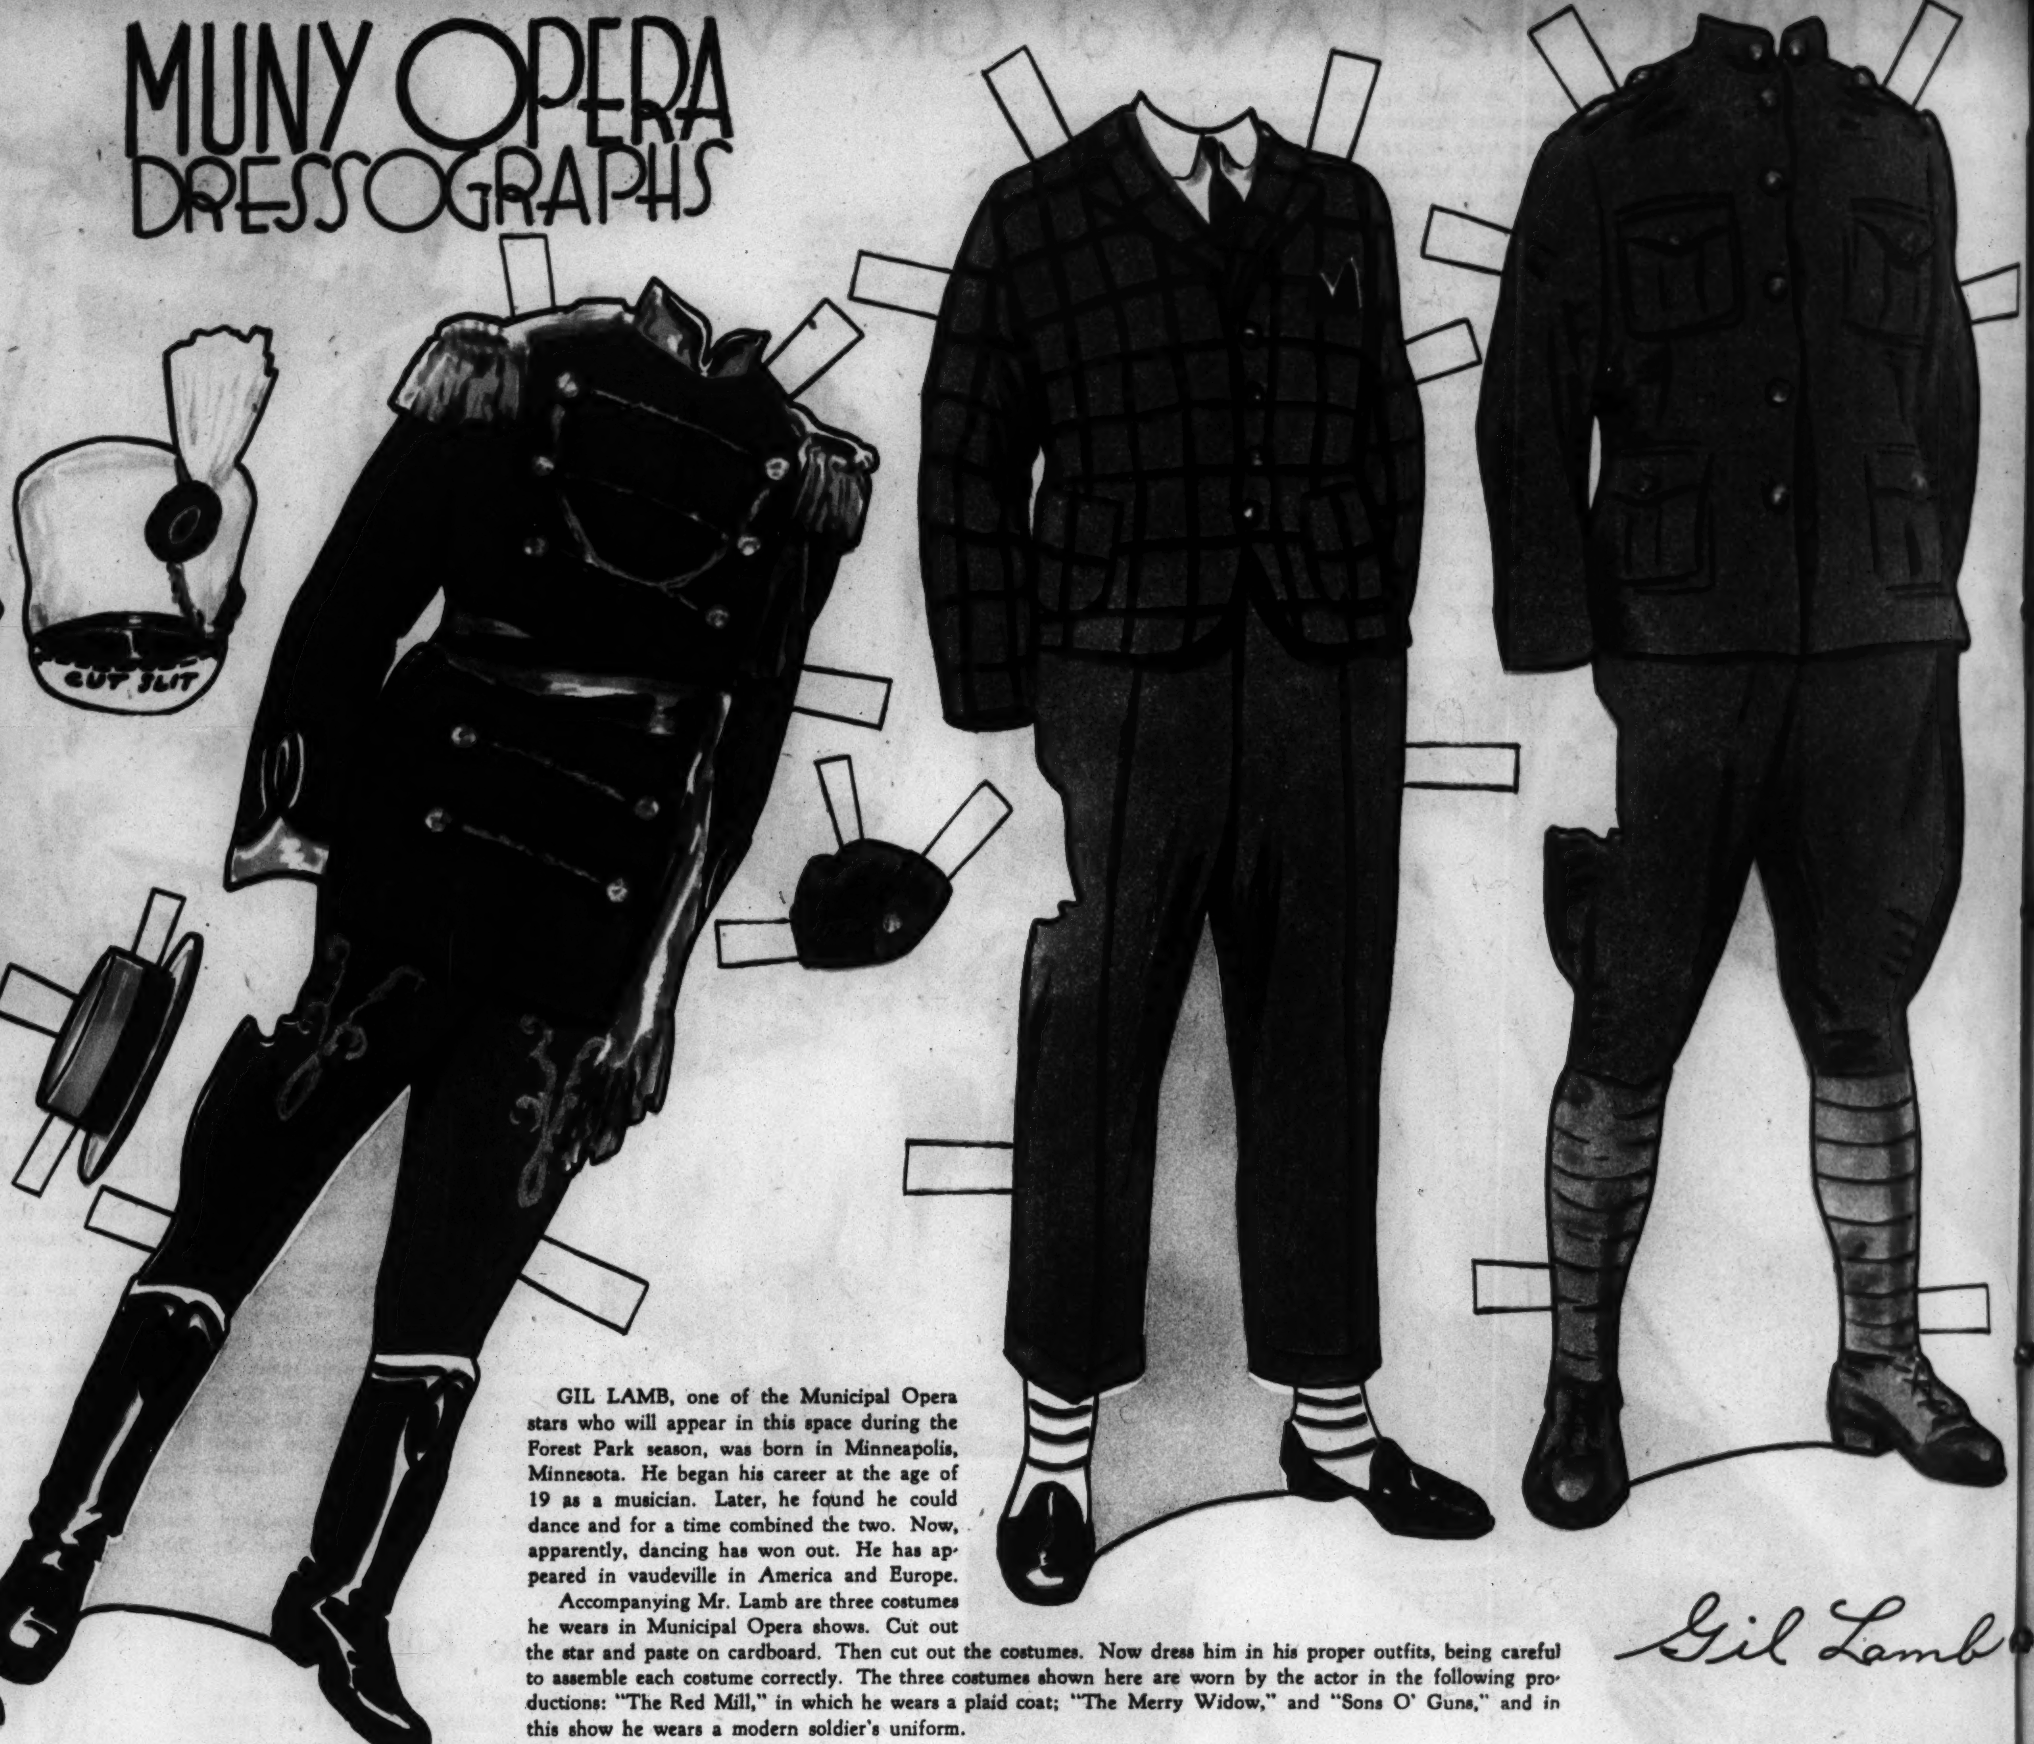
MUNY OPERA DRESSOGRAPHS



GIL LAMB, one of the Municipal Opera stars who will appear in this space during the Forest Park season, was born in Minneapolis, Minnesota. He began his career at the age of 19 as a musician. Later, he found he could dance and for a time combined the two. Now, apparently, dancing has won out. He has appeared in vaudeville in America and Europe.

Accompanying Mr. Lamb are three costumes he wears in Municipal Opera shows. Cut out the star and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress him in his proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly. The three costumes shown here are worn by the actor in the following productions: "The Red Mill," in which he wears a plaid coat; "The Merry Widow," and "Sons O' Guns," and in this show he wears a modern soldier's uniform.

HICKORY HOLLOW FOLKS

And The Things They Do

By WALTER QUERMANN

THE TRAMP

THE CHARACTERS

O. HUM—A lazy, shiftless opossum.

BUNGALOW BEN—An impoverished turtle.

Jittery John, the mouse Mayor of Hickory Hollow, has been forced by Hermit Harry, the hateful old lone wolf, to pass such dreadful laws that everyone moved away from the Hollow. That is, everyone except O. Hum. Living conditions for him have greatly improved. There are so many vacant houses that he has no trouble at all finding a place to sleep, and then, too, very often he finds something in these houses that the former owner left behind. He was sleeping in one of the houses today, when he was awakened by someone knocking at the gate in front of the house. He slowly got up and looked out of the door. There stood an old tramp turtle. O. Hum is very much surprised to see him and we see the opossum staring at his visitor as

THE PLAY BEGINS

TOM TURTLE—Please, mister, can you spare a little something for a poor old turtle who lost everything he had when the new Mayor went into office?

O. HUM—(To himself.) Gosh, this fellow is stealing my stuff. I'm the one who usually does the begging. I think I'll have some fun with him. (Then, turning to the turtle.) You think you are bad off, but just wait until you have heard my story. (And the lazy opossum tells a tale of woe, the like of which has never been told before. He cries, he turns his pockets inside out to prove that he hasn't a thing. And, after a while, he makes the turtle feel so bad that the poor old turtle cries, too. After crying for a while the turtle reaches into his bundle and, taking out a couple of dollars, hands them to O. Hum.)

BUNGALOW BEN—Stop, you are breaking my heart. Here's some money—take it. You need it much more than I do. (O. Hum is terribly surprised. He takes the money and, after the turtle has gone on his way, thinks things over.)

O. HUM—Gosh, he's got money. I haven't got any home. So I might just as well go along with him. I might learn a thing or two. (So O. Hum excitedly chases after the turtle.)

"I just use MUM and forget my underarms"

"NO matter how hot and tired and nervous I am, I never have to worry about perspiration odor. I just use Mum every morning and forget my underarms for the rest of the day. It's such a joy!"

• • •

Mum is the modern answer to this old problem for the busy woman of today.

She has a double reason for liking Mum so well. It's not only that Mum gives sure protection, but it's so quick and easy to use!

It takes just half a minute to use Mum. And you can use it any time. If you forget it before you dress, just use it afterwards. For Mum is harmless to clothing.

It's cooling and soothing to the skin, too — so soothing you can use it right after shaving the underarms. Think of this!

Another thing women like about it—Mum does its work of preventing perspiration odor without preventing the natural perspiration itself.

The daily Mum habit will save you many an anxious moment. Use Mum regularly, and forget your underarms! Bristol-Myers Co., 630 Fifth Ave., New York.

TODAY the gentle caress of Woodbury's lather against your skin means so much more than cleanliness! For Woodbury's Facial Soap now brings you the glorious benefits of "Filtered Sunshine" in every cake!

Sunshine Enhances Beauty

The world of Science has long known that certain kindly rays of sunshine have the power to enliven the skin.

Now, by an amazing new process . . . exclusive and patented . . . these rays of "Filtered Sunshine" are irradiated into one of Woodbury's ingredients.

This "Filtered Sunshine" element is released from Woodbury's lather as you wash and bathe. And tests prove it is readily absorbed by the skin.

Formerly 25c...Now 10c a Cake

Woodbury's Facial Soap, the only beauty soap which brings you these new benefits, is only 10c a cake. The same large size, long-lasting cake that for many years sold for a quarter!

Don't miss the chance to try this new way to all-over loveliness and "A Skin You Love to Touch"! Let your family use it freely. Be sure to bathe the baby, too, with this "Filtered Sunshine" soap! You can get it at all drug, department, ten-cent stores, and from your own neighborhood grocer.

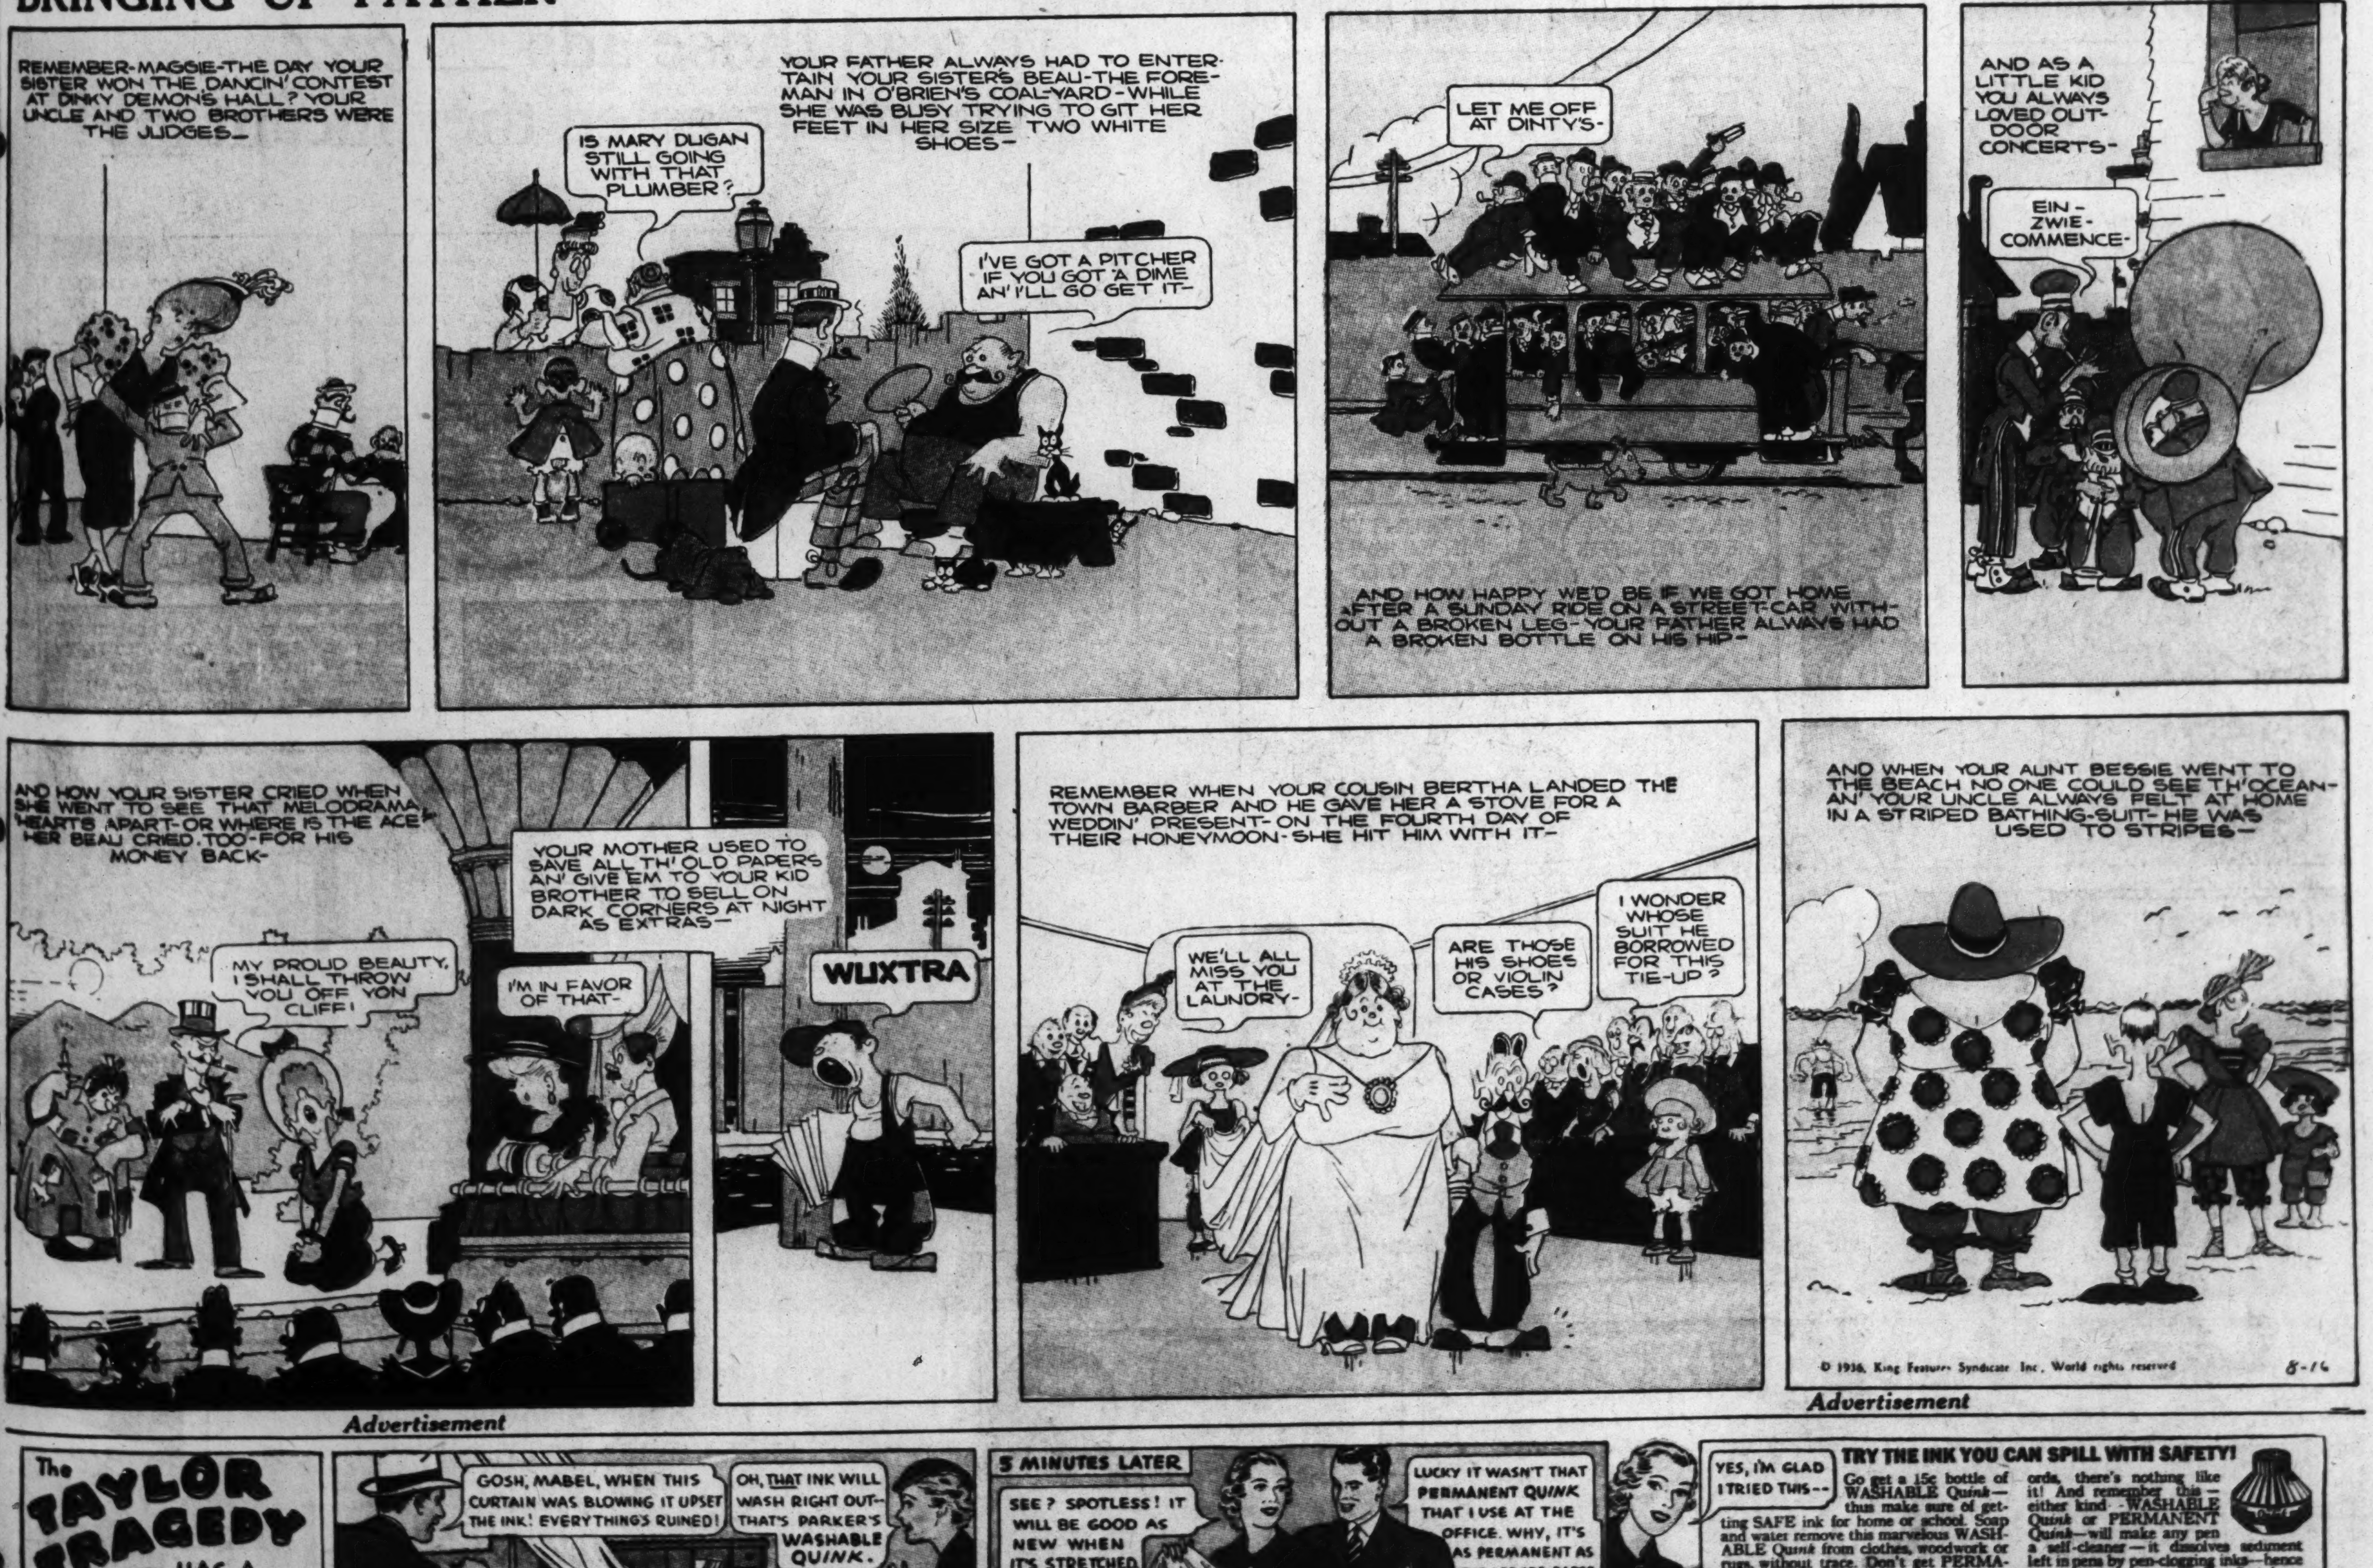
By McMANUS



REMEMBER-MAGGIE-THE DAY YOUR SISTER WON THE DANCIN' CONTEST AT DINKY DEMON'S HALL? YOUR UNCLE AND TWO BROTHERS WERE THE JUDGES—
YOUR FATHER ALWAYS HAD TO ENTERTAIN YOUR SISTER'S BEAU-THE FOREMAN IN O'BRIEN'S COAL-YARD-WHILE SHE WAS BUSY TRYING TO GIT HER FEET IN HER SIZE TWO WHITE SHOES—IS MARY DUGAN STILL GOING WITH THAT PLUMBER?
I'VE GOT A PITCHER IF YOU GOT A DIME AN' I'LL GO GET IT-
LET ME OFF AT DINTY'S-
AND HOW HAPPY WE'D BE IF WE GOT HOME AFTER A SUNDAY RIDE ON A STREET-CAR WITHOUT A BROKEN LEG-YOUR FATHER ALWAYS HAD A BROKEN BOTTLE ON HIS HIP-
AND AS A LITTLE KID YOU ALWAYS LOVED OUT-DOOR CONCERTS-EIN-ZWIE-COMMENCE-
AND HOW YOUR SISTER CRIED WHEN SHE WENT TO SEE THAT MELODRAMA 'HEARTS APART-OR WHERE IS THE ACE' HER BEAU CRIED, TOO-FOR HIS MONEY BACK-MY PROUD BEAUTY, I SHALL THROW YOU OFF YON CLIFF!
I'M IN FAVOR OF THAT-
YOUR MOTHER USED TO SAVE ALL TH' OLD PAPERS AN' GIVE EM TO YOUR KID BROTHER TO SELL ON DARK CORNERS AT NIGHT AS EXTRAS—
WUXTRA
REMEMBER WHEN YOUR COUSIN BERTHA LANDED THE TOWN BARBER AND HE GAVE HER A STOVE FOR A WEDDIN' PRESENT-ON THE FOURTH DAY OF THEIR HONEYMOON-SHE HIT HIM WITH IT-
WE'LL ALL MISS YOU AT THE LAUNDRY-
ARE THOSE HIS SHOES OR VIOLIN CASES?
I WONDER WHOSE SUIT HE BORROWED FOR THIS TIE-UP?
AND WHEN YOUR AUNT BESSIE WENT TO THE BEACH NO ONE COULD SEE TH'OCEAN-AN' YOUR UNCLE ALWAYS FELT AT HOME IN A STRIPED BATHING-SUIT-HE WAS USED TO STRIPES—

The TAYLOR TRAGEDY —HAS A HAPPY ENDING

GOSH, MABEL, WHEN THIS CURTAIN WAS BLOWING IT UPSET THE INK! EVERYTHING'S RUINED!

OH, THAT INK WILL WASH RIGHT OUT—THAT'S PARKER'S WASHABLE QUINK.

5 MINUTES LATER

SEE? SPOTLESS! IT WILL BE GOOD AS NEW WHEN IT'S STRETCHED.

LUCKY IT WASN'T THAT PERMANENT QUINK THAT I USE AT THE OFFICE. WHY, IT'S AS PERMANENT AS THE LEDGER PAPER.

YES, I'M GLAD I TRIED THIS—

TRY THE INK YOU CAN SPILL WITH SAFETY!

Go get a 15c bottle of WASHABLE Quink—thus make sure of getting SAFE ink for home or school. Soap and water remove this marvelous WASHABLE Quink from clothes, woodwork or rugs, without trace. Don't get PERMANENT Quink unless it's for PERMANENT records. For permanent office records, there's nothing like it! And remember this—either kind—WASHABLE Quink or PERMANENT Quink—will make any pen a self-cleaner—it dissolves sediment left in pens by pen-clogging inks—hence cleans a pen as it writes. Try Quink today, 15c or 25c. Made by Parker Pen Co.

WASHING IS NO WORK AT ALL WITH RINSO. LET ME SHOW YOU
WELL, IF YOU INSIST
WHY, MY SHEETS NEVER LOOKED HALF SO WHITE! AND YOU DIDN'T TOUCH A WASHBOARD
THAT'S WHY MILLIONS USE RINSO. IT WASHES CLOTHES 4 OR 5 SHADES WHITER WITHOUT SCRUBBING OR BOILING
Rinso
Not only does Rinso save scrubbing and boiling . . . it gets clothes so much whiter and brighter you'll be amazed. Safely, too. Recommended by makers of 33 washers. Grand for dishes and all cleaning. Get the big box.

"I've read those ads — but I never dreamed they meant me!"

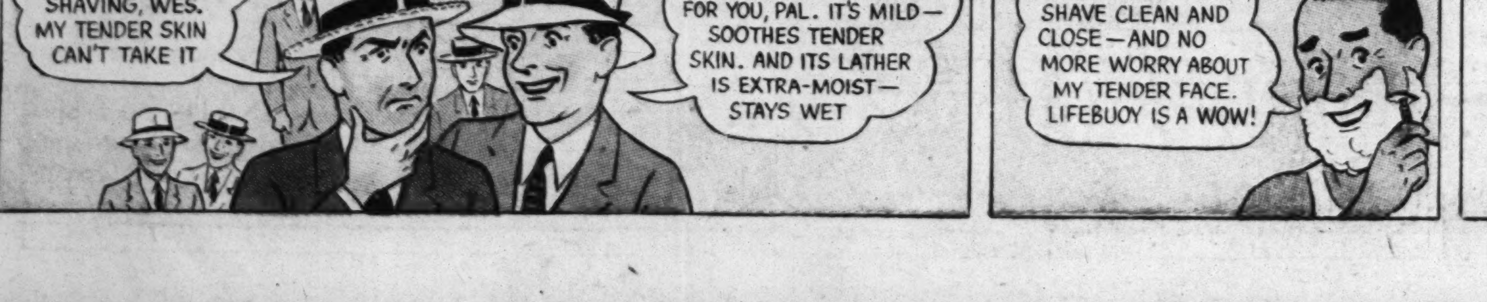
TRUE "B.O." EXPERIENCE No. 810

A typical letter, in picture form, showing how carelessness almost robbed a young girl of romance. Experiences like this bring home the real necessity of being sure! No one offends who uses Lifebuoy regularly . . .
OUR CROWD WENT ON A CAMPING TRIP (THIS LETTER BEGINS). SHE WAS THE PRETTIEST GIRL IN THE PARTY. BUT THE MEN AVOIDED HER —
SHE WAS GUILTY OF A TERRIBLE SOCIAL ERROR. IN DESPAIR I PUT LIFEBUOY IN EVERY ROOM AND A DOUBLE SHARE IN THE BARREL SHOWER. ALL OTHER SOAP "DISAPPEARED"
"B.O." (BODY ODOR) LEFT HER. SHE BECAME POPULAR. AND SHE REALIZED WHY!
LATER SHE SAID TO ME: "I'VE READ THOSE LIFEBUOY ADS BUT NEVER DREAMED THEY MEANT ME! YET I MUST HAVE BEEN OFFENDING ALL THE TIME. FROM NOW ON NOTHING BUT LIFEBUOY FOR ME!"
MY SKIN IS SO MUCH FRESHER AND SMOOTHER SINCE I CHANGED TO LIFEBUOY
THAT'S BECAUSE LIFEBUOY IS MUCH MILDER THAN MANY SO-CALLED "BEAUTY SOAPS."
LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP
In summer, when you wash your face often, use a mild soap — Lifebuoy! It cleanses more deeply, more gently . . . Brings clear freshness to dull, tired skin. "Patch" tests on the skins of hundreds of women prove it's more than 20% milder than many so-called "beauty soaps."

Bathe regularly with Lifebuoy! Its penetrating, abundant lather stops "B.O.," even on sticky, humid days . . . Its clean scent rinses away.

Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau



I WISH I COULD QUIT SHAVING, WES. MY TENDER SKIN CAN'T TAKE IT
LIFEBUOY SHAVING CREAM FOR YOU, PAL. IT'S MILD — SOOTHES TENDER SKIN. AND ITS LATHER IS EXTRA-MOIST — STAYS WET SWELL! NOW I CAN SHAVE CLEAN AND CLOSE — AND NO MORE WORRY ABOUT MY TENDER FACE. LIFEBUOY IS A WOW!
Let this mild, soothing, extra-moist lather end your shaving worries for good

Lifebuoy Shaving Cream is lots milder than other leading shaving soaps — kinder, more soothing to tender skin. But that's not all. By actual test, Lifebuoy lather holds 52% more moisture than ordinary lathers — stays wet to the end of the shave — soaks beards softer. Get the big red tube at your druggist's today . . . try it for cleaner, smoother shaves in perfect comfort.

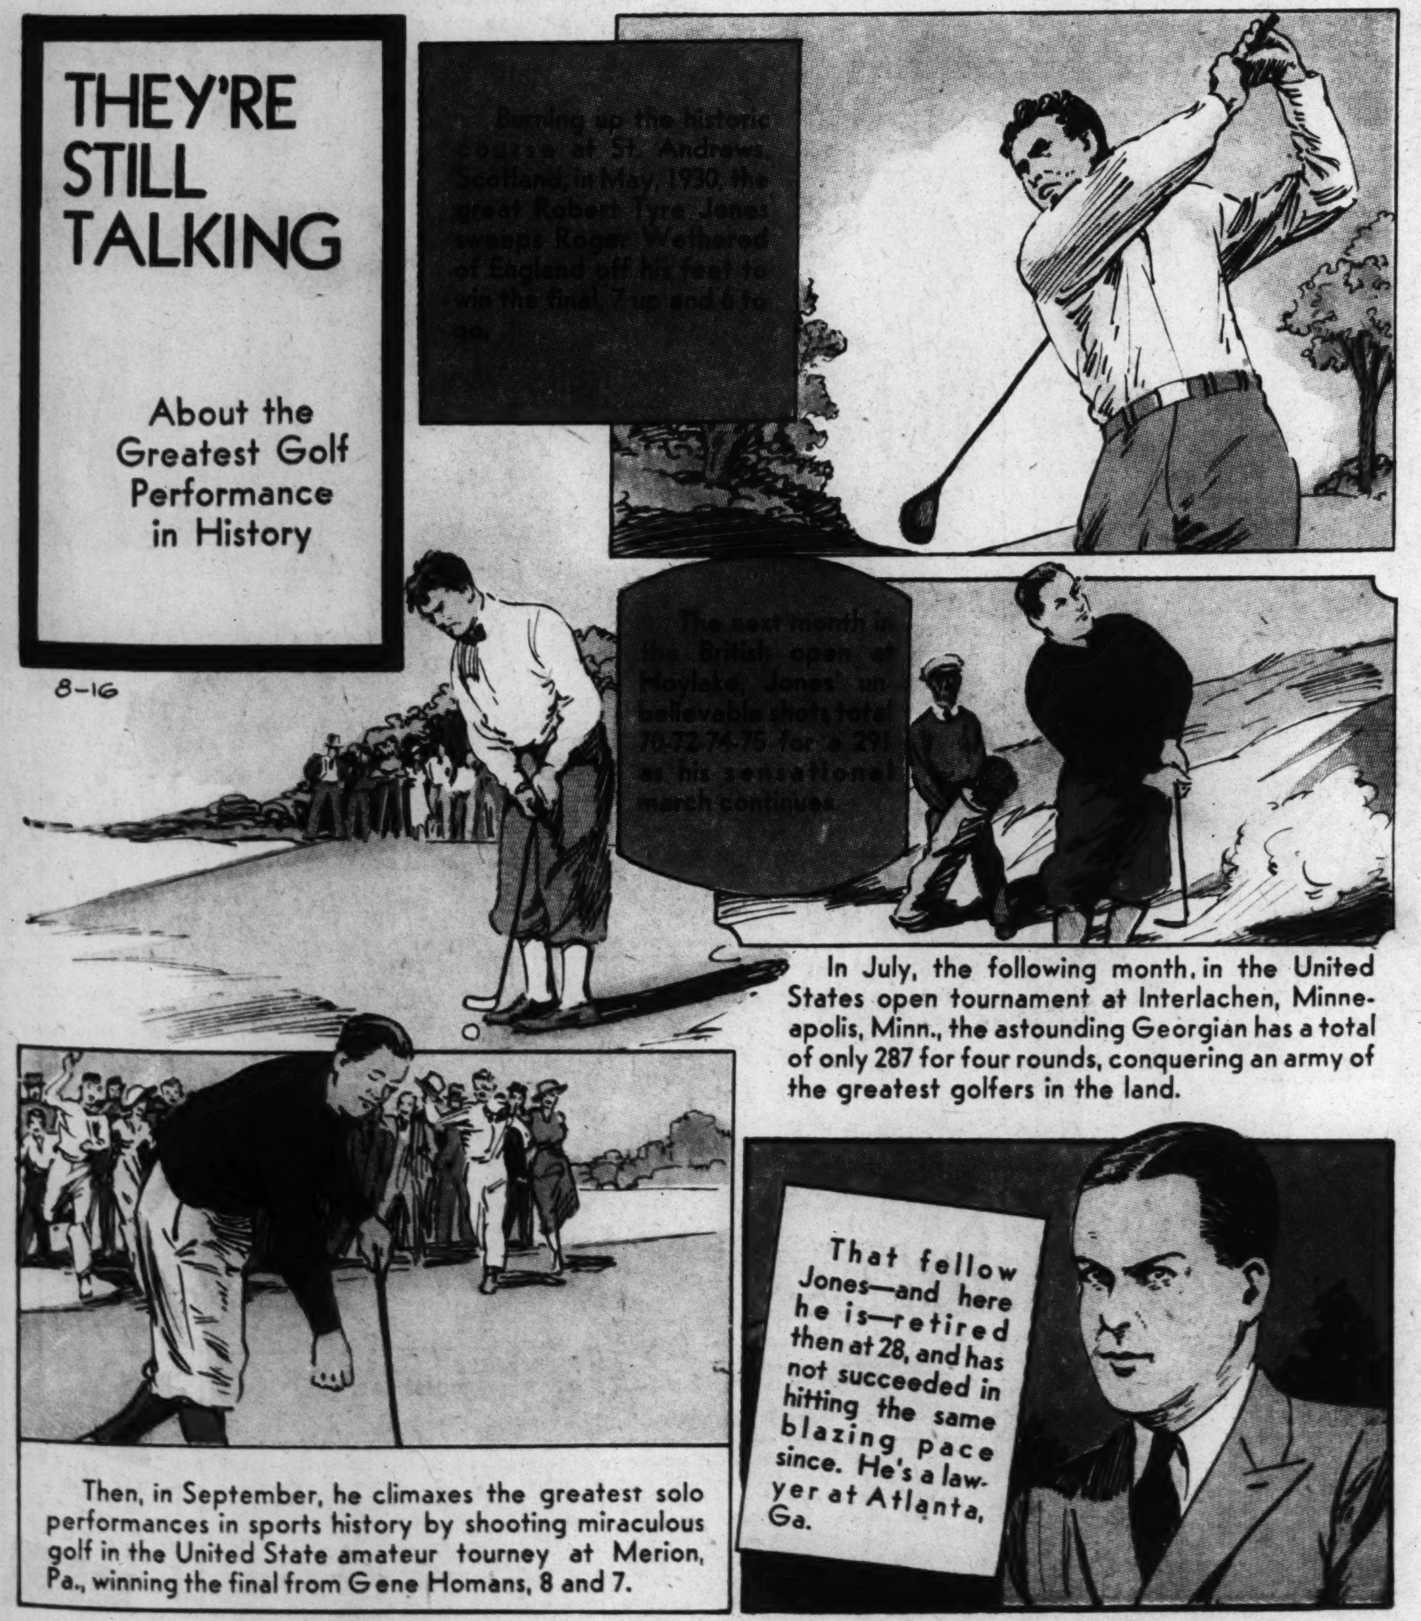
THEY'RE STILL TALKING

About the Greatest Golf Performance in History



Burning up the historic course at St. Andrews, Scotland, in May, 1930, the great Robert Tyre Jones sweeps Roger Wethered of England off his feet to win the final, 7 up and 6 to go.

The next month in the British open at Hoylake, Jones' unbelievable shots total 70-72-74-75 for a 291 as his sensational march continues.

In July, the following month, in the United States open tournament at Interlachen, Minneapolis, Minn., the astounding Georgian has a total of only 287 for four rounds, conquering an army of the greatest golfers in the land.

Then, in September, he climaxes the greatest solo performances in sports history by shooting miraculous golf in the United State amateur tourney at Merion, Pa., winning the final from Gene Homans, 8 and 7.

That fellow Jones—and here he is—retired then at 28, and has not succeeded in hitting the same blazing pace since. He's a lawyer at Atlanta, Ga.

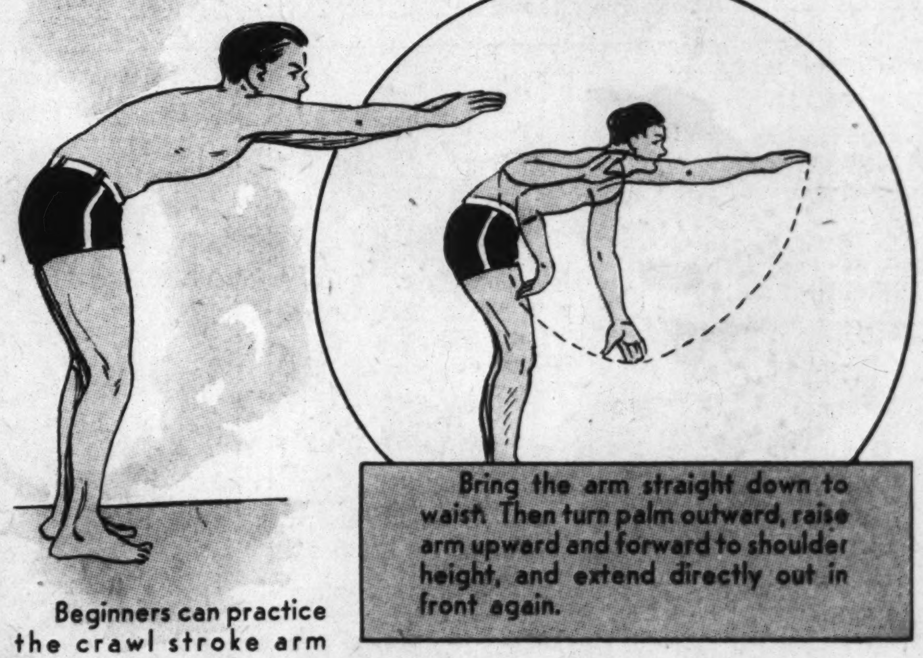
More About The Crawl Stroke



Beginners can practice the crawl stroke arm movement out of water. First, hold the arm straight out on level with shoulder.

Bring the arm straight down to waist. Then turn palm outward, raise arm upward and forward to shoulder height, and extend directly out in front again.

Boys, when you have practiced the motion with both hands, enter the water waist deep and plunge toward shore, using the arm movement. When you have mastered that, add the leg motion and combine them.

YOU SAID IT... SHE'S A WINNER ALL RIGHT

DON'T LET ADOLESCENT PIMPLES SPOIL YOUR VACATION PLANS

A BROKEN-OUT skin is no help to any girl or boy who longs to be popular and have good times. But many young people are victims of this trouble.

After the start of adolescence — from about 13 to 25, or even longer—important glands develop and final growth takes place. This causes disturbances throughout the entire body. The skin gets oversensitive. Harmful waste poisons in the blood irritate this sensitive skin. Pimples break out.

Thousands have found Fleischmann's Yeast a great help in getting rid of adolescent pimples. It clears these skin irritants out of the blood. Then, the pimples go!

Eat 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast regularly each day—one cake about ½ hour before meals—plain, or in a little water—until your skin is clear. Start today.

TAKE A TIP FROM ME — IF YOU'VE GOT COFFEE-NERVES, SWITCH TO POSTUM!

OF COURSE, you know that children should never drink coffee. But do you realize that the caffein in coffee disagrees with many grown-ups, too?

If you are bothered by headaches or indigestion, or find it difficult to sleep soundly . . . caffein may be to blame.

Isn't it worth while to try Postum for 30 days? Postum contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. Try Postum. You may miss coffee at first, but after 30 days you'll love Postum for its own rich, satisfying flavor. It is easy to make, delicious, economical, and may prove a real help.
